Twenty-Four Years Old This Issue

Today, with this issue of the Walton Advertiser, we enter upon our twenty-fourth year of continuous service as a community institution. Established by Roy Stamler in 1914, James Wallace later joined him in continuing this publication until the Master ended their work early this year.

Founded with little thought that the paper would ever grow to its present-day size and coverage, Stamler and Wallace guided its course over twenty-three years. After their sudden demise, James Henry Jump purchased the Advertiser and continued as its publisher, and with the assistance of Bob Darling, Editor and Business Manager, it is our aspiration to carry on the higher accomplishments.

With your support the Advertiser hopes fulfill its purpose as a criterion of Walton and our neighbors on all sides.

Referendum to Be Held Among Growers

Department of Agriculture officials indicated a referendum on establishing the growing of each of the 1939 burley tobacco crop probably would be held around the middle of December.

A decision on the exact date for the balloting will be made late next month, after it is determined whether supplies will be excessive.

December 17 was mentioned by informed persons as the probable date for the referendum both for burley and dark types. December 19 is being considered for a flue-cured tobacco vote.

Before a production control program can be put into effect, two-thirds of the growers of each crop must approve. Growers gave overwhelming approval of control of the 1938 crop 87.1 per cent of the burley growers approving the program.

Despite an estimated reduction in the size of this year's burley crop, agriculture officials said an excess supply was almost certain.

October 1 estimates were 395,113,000 pounds, more than 7,000,000 pounds below the 1937 yield, but 38,000,000 pounds over the 1938 quotas. Supplies on hand October 1, 1938, were 662,000,000 pounds compared with 571,000,000 on October 1 1937.

Twenty-four Years Of Service

Twenty-four years ago Roy Stamler, in a small shop on Main street, conceived the inspiration for the present Walton Advertiser. Set and printed by hand, the paper was a criterion of the ever-moving world in that day. Later James "Jimmy" or just plain "Jim" Wallace joined hands with "Smitty" and the small publication thrived through prosperous times, and held its own through adverse conditions.

Slowly and gradually this congenial partnership wove a constructive program that resulted in a paper that entered many of the homes in Boone and adjoining counties each week. The following of readers steadily grew until today several thousand scan its pages each week. Stamler and Wallace continued the guiding hands for over twenty-three years until the Grim Reaper called the two boys Home, just a week apart. With the passing of these two outstanding citizens, the Advertiser passed into the hands of James Henry Jump, the present publisher.

Striving for several months to give the people of this county a paper they deserved, Mr. Jump finally turned to one of Wallace and Stamler's former employees, Bob Darling, to take over the active management and editorship of The Advertiser, in whose hands rests the future destiny of a paper founded twenty-four years ago with a vision of service to its fellow citizens.

With the assistance of the residents of Walton, and Boone, Gallatin, Kenton and Grant counties, the aid and patience of the fine roster of correspondents, and with the abiding spirit of the Almighty One sending His blessings over our enterprise, we pray that the next twenty-four years, and more too, may find prosperity, health and happiness over this glorious countryside of ours, and that we may fill our small noobe to the satisfaction of all those with whom we come in daily contact.

The next twenty-four years are before us. . . .

With both Democrats and Republicans making a "gun-shoe" campaign in Kentucky is it any wonder the voter is not enthusiastic?

Thomas A. Edison

October 18, seven years ago, marked the passing of one of the Nation's leading citizens, and an outstanding inventor of this age. That man was Thomas A. Edison, whose dreams have given verdant conveniences to millions of people, and light to a darkened world.

People have been amazed at the many contributions which this man left to the world. It is very doubtful if his record for the number of useful inventions will ever be excelled. We can hardly look about us without seeing the evidence of Edison's contributions to the betterment of mankind.

A great deal of discussion used to be centered about the spiritual life of the great inventor. Probably no one ever knew much about his inward thoughts concerning the Great Creator. However, shortly before his death in 1931, Mr. Edison made the following comment to Roger Babson:

"Babson, I do not pose as a preacher, but let me tell you that if there is a God, He will not let us advance much further materially until we catch up spiritually. A great fundamental law of science is that all forces must be kept in balance. When anybody or forces goes off on a tangent there is a smash. This applies to America as it has to every nation before it."

Why Delay in Calling a Disarmament Conference

Authorized spokesmen for Germany and Italy stated, in 1937, that their countries were willing to talk arms limitation and the abolishment of bombing of civilians, along the lines proposed by President Roosevelt five years ago.

The question in the minds of many is why do not the democracies and other well-disposed powers determine once and for all whether Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler are bluffing by calling a disarmament conference of the major powers. The recent humiliating terms of peace exacted by the dictators from France and Great Britain over the Czechoslovakia grab will force those countries into even a greater rearmament program.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, in his recent address to the country, outlined a world plan for limiting and reducing armaments, the ending of air attacks on civilian populations, and suggested that a plan for economic reconstruction be considered so that there may be no honest excuse for not observing the pledges made by nearly sixty nations under the Kellogg-Briand Pact.

From all accounts the reactions of the peoples in France and Great Britain, following the Munich agreement were indicative of a desire for peace. This was true also both in Italy and Germany where their Premiers received the greatest spontaneous ovations of their careers.

The reputations of these two dictators as treaty breakers discourages any agreements with them. Yet if there ever was a time in the past two decades when conditions warranted a hope for the establishment of a new world order, based on justice and upon law, as suggested by both the Secretary and Undersecretary of State, that time is now certainly here is no better way of bringing the two European dictators into the spotlight of the moral opinion of the world than by inviting them to the conference suggested by the State Department.

No good can come out of delay. Civilization and the lives of millions of people are at stake in the status quo.

A Live Wire Briar Hopper

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE

By WILL S. NORRIS
552 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

In one of my stories I told about an old colored man who made a trip from Winchester, Ky., to Covington, where he saw a man tapping some keys. Upon inquiry he learned that the man was talking to a man in New York and that was in the days before telephone or radio. When he went to his home later and told his colored friends what he saw, they were doubters and they did not believe his story.

To prove his story he said if there was a dog that would reach from Covington to his home in New York, he would give him $100. In Covington he would buy a dog, in New York which established the story in the colored man's friends' minds. As I said, we often heard the story of the dog barking at the moon and that there might be a time when, with our great minds, this might be able to provide instruments to enable us to talk with the inhabitants of the moon.

This might have sounded, visionary and unbelievable, but I never did dream of my vision coming true so soon, when a few days ago I heard that a dog owned by an engineer for General Electric Co., of New York, heard his own bark after it had been carried around the world.

While his master and other engineers were testing the arm of the world radio circuit, the dog leaped in front of the microphone and barked. About one-eighth of a second later a loud speaker recorded the sound and in that time the bark of the dog had traveled more than 24,000 miles. The dog barked a rival dog was barking at him and he continued to bark into the microphone. As his voice sounded into the microphone it was transmitted to the short wave station WEXAD at Holland and relayed to Java, Australia and back to New York.

There are a lot of things true but unbelievable to a great many. A great many people have never traveled into the hills where there are caves and deep hollows, where if you talk loud enough, you will get the echo of your exact words.

There is a great lesson in this, that if we put out bad, hard uncouth words they will come back to us. I will say further that if we put out ugly thoughts they will come back to us one, two, three and four fold. The same is true of good thoughts.

For this reason we should be careful about putting out thoughts and words and actions out. We are making records as we go thru life that may be given out through violators of time long after we have made the records.

THE ROAD TO MY HEART

I do not ask to know the end,
Nor half the way to see,
I only ask to have a friend,
To walk a while with me.
I do not need a merry tune,
When birds sing in a tree,
When trifling rivers run in June
And bees hum merrily.

I do not care a passage sure
Remembering I am clay,
I only ask that I endure
The passions of the day;
That I may venture farther on Where none shall bid me stay,
While I have faith in setting sun
And have a heart to pray.
—W. A. S. in Ford News.

A traditional episode, though with considerable background of fact, occurred in an Ohio camp during the latter part of the Civil War. General John Hunt Morgan, gallant Confederate officer, had been taken prisoner and was in the charge of General Shackelford, a Federal, and also present was General Frank Wolford, General Morgan and General Wolford had many serious encounters back and forth as a fighting man. General Shackelford, in the presence of General Wolford, had begun a tirade of abuse at Morgan. He had accused him of all manner of atrocious crimes, with being a traitor and other things that had brought the red to the Confederate General's face. General Wolford halted the Northerner, saying: "General Shackelford you are abusing one of the most gallant officers in the Confederate Army, a gentleman and a Kentuckian of the highest honor; I ask you to desist and apologize to General Morgan." Shackelford saw that he had gone too far, and apologized most profusely to both Morgan and Wolford. The Confederate was so touched by the words of General Wolford, the man who he had chased and who had chased him for months, and whom he had encountered on several battlefields, that he said: "General Wolford, I am wearing a set of silver spurs presented me by the ladies of Richmond, Va., and as a token of esteem to a fearless foe, and a Kentuckian for whom I have the highest regard, I ask you to accept these spurs and wear them." General Wolford accepted the spurs in the same spirit in which they were tendered, and at his death many years after the war they were in his possession.

When the existing farm bill passed last winter the writer made the statement he could not understand how it would work, or in other words did not believe it workable. After several months of operation it remains puzzling. The intention was to bring farm prices to parity, and this was to be accomplished by restricting production, and to safeguard the "cut-out" the farmer was to be given a subsidy. In spite of the farm bill prices of agricultural products are at a four-year low, and corn is yet on the decline. Wheat and grain most profusely to both Morgan and Wolford. The Confederate was so touched by the words of General Wolford, the man who he had chased and who had chased him for months, and whom he had encountered on several battlefields, that he said: "General Wolford, I am wearing a set of silver spurs presented me by the ladies of Richmond, Va., and as a token of esteem to a fearless foe, and a Kentuckian for whom I have the highest regard, I ask you to accept these spurs and wear them." General Wolford accepted the spurs in the same spirit in which they were tendered, and at his death many years after the war they were in his possession.

Regardless of the beating of tomtoms, the cheering of hide-bound partisans and the effort of certain newspapers to create an interest in the political campaign in Kentucky is as bedraggled as the football hen which followed her duckling into the pond. The speakings are attended by the faithful who have benefits or expediting benefits, and the crowd around the courthouse who have no place more worthwhile to go. The usual interest, with its attendant excitement, is missing. The city vote is extremely apathetic, and the country electorate is between the devil and the deep blue sea, due to the downward spiral of farm product prices. There is yet a certain tenacity of spirit that cannot forgive Kentucky's change of heart, and another element among the Republicans who approve it, all of which does not lend any enthusiasm to the campaign. The politically wise predict a very tight vote, claiming that Farm of 229-1/2 acres in Nelson county, Ky., sold at auction for $13,005.76.

IN PRAISE OF THE COW

Our modern farm management may have degraded the home from its former position, but it has given additional honor to the cow. Milk has come to be one of the necessities of our time, in city as well as in country. Cows have had some place in poetry and other literature, but they deserve some more attention for the part they have played in building up our civilization. I will leave to others the cow on the dairy farm, where old Bossy is made to fit into a scheme of specialized farming; I want to talk about the cow on the farm, where all sorts of occupations have sway. From the earliest settled abodes of man the cow has been a valued animal, contributing to the life and happiness of savage and barbarian and civilized man. After the days of pioneering in any part of America the sure sign of permanence was the arrival of the cow; then there would be a continuous supply of food, a care for the cow and her calves, a building up of a livestock industry that betokened permanence of life and food supply.

Some one ought to collect the names of cows in Kentucky. Each one would reveal some traditional or neighborhood way of doing things, some bails that shows racial origin or cultural background. Cows, like the old family names, soon are called "dead," regardless of their age. After a few years they seem to have been a part of the farm life since time immemorial. Successive calves often bore the names of their mothers, but there was any effort to establish proper ancestry for cows as well as for people.

When the uncultivated areas were still unenclosed, it was a great sight to see the cows of a whole neighborhood wandering in their unlimited pasture. Only recently I had to slow down my car in some mountain counties to keep from hitting some cows on the range. To keep up well, Bossy was put a bell on her, a practice that may still be observed, even when the cows run on the owner's pasture. The notes of the various bells have been celebrated over and over, but not too much for me. I cannot help regretting somehow that I seldom see cows roving around in the older times.

Milking time had its unpleasant features, especially in fly time and also in severe winter. But in fly time we could build smudge fires of chips and help allay some of the agony of old Bossy while Big Sister or Mother milked her. Then there was the call to rope off a job that Dr. Gunesalus, president of a great art institute, once declared was not only the essence of poetry but also the very making of a boy. He even went so far as to say that every boy needed the thrill of roping off a calf and that every boy needed the thrill of roping off a calf and that it ought to be made possible for every boy to do so. That may be going a little far, but it was great sport any way.

The cow as a domestic institution is here to stay for a long time, let us hope, even though as the years pass, it may be more and more common for the cow to be concentrated on a few areas rather than a part of every home. But the poetic cows were those that were almost a part of the household, like the cow in Burn's "Cotter's Saturday Night," which was chewing her cud beyond the partition separating the kitchen and her stall.

So You Think!

by Noel B. Cuff, Ph.D.
PROFESSOR OF PSYCHOLOGY
EASTERN TEACHERS COLLEGE
RICHMOND, KENTUCKY

DO YOU WANT TO BE NORMAL? You should be abnormal. For proof, read the five descriptions given below of normal people.

1. Please do not get shocked too soon, but normal people are usually extremely stupid. Behold the average men drafted into our army during the World War; after all who were known to be incapacitated by feeble mindedness, by insanity, or by flat feet had been rejected, they had an average mental age of 13 years.
2. Let us look too at the emotional or neurotic make-up of normal men. Nearly 100,000 individuals will pay about $1,000.00 to see a white man and a negro attempt to knock each other into insensibility, and untold millions will thrill at the raw details given over the radio. Sight-seers swarm into a courtroom to hear the gory details about a murder or some other dastardly crime and laugh as if they consider it a good show.
3. In spite of mental and emotional bankruptcy, normal people may be decent if they are morally sound. Your newspaper regularly tells you the story as to how they misbehave. You will find juicy morsels about infidelity, divorce, and other subjects which are cruder than many stories of demoralization in history, surely such conditions would have made the Egyptians blush.
4. Yes, you are correct if you think the social, financial, and recreational life of the average person is downright pathetic. He is married; has two and one-third children; secures about $1,000 a year; owns three-fourths of an automobile; has one-half of a radio; smokes ten cigarettes a day (unless his wife smokes); in which case he smokes only two; has one-fourth a membership in some religious organization; and buys one-half of a book each year.

So the advice to be "normal" seems shocking absurd to me. There is no hope and no excuse for despair to sink to such a low level. Surely the great leaders, the great entertainers, and the geniuses of today would be called normal. I am convinced that it is stupidity which makes people think of abnormality with horror and which causes them to want to be normal.

An apple is nearly always an acceptable addition to the school lunch. The grown boy or girl also will welcome hot cocoa or milk in a thermos bottle. Salads or puddings may be placed in small jars and carried conveniently.

58 YEARS AGO AT SPARTA
Mrs. M. Kelly and son left Saturday to visit friends in Walton.

Colonel J. W. Bryan and wife passed through our city Saturday enroute to Owenston.

Joseph V. Clark (of tobacco fame) is fast shipping his tobacco East—to Quincy, Illinois, New York and Ohio.

Sunday morning Eagle Creek was higher than has been known for a number of years, the back-water on the pike in front of A. D. Mason's house being four and a half to five feet deep, and four feet of water in front of Thomas Berry's house. Tom, though, loudly exclaiming he was a brother of Boyton, and calmly stood the flood. Great fears were entertained in regard to our county bridge, as the water came near reaching the trestle work. A great deal of fencing was destroyed along the creek—Wm. Bailey losing 40 to 50 panels of fence. Sol Ellis lost 20 to 30 panels of fence on the farm lately purchased of Mrs. Sallie Chambers and sister—Saturday, December 11, 1880.

58 YEARS AGO AT GLENCOE
J. P. Williams is visiting friends at Napoleon.

Miss Nannie Thomas left for her home in Henry county this week. H. B. Crouch has purchased about one hundred thousand pounds of tobacco and there are several more buyers who have not bought so much. Scott Noel, Oscar Stephens and Alfred Kemper are also extensive buyers. Prices range from 10 cents upward and there is quite an amount yet unsold in this section.

PERSONAL RIGHTS AND WHERE THEY END

LESSON TEXT—Ecclesiastes 2:1-3, 10, 11; Romans 6:17-23; 14:21.
GOLDEN TEXT—What shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?—Romans 6:15.

"Personal liberty"—what endless misuse was made of that expression in the days when men seeking the right to again flood this country with intoxicating liquors were attacking prohibition. One would think that some of our political leaders and our newspaper editors would blush for shame when they see what has now been accomplished in the name of personal liberty.

My liberty ends, as someone has well said, where yours begins. I have the personal right to swing my arms as far as the tip of your nose, but there my liberty ends. All of life is, and necessarily must be, built on that principle. For the Christian there is an even higher measure of responsibility—his relationship to God and his consequent heart interest in the welfare of his fellow men.

Our Scripture portions for today present a sharp contrast. Man without God, but with every earthly advantage is pictured in Ecclesiastes in his fruitless search for real joy. Then man as the glad bond-slave of Jesus Christ is spoken of in Romans as truly free and joyful.

I. The Way of Emptiness and Disappointment (Eccles. 2:1-3, 10, 11).
1. Physical pleasures do not satisfy (Eccles. 2:1-3). Men who have tasted the distress and disappointment of life are prone to think that if they only had all the money they wanted, and an opportunity to partake of life's "thrills" they would be happy. Solomon had everything. He deliberately set himself to prove the pleasures of this world. He planned to "enjoy" intoxicants—drinking it "with wisdom"—that is, not in a drunken debauch that would bring remorse. Note it, you who advocate the moderate use of alcohol (whatever that may be). Solomon found it to be only vain emptiness. (See Prov. 23:31, 36.)

What is true of wine is also true of the attempt to satisfy oneself by gratification of any physical appetite. Those who live for the pleasures of the flesh can reap only corruption (Gal. 6:8). The hectic search for such satisfaction by countless men and women today reveals that they, like Solomon, cannot find it. If they did, they would cease their wild searching. It just is not there.

2. Pleasures of the mind do not satisfy (Eccles. 2:10, 11). Solomon sought real joy in labor, in accomplishing worthy ends. There is a satisfaction in work well done, but real joy is only lasting when the doing of the work is for the glory of God. Work for its own sake—yes, even wisdom for its own sake (Eccles. 1:12-18)—not enough to satisfy the soul of man. The great poet Goethe, who set himself to enjoy the higher pleasures of life—art, science, and literature—came to his seventy-fifth year to testify that he had "never had four weeks of genuine pleasure." Satisfaction is not in the pleasures of the aesthetic nature.

II. The Way of Victory, Peace, and True Joy (Rom. 6:17-23; 14:21).
We say with Paul "God be thanked" that there is a way for men to find freedom from the sin and disappointment of life. It comes by

1. Personal allegiance to God (Rom. 6:17-23). Clear thinking on spiritual matters recognizes that the man who boasts of his personal liberty, his freedom from God's control over his life is in reality the slave of sin (vv. 17-19; Titus 3:3). On the other hand, the one who is a willing bondslave of Jesus Christ is free. The way of victory and peace is to yield to God, even as the way of defeat and disappointment is to yield to sin. The first way leads to joy in this life and eternal fellowship with God. The other way results in ultimate ghastly disillusionment—this life and eternal spiritual death and separation from God.

2. Recognized responsibility for others (Rom. 14:21). It should not take two minutes of intelligent consideration for any man to understand that "none of us liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself" (Rom. 14:7). Yet that is the obvious assumption under which men live, leaving behind them not only their own wrecked lives, but carrying along in the stream of their personal influence their acquaintances, friends and members of their families.

The principle stated in Romans 14:21 should govern all of our actions. Paul was speaking of meat offered to idols, which he could have eaten with a clear conscience. But if he ate it someone else would be caused to stumble, and he was rather willing to do without it as long as he lived. One wonders what would happen in the Christian world if every professed follower of Christ would thus evaluate not only the use of intoxicants but also his every personal habit.

To keep nut kernels from becoming rancid, keep them in an airtight container in a cool, dry place away from light. The flavor of nuts is largely dependent on the oils they contain, and these oils must be kept from becoming rancid.

Cheaper and cleaner eggs are produced if the flock is confined in an airtight container in the afternoon, and all day when the weather is bad. A warm moist mash is fed about noon each day encourages production. Three pounds per 100 hens is sufficient.

No. 14 wire was once used almost exclusively for residence branch circuits, but owing to the increasing variety of electrical appliances used in the home, No. 12 wire is recommended. Ranges, water heaters and some motors require larger wires.

November and December are preferred over spring for setting peach trees, although spring planting does well in most years. Buy either year-old peach trees or June buds, and never accept two or three-year-old trees.

A stove usually represents a long-time investment. Therefore, it pays to buy the best material, the best design and the best construction that one can afford. In order to get dividends in the form of long service and efficient performance.

BOONE COUNTY ACP NEWS

Tobacco growers are urged to secure their 1938 and 1937 tobacco sales bills for use in establishing their 1938 tobacco marketing quotas. 1075 of Boone County's 1400 farms cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation program have been checked by field supervisors for 1938 bene fit performance. The field work is expected to be completed in two weeks.

The tobacco acreage on all farms must be checked before a 1938 to bacco marketing allotment card can be issued. The 1938 tobacco marketing allotment will be based mainly on two important factors—(1) The acreage grown this year and (2) The average yield per acre sold from the farm during the past three years. Land labor, equipment and special consideration for small allotments will also be included. This means that farms growing tobacco but not cooperating in the A. C. Program will need to have a report on the 1938 acres of tobacco grown.

Farmers normally growing more than eight acres of wheat, but not selling more than 100 bushels on the market, were notified of their 1938-39 wheat acreage allotments the past week. This statement included only the acreage to be harvested in 1938 without deductions for ACP payments.

Commercial growers have not been notified of their 1938 wheat acreage allotments because the county committee is contesting that the allotment is too low.

Colorful Coat Hanger

A grand gift for any woman is a dress hanger with a crocheted cover. It not only keeps dresses from slipping, and protects them from dirt, but it means there is no chance of rough edges tearing clothes. This one is crocheted of a past cotton. Directions may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope, and an extra three cent stamp, enclosing this clipping to THE CROCHET BUREAU of the Walton Advertiser, Walton, Ky. These Muffin Recipes Belong Whit Your Hot Bread Formulas.

By MARIE GIBSON.

Courier-Journal Food Editor.

Now that kitchens are cooler there is no excuse for not having hot breads with everyday meals. Muffins or rolls can make a party dinner out of an ordinary one; hot biscuits can put the head of the house into a good humor even on the gloomiest fall day, and hot bread with dates can insure the success of almost any luncheon.

When adding dried fruits or nut to muffin batter it is best to reserve a little of the flour from the recipe for dredging. This will distribute evenly through the batter.

When chopping the fruit use the kitchen shears, dipping them into a glass of water occasionally so that they will not stick.

And always remember—sift the flour once before measuring.

BRAN GEMS

One cup flour, one teaspoon soda, one-third teaspoon salt, one-third cup brown sugar, one cup bran, one egg or two yolks, one cup milk, three teaspoons fat melted.

Mix ingredients. Beat for one minute. Half-fill greased muffin pans. Bake for fifteen minutes in moderate oven.

Egg Muffins

Three cups pastry flour, six teaspoons baking powder, four tablespoons cornmeal, one-third cup, granulated sugar, one-third teaspoon salt, two egg yolks, one and one-half cups milk, two egg whites, beaten; five tablespoons fat, melted. Mix dry ingredients. Add yolks and milk. Beat for one minute. Add the rest of the ingredients and mix lightly. Half-fill greased muffin pans and bake for fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

Cornmeal Bran Muffins

Three tablespoons shortening, one-fourth cup sugar, one egg, one and one-half cups milk, one cup all-bran, three-fourths cup cornmeal, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt, four and one-half teaspoons baking powder.

breeding into the three groups of superior, good, and acceptable.

There also will be a dressed bird class, in which carcasses will be judged and graded according to U. S. Government grades.

GRANT FARMERS TAKE TO SOIL IMPROVEMENT

Farmers in Grant county, Kentucky, have done as much in soil improvement in the past three years as they did in the previous 30 years, according to County Agent Robert Hume. The agricultural conservation program, he says, has been highly effective in promoting the use of lime, phosphate, cover crops and other improved practices.

Until 1936, only about 600 tons of limestone were used in the county annually. That year farmers spread about 9,000 tons, and in 1937 about the same amount. Phosphate was used entirely for depleting crops prior to 1937. In 1938 a total of 30 tons were used on conserving crops, and in 1937 the figure jumped to 200 tons. This year Mr. Hume estimates that 300 tons of 47 percent phosphate were used on alfalfa and grass land.

FOOT ROT TROUBLE SOME AMONG KENTUCKY SHEEP

Numerous reports are being received at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington of the presence of foot rot in Kentucky sheep this year.

The wet season, increased numbers of the sheep, and the rather extensive purchase of sheep are thought to have something to do with the prevalence of the disease. Sheep that pass through stockyards sometimes pick up foot rot.

It is recommended that sheep be kept in quarantine after they are brought on the farm, in order to determine whether they have foot rot. Some farmers give all purchased sheep as they are brought on the farm. This consists of standing the animals in a solution of bluestone, the same as is used to treat the disease after it has appeared.

The first sign of foot rot is slight lameness. The diseased feet are swollen and warm. Badly affected animals walk on three legs or lie down most of the time. Those having foot rot in the front feet frequently rest on the knees while grazing.

The solution used for treating foot rot consists of dissolving 34 pound of bluestone (copper sulfate) in 10 gallons of water.

In the average well-drained pasture, the disease does not persist through winter, but in swampy or wet land it may carry over from one season to the next.

Fire in Mayfield, Ky., caused $30,000 damages to two business concerns.

TO PRESENT KENTUCKY NATIVE CULTURE AT NATIONAL CONVENTION

Kentucky's native culture will be presented to young people and farm leaders from throughout the United States when they gather Nov. 1-5 at the University of Kentucky at Lexington for the annual meeting of the American Country Life Association. This is the first time the association has met in this state.

David Donoho, of the Breathitt county schools at Jackson, will talk "Developing the Rural Area" at a luncheon Thursday, Nov. 3. He will discuss work in the rural arts in the county he represents. "The culture in Agriculture" will be the subject of a luncheon Friday, Nov. 4, at the same luncheon. Dr. Van de Wall is professor of music education at the University of Kentucky and director of the Carnegie Community of Music.

Other subjects of wide import will be taken up at the meeting. One of the most significant will be a discussion on "The American Farmer and the International Situation" by Dr. Chris L. Christensen of the University of Wisconsin. What about markets for American goods? Can we sell to foreign countries without also buying from them? How would a war affect the situation? These questions may be dealt with by this Wisconsin educator.

Problems have received more attention recently than that of producer-consumer relations. How much can and should consumers pay for a given product? Can they pay high prices very long unless wages and salaries receive a proportionate boost? What is fair return for the producer? What part does speculation play in raising prices to the ultimate consumer? Murray D. Lincoln, of the Ohio Farm Bureau, is to take up the whole problem of "Producer-Consumer Relations" at a dinner closing sessions.

Dr. William J. Hutchins, president of Berea College, will be on an evening program to consider "Programs for Rural Improvement in Appalachia." On the same program will be President Frank Meyer of the University of Kentucky, who will report on "Rural Statesmanship in the South."

The national picture as to people on farm and in city will receive the attention of Louis H. Bean of the United States Department of Agriculture. Practical programs for improvement will be presented by Dr. E. L. Hummel of Virginia. A panel discussion on the subject will be led by Dr. Carl C. Taylor, noted sociologist and author within that field who is on the United States Department of Agriculture staff.

The convention will be held in the Memorial Building at the University of Kentucky, and will be attended by hundreds of Kentucky farm men and women, and agricultural leaders, sociologists, religious workers, educators and other persons interested in rural life.

RED CLOVER SEED THRESHED FIRST TIME IN YEARS

Red clover seed was threshed in Boone County this fall for the first time in several years. Some of the men threshing seed were: Reuben Kirtley, of near Hamilton; T. W. Rice and Dr. R. C. Garrison, of Burlington and E. J. Ayler and J. C. Ayler, of Hebron. Growers reported yields of from one to two bushels per acre.

Experimental work shows that failure to use adapted varieties is one of the greatest causes of crop failure. It would probably pay many Boone County farmers to secure good Kentucky adapted strains of clover and produce seed for market. Farmers could profitably pay from one and a half to two times as much for known adapted seed as for seed of unknown adapted qualities.

PROFIT IN BEEF CATTLE

In demonstrations in low-cost beef production, Montgomery county farmers cooperating with County Agent Floyd McDaniel put gains on cattle for 46 cents to 51 cents a pound. This was accomplished by a winter ration of silage, cottonseed meal and hay, and a half ration of grain for 60 days on pasture during the summer. Excellent grazing of mixtures of grass and legumes helped produce rapid gains and shorten the feeding period.

EXPLAIN BY OCC MAN USE OF SAW AND AXE

The correct use of saw and axe is the key to the problem of growing timber profitably as a farm crop, according to Ward T. Darnell, of the Soil Conservation Service area near Walton, Kentucky.

By removing diseased, mishapen, slow-growing, and other undesirable trees for fuel wood this fall, farmers can improve their woodland, increase their rate of growth of remaining trees and still maintain a complete forest cover for water storage and erosion control, Mr. Darnell pointed out.

On the other hand, clear cutting of a portion of the woodland to obtain fuel wood not only exposes the land to erosion, but also destroys valuable trees that should be saved for a future timber crop.

Under the crop trees method of woodland management which is being demonstrated on cooperating farms in the local area, the straightest and most vigorous trees, properly spaced, are marked to designate that they are to be left as crop trees. Other trees can then be cut as they crowd the crop trees and as needed for fuel, farm number, or other wood products.

By periodic thinnings the rate of growth of the remaining trees and the quality of timber can be improved, giving the farmer a greater return from his wood products and a greater incentive to protect his forest cover from damage by fire and grazing.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

A Warren county homemaker's chorus will sing at the meeting of the National Home Demonstration Council at Lexington, November 1-3. Lloyd Collier, a Marshall county farmer, raised a litter of pigs to weigh 2,069 pounds in 166 days.

Phosphate demonstrations in Union county include sowing meadow fescue, tall oat grass, bromegrass, Canada bluegrass and Italian ryegrass.

Ninety head of ewes were added to Wayne county flocks last month.

Improvement Noted
Pushes State Trade

With the advent of cooler weather retail trade throughout the country swung into line with the general forward movement of business, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from 37 key cities, for the past week, just received by its Louisville District Office. Industrial activity increased more than seasonally, and there was a new note of encouragement in expanding order for railroad equipment. Employment and building construction continued to improve, automobile assemblies were again advanced, and steel mills actively expanded. Wholesale trade, backed by stronger pressure from retail sources, continued its moderate advancement. In retail trade, practically all cities registered gains over the recent unseasonably warm weeks. Louisville, Denver, Washington and Seattle reported their business about even with last year's comparative and several cities registered increases. Wholesale markets generally broadened out, and while there was no exceptionally active business, an encouraging factor was the increased inclination to place future commitments.

Louisville reported that department store sales continued to increase, bringing retail trade to the level of 1937 figures. Wholesale volume was steady. Manufacturing operations, though still 5 to 12 per cent under a year ago, were on the upgrade.

WPA rolls in Kentucky dropped 1.196 during first two weeks of October, for absorption into private employment.

Louisville bank clearings decreased 3 per cent from year ago. Bank debts to individual accounts in Louisville for September were 4 per cent above August figures compared with a 3 per cent gain in the index for entire United States.

General rains were beneficial to tobacco and permitted curing under more favorable conditions.

Large tobacco storage warehouse, with capacity of 3,000 bushels, is under turn in coal business.

Boone ACP Communities To Hold Elections Starting November 8New ACP Plans Call for Re-districting of County
In Five Sub-Communities

Boone County ACP communities will hold their 1938-39 committee election beginning the week of November 7, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The newly elected officers will not take office until completion of the 1938 AAA tobacco marketing quota work.

The number of communities in all probability will be cut from six to five under the new plan but not more than one community will be used for each 300 farmers. New changes in community set-ups include the election of a delegate and alternate, who will represent the community in a county convention for the election of the county committee. There will also be elected a community chairman, a vice-chairman, a third member and a first and second alternate committee member. The chairman of the community committee may also be the delegate to the county convention.

The effectiveness of the county association depends on the election of good, honest and substantial committeemen who will capably serve their farmers. Boone county farmers in the past have done a splendid job of electing capable committeemen who have generously given of their best. It is expected our farmers will continue this policy.

BOONE COUNTY TO RECEIVE GRANT

Approval of a Works Progress Administration grant of $30,000 for a new school building in Burlington was announced Monday by D. H. Norris, Superintendent of Boone County Public schools. The new school, to house eight class rooms and an auditorium, will cost approximately $70,000, Norris stated.

A site for the structure has not been selected. It will replace the present building, a part of which was constructed in 1910, with an auditorium and three class rooms being added in 1927.

Contract bids for the construction work have not been let, it was announced Wednesday.

Congratulations...

Know Your County ...

Special Historical Edition of Walton Advertiser Will Tell the Past and Present Day Story of Boone County in Words and Pictures.

The Walton Advertiser has made arrangements with experienced men to publish a tabloid magazine supplement with an issue in December covering the history of Boone county from its inception in 1788 to the present day. The early churches, the schools, governments and people are to be related in a graphic style that all will wish to read and keep for future generations.

The editorial task and gigantic undertaking of the publication of this historical tabloid has been entrusted to Mr. E. D. Sargent, newspaper historian and world traveler, who has been recommended to the publisher by the other publishers with whom he has had similar experience in the Walton, the largest city in the county has shared with the growth of the county from stage coach days on the old Lexington trail to a thriving city served by two railroads, big class bus service and business houses on a par with neighboring cities, as well as a growing group of high-class Kentucky citizenry.

Cooperation of the residents and concerns is particularly gratifying, proving the interest aroused by the publication of such a collection of county history. Educators and clergy are particularly interested in the general public story of our struggles and perseverance put forth by the pioneers of the community to assume future generations a suitable place in which to establish homes.

Progenitors were no more interested than we are in leaving something worth while and an accounting of our efforts.

Mr. Sargent will be glad to meet you and learn of the many interesting things regarding the early day of your community.

Rotary Club Is Organized Here
With Twenty-Two Charter MembersMeetings Will Be Held Each Thursday At Noon

The organization of a Rotary Club in Walton became a reality Thursday evening, October 27, at a meeting of the business and professional men of the city. The project was sponsored by the Erlanger Rotary Club, through two of its officers, R. D. Martin, president, and R. C. McNay, secretary.

O. O. (June) Thompson, former governor of the 18th district was the chief speaker of the evening. His addresses were given by Mr. Martin, Mr. McNay and C. R. Ransler, representative of the Covington Rotary Club.

The following officers and directors were elected: Walter D. Vest, president and director; Chas. Thompson, vice-president and director; Robt. Darling, secretary and director; W. F. Coop, treasurer and director; C. S. Vallandigham, sergeant-at-arm and director; A. H. Gaines, director, and Dr. D. L. Madrox, director. Other members are P. R. Conrad, Bert Schneider, R. M. Hall, Jess Hoppert, James Falls, Leonard Cook, Otto Readnow, V. D. James, Ray, Jack Ervin, Dr. Francis E. Bedinger, John L. Vest, R. C. Brubaker, D. L. Lusby, Wallace K. Gruffe, and C. Scott Chambers.

Meetings will be held at 12 o'clock noon on Thursday of each week, beginning November 3, at Stephens Restaurant on Main Street.

Charter Night, a feature of acceptance into Rotary International, will be held some time in the near future.

DENOMINATIONAL INSTITUTE AT FLORENCE-BAPTIST CHURCH

A cordial invitation has been extended the public by the members of the Florence Baptist church to attend the Denominational Institute to be held at the church Monday, Nov. 7, to Friday night, Nov. 11, inclusive. Services will begin at 7:30 P. M. Eastern Time.

Outstanding ministers of the Denomination will be present to deliver the feature addresses which will concern various phases of the Institute's work.

In effort to give our readers the best paper possible, the publishers of the Advertiser have been forced to leave out many important items for the last few weeks. Please bear with us until we can get the Advertiser up to twelve pages. Correspondents are requested to send in their names for a new supply of Stationery.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL
INSTALLS PROJECTOR

The New Haven school recently purchased a new projector for use in classroom instruction and entertainment. It is the sound on film type similar to the usual movie.

Films are being booked by the various teachers to supplement their teaching units.

The first entertainment feature will be given Friday, November 4, in the form of a ten seat show. Short features will also be shown.

And The Lilacs
Bloom Again

"Is Lilac Time in Dixie?" For evidence the Advertiser insists that nature lovers doubling this second crop on the same bush in one season, call at our office and see the proof which was graciously donated by James Bollington of the town Police force, or visit Mrs. Alfred Stephens-front yard on High Street.

The unusually fair weather that has extended into the fall months is given as the reason for this freak of nature.

Other reports, though unconfirmed, state that several crops of violets are making their second appearance of the season... all good material for a Kentucky trade advertisement for northern tourists.

BELLEVIEW WINS OVER
BOB AND GENE TEAM

Belleview made it one up on Bob and Gene in the Northern Kentucky Amateur Baseball Association play off series Sunday at the Crescent Springs park when they unslashed a heavy attack in the first and sixth innings off "Bink" Shinkle, starting moundman for the Crescent nine. The final score was 10 to 6.

Belleview opened the first with four runs on a walk, an error, a single and a mighty home run by Al Hitzfeld. Pop and Gene came (Continued on page eight)

Enroute to Casey County

Daniel Roon, 11, 1115 Spring St., Cincinnati, and John Pruitt, 14, Cleves didn't get far on their runaway trip to Casey county to "visit their cousin" Tuesday. The two youths left their homes early Tuesday morning and by sunset had progressed on their route to the Cabin restaurant, Devon, Ky., when Harold Callen noticed them attempting to thumb a ride. Callen persuaded the youths to remain at the restaurant while he contacted young Roon's father, Albert Roon, who returned them to their homes.

The parents were notified through Radio Station "X", Covington, Ky.

Many other democratic officials of state and national recognition have been invited and may attend J. P. Brothers, club president, announced today.

Ticket sales for the banquet have exceeded expectations, the committee in charge announced. Dinner will be served by the Parent-Teachers Association of the Florence School.

TO CELEBRATE 10th ANNIVERSARY SALE

Announcing the opening of a Great Tenth Anniversary Sale at The Jobbers Outlet, Celebrating 10 years of progress, 10 years of unmatched value giving that made the Jobbers Outlet stores the most popular shopping centers in Northern Kentucky.

In today's Advertiser appears a large ad of this great 10th Anniversary Sale, but, the gigantic preparations and the unusual concessions obtained from the fore-most manufacturers in New York, would warrant pages and pages of publicity with prices in big type. However, Mr. Gershan assures the buying public that he couldn't begin to mention all of the wonderful bargains now offered during this great 10th Anniversary Sale.

Ten years ago Mr. Gershan started the Jobbers Outlet store at 13th and Greenup St., Covington, and three years, later, by popular demand was compelled to open a large store at 6th St. and Madison Ave., now considered one of Covington's busiest stores.

Final Drive to Carry Democratic Candidates
To Victory November 8

With football and national political battles vying for the nation's news spotlight, Kentucky Democratic campaign chiefs, this week are laying plans for a final drive calculated to carry to victory their state of a senator and nine congressmen in the general elections to be held November 8.

The highlight of the week is an address for the Democratic ticket by Gov. A. B. Chandler, Thursday night at Newport. J. Ham Lewis, pictureque Senator from Illinois, will share honors with Senator Alben W. Barkley, candidate for the Kentucky Senate post at a Third District rally to be held Thursday night in Louisville. Senator Lewis' visit is in the nature of a return call, Senator Barkley having spoken in Illinois for the Democratic standard bearers of that state early last week.

State Democratic Campaign Chairman Shackelford Miller, Jr., said that he is stressing to his aids the importance of getting every Democrat eligible to vote to the polls next Tuesday. While Mr. Miller would not predict the size of the Democratic majority he expressed the belief that it would be more than substantial.

"We are fully confident of victory next Tuesday," asserted Mr. Miller, "the size of our majority will be in direct ratio to the number of Kentuckians that go to the polls on that day."

Bearcats Lose Opener
To CCC Quintet

The Walton Bearcats fell before a "giant" local CCC quintet Wednesday night by a 40 to 30 score. The game was scheduled as a practice tilt to "get the team in the pink" for their 1938-39 schedule which includes some of the strongest teams in northern Kentucky.

The Bearcats got off to a slow start and were never able to overcome the range lays of Uncle Sam "Senator" Sims McCroxy, diminutive guard was the chief offensive strength for the Bearcats. Chapman and McClure, veterans of last year's team, displayed little of the speed and accuracy that they showed last season but enough to spread optimism among local followers. Darnell, pivot man, Pennington and Ransler also gave evidence of developing into good performers.

COUNTY SCHOOLS TO CLOSE FOR N. K. E. A.

Boone county schools will be closed Thursday and Friday, November 10-11 for the Northern Kentucky Education Association meeting. Many of the school principals and teachers have announced their intention of attending the meet.

THE DEVIL'S 14 POINT FOR KILLING A CHURCH

What would you take for your interest in the churches of our town? Well, you say, I would not sell out, but by your absence you are selling out or giving away your most valuable possession. The fact is indicated by only 300 attending the three churches last Sunday. Where were the 700? Were you one of that NUMBER?

The Devil's Fourteen points for killing a church.

1. Don't come.
2. If you do come, come late.
3. When you come, come with a groan.
4. "What do I get out of this?"
5. Never accept an office. It is better to stay outside and criticize.
6. Visit other churches about half of the time to show your pastor that you are not tied to him. There is nothing like independence.
7. Let the pastor earn his money; let him do all the work.
8. Sit pretty well back and never sing. If you have to sing, sing out of tune and behind everybody else.
9. Never pay in advance, especially for religion. Wait until you get your money's worth, and then wait a bit longer.
10. Never encourage the preacher; if you like the sermon, keep mum about it. Many a preacher has been ruined by flattery. Don't let his blood be upon your head.
11. It is good to tell your pastor's failings to any stranger that may happen in; they might be a long time finding it out.
12. Of course you cannot be expected to get new members for the church with such a pastor as he is.
13. If your church unfortunately happens to be harmonious, call it apathy or indifference, or lack of zeal or anything under the sun except what it is.
14. If there happens to be a few zealous workers in the church, make

HOSPITAL SERVICE TO GET CERTIFICATE

Mr. Sol Youtsey, Secretary of the Hospital Service Association of Kentucky, and Superintendent of Speers Hospital, states that while there are seventy or more cities that have Hospital Service Associations, that only 40 of these meet the principal requirements of the American Medical Association, that is, that they be non-profit community organizations, and that the Board of Trustees of each participating hospital have representatives of the public, the Medical Society and the hospital.

Mr. Youtsey further states that the Hospital Service Association of Northern Kentucky having complied with the above and the other 14 requirements necessary, have been promised an official certificate for next meeting.

Lesson for November 6

HONORING OUR PARENTS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:12: Luke 14:28, John 19:26, 27; Ephesians 6:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God gives thee.—Exodus 20:12.

The splendid obedience of parents to their children has been pointed out as one of the remarkable developments of modern life. No, we have not made a mistake in writing or in typesetting. We mean just what we say—the obedience of parents to their children. In all too many homes God's order has been reversed and instead of honoring and obeying their parents, children (both young and old) have taken the place of "boss," and mother and father must obey if they want peace and rest.

The need for our lesson of today is both great and acute. The future happiness of hundreds of thousands of children (Eph. 6:3) and the present welfare of thousands of neglected and worn-ridden parents will depend on the intelligence and faithfulness with which this lesson is taught in our churches, and the honesty of heart with which men and women study and receive its truth.

I. The Command of God (Exod. 20:12).

The first and most important consideration in the study of this lesson is what is the mind and will of the Maker of all things regarding this matter of the relation between parents and children? His words are plain—we are to "honor" our fathers and our mothers.

The word "honor" carries with it a great many things, but perhaps the three outstanding elements are respect, obedience, and affection. We should look up to them with high regard, obey them as long as they have the authority over us, and show true affection for them.

II. The Example of Jesus (Luke 2:46-52).

The fact that Jesus was God manifest in the flesh and that He was the Son of God, does not diminish the glory of His conduct. He who is divine presents an example of obedience and consideration both as boy and man which we do well to emulate.

1. As a boy (Luke 2:46-52). The boy Jesus, increasing "in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man" (v. 52) had come to His twelfth year, and with His parents had gone up to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover. There moved in His heart the conviction that He must now be about His Father's business—an altogether proper and commendable purpose but one which resulted for the moment in separation from His parents.

This was far more serious than a physical separation, for we read that they did not understand Him (v. 50). This indeed are the consequences of our failure to understand our children. Notice, however, that Jesus did not withdraw Himself from their watch care, nor refuse to obey them even though they failed to understand Him. Equally tragic are the results of hasty and bitter separations brought about by the disobedience of children.

2. As a man (John 19:26, 27). The value of our lesson will be greatly reduced if we see only the responsibility of children while they are young. We are the children of our parents as long as we and they live. Being grown up and having a family of one's own does not relieve one of the precious responsibility of care for one's parents. Jesus was dying on the cross. His brethren apparently still regarded Him in unbelief, and His mother now needed a son to care for her. Even in His dying agony Jesus remembers to commit her to the care of His beloved disciple John. One must marvel at the carelessness and hardness of heart that will permit men and women who have time and money for everything else and yet will neglect their aged parents and even shunt them off into a public institution for care. Notice the promise that accompanies the command of God (Exod. 20:12; Eph. 6:3). If that is the reward of those who do right, what do you think will be the punishment of those who disobey God?

III. The Admonition of Paul (Eph. 6:1-4).

This matter of honoring and obeying parents "is right," says Paul. It is the Lord's way. Only if parents command their children to do wickedness would there be ground for disobedience to parents. Apart from such circumstances every parent has the right to expect the child's obedience.

There is tremendously important truth on the other side of the picture. Parents are not to provoke their children to anger, to disrespect or disobedience. How much we need God's grace at that point. It is too easy to say and do things that needlessly irritate our children. It is so convenient to nag at a careless child. Often we expect more of them than their age will justify. We are apt to punish them in a spirit of anger or revenge and thus to destroy the value of discipline. May God help us, who are parents, that we may take to heart this part of our lesson. Our children are our most valuable possession.

A COLUMN FROM THE PAST

Fifty-Eight Years Ago In Our Neighboring Communities . . . From the Warsaw Independent

The Advertiser is indebted this week to Wm. F. Ames, Berea, Ohio, for the pleasant reminiscences of days long gone.

IN THE SPRING OF 1881

The large tobacco warehouse, a two story building and owned by Henry Crouch and operated by him for the purchasing and drying tobacco for market. The building was owned and built by James Howard and sold to Mr. Crouch's company on the night early spring of the above date. It was discovered on fire and burnt to apparatus at hand. Many prized hogheads of dried tobacco were stored in it at the time of the fire, which was covered by insurance. Later there many fires in the town of Glencoe and always at night, which was always confined to barns or empty houses, supposedly due to men gambling or playing poker, and for a time it seemed Glencoe was doomed to be burnt out.

IN THE SPRING OF 1883

The wooden covered bridge over Eagle Creek at Glencoe, Ky., was washed off its foundation and lodged some distance below in the timber.

AT THE JAMES

Another big week of entertainment will be shown at the James Theatre. On Friday night, "Three Loves Has Nancy" will be sponsored by Walton. Verona school. You will enjoy this picture starring Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone. Miss Gaynor as a small-town girl, plays one of her unsophisticated roles against a background of glamour and ultra-modern sophistication. Tone joins with Montgomery in providing the comedy situations.

Saturday night "Sons of the Legion" with Lynne Overman, Evelyn Keyes, Donald O'Connor, comes to thrill you with a heart-throbbing story of the sons of yesterday's hero's. The heroes of today's Youth asks no quarter in this tense, emotional drama about a father who couldn't fall . . . because his sons would not let him.

"Campus Confessions" on Sunday afternoon and evening will chase away your blues. It's the college campus thru a keyhole with Betty Grable, Eleanor Whitney, William Henry Fritz Feld, and "Hank" Luster. It's the screamin', steamrolling story of life at college today . . . what they do when they steal a little woo . . . why some guys are poisoned apples . . . why some deans are droops . . . how the wind and muscle guys get by . . . and you're been waiting to see "Hank" Luster play basketball ! ! !

Joe E. Brown in "Gladiator" on Monday, makes that a real family bargain night.

"The mysterious rider" with Douglas Dumbrille, Sidney Toler and others will give you real entertainment Tuesday. Adapted from Zane Grey's novel, you will like this picture. Ride the trail to adventure and excitement with the masked avenger of the plains! He deals out justice with blazing death in each hand.

"The Adventures of Robin Hood" is to be shown on Wednesday. A repeat show by popular demand, you just won't want to miss seeing this picture starring Errol Flynn and O. DeHavilland.

On Thursday, the biggest treat of all, "Listen, Darling" with Fredric March and Judy Garland, that youngest star-team in modern rollicking romance! A story as warmly human as the Hardy family series! Two kids of the sort you've known . . . and loved! Gay young laughter . . . brave young love . . . in a tender story of today!

Be sure to attend your local theatre, where you can make the most of your spare time in a recreation that gives you the best for your money.

In Memory of Raymond W. Beverly Who Departed This Life Nov. 1, 1937 Though his voice we no longer hear, Nor have his sweet smile to dry our tear.

Yet will his memory in our hearts linger on, Though from our presence he surely has gone, We must believe, "Our Lord Knoweth Best," For we know our dear "Bev" is "At Rest," And some day if we like Him shall be We'll see him again in Eternity.

BARKLEY-SPENCE

The Standard Bearers of Northern Kentucky Voters
RE-ELECT THESE TWO NOMINEES ON NOVEMBER 8th
COMPARE THESE RECORDS OF FAITHFUL SERVICE

Barkley's Record as Senator....

Has been the outstanding individual in the United States Senate for the past four years.

Has been responsible for the passage of a Majority of the New Deal Farm and Labor bills.

Has a continuous record of thirty years in formulating and passing Progressive Legislation.

TIME FOR DEMOCRATS TO PULL TOGETHER

The Democratic Senatorial primary campaign which ended August sixth was aptly described as Kentucky's "political battle of the century." Both Senator Alben W. Barkley and Governor A. B. Chandler, the chief opponents for the nomination, battled to the last draw, pulling no punches, fighting for every available vote.

It was a party fight, however, a family affair. Through this method the Democrats of Kentucky selected the man they want to represent them in the United States Senate. By a majority of over 70,000, Senator Barkley was selected. That settled the family fight.

The final election is approaching. On November 8 all the voters of Kentucky will go to the polls to select the man who actually will represent them at Washington. This is the time that all Democrats should pull together, forgetting family squabbles and disagreements.

That is being done, too. Governor Chandler and others who supported him in his campaign for the Senatorial nomination are now supporting Senator Barkley. Opponents of the Democratic nominees for Congress are now giving them loyal support.

This is a time to forget bitterness that might have been created by a heated primary campaign, and to forget personal differences. At the same time, it is proper for Democrats to keep their eyes on November 8th, battle to the limit to elect their nominees in this election.

The Democrats may have family fights in the future, but the prospects of those battles should not dim the spirit of co-operation among Democrats now, a spirit that if properly applied will assure the election of the Democratic nominees by the majorities that they deserve as outstanding men of ability and integrity who are offering themselves as public servants of the people.

Let us resolve to cast our vote on November 8th . . . for Senator Alben W. Barkley and Representative Brent Spence.

Spence's Record as Representative

Has been responsible for more Federal Grants For Kentucky than any other representative.

Has represented the laborer, the small business man, and the farmer.

The Farm and Home

Two years of profitable operation is reported by Union county farmers organized into cooperative group to purchase petroleum products. Profits total $4,700. Farmers paying cash were given a discount on gas and oil.

In Elliott county, were much work is being done in poultry improvement, hatcheries plan to pay 8 cents a dozen over the market price for eggs from tested flocks. Several modern laying houses have been built in the county.

After a successful steak fry for members and their husbands, Oak County homesteaders' club in Christian county will make the serving of beef an annual event. Other clubs of the county serve fried chicken, wieners and ham and eggs at their annual gatherings.

Henderson county farmers made a tour of inspection of 10 of the 30 lakes made in the county this year. More than 100 acres of land have been submerged in the water of these lakes. Construction was done through the Farm Bureau cooperative organization of the county.

Hybrid corn known as Kentucky No. 60 produced 96 bushels to the acre on the farm of Joe L. Payne in Graves county. Eight kinds of hybrid corn on this farm averaged 86 bushels. Hybrid corn not only outyielded common kinds but stood up much better. Allen county burley tobacco is said to be of exceptionally high quality. Thirty-two barns equipped with modern ventilators were built this year, and many farmers used fire in curing. The tobacco was stripped early.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS
A Boone county farmer has bought 900 black-faced mountain range lambs to winter and use for breeding in 1939.

Extensive interest in rural electrification in Calloway county has resulted in a second $100,000 allotment.

Fifty thousand pounds of grass seed has been spread by Pike county farmers.

Knot county farmers bought 1,000 tons of limestone from one dealer alone, 90 percent of it burned lime. Calves fattened by crayson county 4-H club members are being weighed in at 900 to 950 pounds.

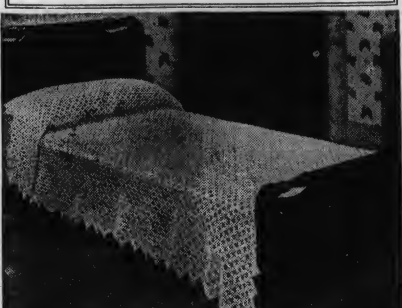

G. H. Perren of Livingston county has limed and seeded to rye, redtop and timothy six acres of contour furrows.

Simpson county homesteaders are "learning Kentucky through books" as a minor fall project.

Cord Blakeman, Green county, fattened 10 pigs to a weight of 204 pounds each on an average with minimum outlay for feed.

Two hundred and fifty Montana ewes have been bought cooperatively by six Grant county farmers.

Design Captures National Crochet Championship
TO MRS. FRANK E. HAYWARD, of Seattle, Washington, went the top honors in the First National Crochet Contest, held in 1937, and the title of National Crochet Champion. Mrs. Hayward's prize-winning design was this exquisite bedsread, made of mercerized crocheted cotton in a tiny crocheted pattern. National interest now centers on the Second National Crochet Contest, to be held this fall in cooperation with local, county, and state fairs. Directions for crocheting Mrs. Hayward's prize design, and details of the National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify bedsread No. 64.

Red Cross Volunteers Assist War Veterans

Red Cross workers in chapters, hospitals and on posts of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marine Corps, assisted 122,356 active service men or veterans or their families during the past 12 months.

Red Cross service to these men included such personal help as letter-writing, shopping and recreational leadership, but it also included financial assistance to their dependents, help in locating missing members of their families, and assistance in filling necessary applications for pensions, disability pay, hospitalization, or for discharge from active service because of home needs.

The average number of men assisted by Red Cross workers each month was 19,790, according to a recent report.

FALL BEST TIME TO FERTILIZE LAWNS

Experimental evidence as well as experience indicate that fall is the best time to feed bluegrass that is, fertilize the lawn.

N. R. Elliott, Landscape Specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, recommends the use of a complete fertilizer or tobacco stalks. The commercial fertilizer to apply is the kind used on tobacco; a 3-8-6 good. It should be broadcast after there has been sufficient frost to kill crab-grass and other wild grasses. For the average rural lawn, scattering 50 to 75 pounds of a complete fertilizer in the fall will materially benefit the grass, says Mr. Elliott.

Where tobacco stalks or stems are used, they should be applied as soon as they can be secured, and left until March 1 or 15. The stalks or stems should be so distributed that the grass will not be smothered by them. Mr. Elliott points out that bluegrass is a cool weather plant, that it grows best in fall, winter and spring. Therefore, fertilizer used after wild grasses are gone in the fall and before they come in late spring and early summer is most beneficial to the lawn.

At $1 a ton, Washington county farmers quickly exhausted supplies of second-rate limestone.

ATTRACTIVE RECIPES FOR SQUASH, PUMPKIN

Pumpkins and squashes are plentiful this year. John S. Garret, garden specialist for the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, says that the crop is one of the largest in the history of the state, in a way making up for the disappointing fruit output. Pumpkin and squash planted in corn fields yields yield as much as eight tons to the acre, while Hubbard squash planted solid often produce 20 tons per acre, according to Garret.

At Thanksgiving-time especially homemakers want good ways to cook the holiday vegetables. The following are suggested—

For the vegetable course select a large Hubbard squash, remove the seeds and steam until tender. Remove from skin, season tender. Remove from skin, season well with salt, butter and a little cream. Place in a buttered mold. Place in a hot oven, reheat, place in a chop plate and surround with asparagus tips or broccoli over which has been poured browned butter. A Hollandaise sauce is especially delicious, served with squash cooked in this way.

Another attractive way to cook Hubbard squash is to cut it into pieces approximately 4 by 4 inches, bake and when almost done sprinkle the top of each piece with finely chopped pieces of bacon. Finish cooking until the bacon is thoroughly done.

Acorn squash may be cut in half length-wise, and the center filled with sausage meat or with stuffed sausage, and then baked.

Miss Florence Inlay, nutrition specialist for the college, offers her recipe for pecan pumpkin custard.

2 cups cooked strained pumpkin, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons mixed spices, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 1 1/2 cups scalded milk.

Mix the spices and sugar, add to the pumpkin. Add slightly beaten egg yolks, scalded milk and mix well. Pour into baking dish and bake in a slow oven about 45 minutes or until the custard is set. Beat the egg whites until fluffy. Add two tablespoons honey gradually and continue beating egg whites until stiff. When custard is done cover with meringue and bake in a slow oven until brown. A few drops of honey on top of the meringue adds attractiveness. In selecting the spices to use in the recipe, Miss Inlay suggests that a good mixture is equal parts of cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS COMPLETE PROJECTS

4-H Club members are doing a splendid job of project completion this year according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. A record of 527 members were enrolled in ten community clubs the past spring. Record books on file in the county office indicate that the largest number of project completions in the history of county 4-H work will be made this fall.

The good record of the 4-H Clubs this year to a large extent is due to the splendid cooperation of the schools and the unselfish guidance of local adult leaders backed by strong support of club officers, members and parents. These folks have capably carried on during the rush of the ACP, tobacco marketing quota and other emergency rush work placed on the county office during the year.

Each club member who completes his project and in his record book will receive an achievement certificate at the November meeting. Adult leaders who have served the community clubs for three or more years will receive honor certificates at these meetings. Tobacco project members are also making plans for the seeing at a northern Kentucky 4-H tobacco sale on December 12th.

Anderson county 4-H club members made an average of $10 in prize money on every calf they fattened.

Discriminating Use of Spices Produces Sophisticated Cookery

By MARIE GIBSON, Courier-Journal Food Editor.

Since ancient times, spices have been highly prized and greatly appreciated by the discriminating. Any cook can roast meat or cook a mixture of vegetables, but it takes experience and a sophisticated taste to add the proper seasoning for that subtle overtone which enhances fine foods.

Paprika, cloves, nutmeg, garlic, caraway, celery salt, thyme and marjoram are responsible for many a "success" from the kitchen of a famous chef. Inexpensive housewives should do a little experimenting in their own kitchens with flavorings and spices. Start with the simpler things—even cinnamon toast has a secret. To get just the right amount of ginger in a cake, the dash of caraway over French fried potatoes, the right flavor of mustard in pickles, is indeed an art to be developed.

We are fortunate, too, in this day and age to have the spices at our disposal which years ago were considered rare. Certainly we should take advantage of this opportunity and learn to season our food properly.

Cinnamon Cake

Two cups bread flour, three teaspoons phosphate baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup brown sugar, one-fourth cup shortening, one egg, three-fourths cup milk, one-fourth cup chopped raisins, one tablespoon melted butter, two tablespoons granulated sugar, two teaspoons cinnamon.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add brown sugar and cut in the shortening. Add chopped raisins. Beat the egg, add the milk and stir into dry ingredients, forming a soft dough. Pour into flat, greased pan. Sprinkle with melted butter. Combine sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle over butter. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Cinnamon Toast

Eight slices bread one-fourth inch thick, four tablespoons butter, one tablespoon vanilla extract, four tablespoons powdered sugar, three teaspoons cinnamon.

Put the bread in narrow strips and remove all crusts. Toast to a golden brown. While hot spread with creamed butter to which the vanilla has been added. Sprinkle with the sugar mixed with cinnamon. Put back into hot oven until sugar is melted.

GINGERCAKE

Four tablespoons shortening, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one-half cup molasses, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda, one and three-fourths cup flour.

Cream the shortening and sugar together, add well-beaten egg. Mix the milk and molasses and add alternately with the remaining ingredients which have been mixed and sifted together. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for thirty minutes.

CHOW-CHOW

Twenty-four small cucumbers, two quarts green tomatoes, sliced; three carrots, chopped; one teaspoon tumeric, two quarts small pickling onions, six sweet green peppers, one-half cup flour, one teaspoon mustard seed, three heads cauliflower, broken; two tablespoons salt, one-half cup dry mustard, three quarts elder vinegar (5 per cent).

Put up all vegetables small. Pack by mixing layers in a large bowl, sprinkling each layer with salt. Place a dish and weight over all and let stand overnight. In morning heat to boiling point and drain. Mix flour, dry mustard, sugar, tumeric, to a smooth paste with small amount of vinegar and add the mustard seed. Heat remaining vinegar to boiling point and slowly add the paste. Stir constantly until smooth and creamy. Pour over pickles and seal in jars.

WHO KNOWS THE WOMAN

Knows that leftover cornmeal mush may be fried and served with maple syrup.

Knows that a new drinking glass is being introduced—a bell is concealed in the hollow foot of the glass and a swish of the glass will indicate that the guest wants a refill.

Knows that leftover cake may be topped with a fruit sauce and served as a dessert.

Knows that to remove a stubborn ink spot from linen, application of equal parts of ammonia and turpentine, followed by immediate rinsing, may prove effective. If this does not take out the spot, apply a little kerosene, then wash in soap and water.

LOSE AGAIN

back in their half of the first with five tallies on three walks, a single and a home run by Graham. Graham's swat came with the sacks congested. Bob and Gene added another in the fifth on a walk, a hit batsman, and a single.

The visitors pushed across four more in their half of the sixth, enough to chase Shinkle and bring on a walk, an error and another mighty home run drive by Ab Seber. They added two more in the ninth on a walk and three single and an error.

Ryle, Bellevue pitcher, allowed only seven hits and fanned eleven. Hitzfield, with a home run, a triple and single, and Seber, with a home run and two singles led the Bellevue offense.

More than five hundred fans jammed their way into the park. Over-cent officials stated. The second game of the three game series will be played at Bellevue Sunday afternoon, November 6.

Walton Bearcats to Open Season
At Burlington Gym Friday NightLocal Team In Fine Condition to Start Playing Year

As the curtain goes up Friday night for the 1938-39 Boone County Basketball Conference, local fans will find Coach Louis Shields and his Walton Bearcats as guests of the Burlington Wildcats. The contest will be preceded by a contest between the reserves of the two schools.

Both the Bearcats and Wildcats have played warm-up contests for the opening tilt. Burlington defeated the Highland Bluebirds reserves at their home court October 28 by a 27-17 point and lost to the B. Y. S. Alumni last Friday by a 23-16 score. The Bearcats lost their practice tilt with the local COC quint last Wednesday by a 40 to 30 score.

According to advanced dope as issued by the "drug-store and restaurant captains," the contest will highlight the weekend of sports. The Bearcats, under the tutelage of Shields have shown considerable power and speed. With such veterans as Chapman, McGuire and Pennington rounding into form, it is apparent that local fans will really have something to follow in the Big Blue this season. McElroy and Darnell, reserves from last year, are also displaying a brand of hardwood tactics that brings smiles to Coach Shields.

Coach "Skeeter" Walton of the somewhat inexperienced Burlington team will probably depend mostly upon the speed of his diminutive squad. His great advantage lies in the fact that the game is being played in the "Burlington Bandbox."

NEW BEAUTY SHOPPE
OPENED IN ERLANGER

Opening of Hay's Beauty Shoppe, 400 Dixie Highway, opposite Garvey Avenue, Erlanger, was announced last week. Jeannette Hays, proprietor, states that she is specializing in all lines of beauty work. Miss Hays has had fourteen years experience which will assure customers of the most efficient work.

Boone Sportsmen
To Meet Here
Thursday

The regular monthly meeting of the Boone County Fish and Game Club will be held at the Walton school Thursday evening, Nov. 17, at 7 o'clock at which time all interested sportsmen of Boone County are invited to attend. The Walton-Verona Parent-Teachers Association will serve refreshments.

The meetings is the first of a series which will be held every two weeks during the hunting season at various localities throughout the county. Edwin Johnson, game warden, said today.

There are 114 members in the Boone County Club according to Chas. Riley, Hebron, president, and Harold Conner, Burlington, secretary. Annual dues are fifty cents.

In cooperation with the local club, the Kentucky League of Sportsmen is sponsoring a series of wild life (Continued on page five)

Satisfactory Breeders

For the past two years, sheep growers in some of the eastern farm states have been going to the western range flocks for their breeding ewes.

Reports received by the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicate that this year, sheep growers in Kentucky bought around two hundred thousand ewes from the western states, and by the end of this year, it is estimated that nearly half of about 600,000 out of a million, 300,000 of the breeding ewes in Kentucky will be of western origin. This past year, Tennessee also introduced possibly twelve or thirteen thousand of the western ewes.

CLOSE DECEMBER 17

Individuals, schools, organizations and business houses who have delayed obtaining their copy of the Universal Dictionary, a huge 1440 volume published by Henry Calkins Wild, Oxford University, should take advantage of the Advertiser's offer before the deadline date which has been set for December 17. Scores of the scholarly masterpieces have gone out of the office within the past few weeks.

All that is necessary for you to obtain this valuable book is to renew your subscription to the Advertiser and add one dollar and ninety-eight cents. It will be of untold value to you and your family. Don't wait too long. Remember the offer expires soon.

ERROR IN FROGTOWN GARAGE
ADVERTISEMENT OF NOV. 3

In a display advertisement of the Frogtown Garage carried in the last issue of the Advertiser it was stated that the garage is located five miles south of Walton. The statement should have read: "Located Five miles north of Walton."

The garage is under the management of Ed Hankinson, formerly with Vest Chevrolet of Walton.

Records of Boone County and Its Pioneers Reveals Interesting Data

Interest is growing daily in the work of compiling the history of Boone County, which will be published in magazine form with an issue of the Advertiser and every effort is being put forth to bring to our readers a complete history of the county from its separation from Kenton county to the present day.

The happenings of interest during a generation die with that generation unless preserved in type. Every citizen of the county is interested in knowing of the struggle and joys of their forefathers as is evidenced by the material and information being supplied the editors.

Business houses interested in reaching a large number of readers

Reservoir Closed

The Walton reservoir, haven for northern Kentucky fishermen, is now closed to sportsmen, and will not reopen until April 1, 1939 it was announced today by Edwin C. Johnson game warden. Hunters are also prohibited from shooting on the premises.

The ruling was passed in keeping with the state-wide fish and game conservation program. Offenders will be prosecuted.

Sunday School Classes
To Play Basketball

The battle of the ages will be staged Wednesday night, November 16, when the Willing Workers class of the Christian church meet the Happy Helpers class of the Methodist church in a twin bill basketball attraction. There will be games between both men and women of the two classes. The public is encouraged to come and support their favorites and eat homemade candies and pop corn.

MORE THAN 175
ATTEND DEMMIE BANQUET

More than 175 attended the annual Boone County Young Men's Democratic Club banquet held at the Florence High School, Friday evening, Nov. 4.

Addresses were made by Lieutenant Governor Keen Johnson, John Young Brown, chief counsel for United Mine Workers, and Brent Spence, United States Representative. J. P. Brothers, club president, served as toastmaster.

The program was as follows: Music, by the Florence rhythm band; rope dance, Joanne Kinman; accordion solo and Spanish dance, Barbara Ann Crouse; solo, Guyolen Carlisle, and acrobatic dance, Theora Peablies. The banquet dinner was served by the Florence Parent-Teachers Association.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF WALTON BAPTIST PASTORATE

Sunday, Nov. 13, will be the second anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. C. J. Alford of the Walton Baptist church. There has been a great expansion in every department of the church during the two years.

The public is welcome to all services. Bible school begins at 9:45 a. m., Morning Worship at 11 a. m., Jr., Int. and Sr. B. Y. P. U. at 6 p. m., Prayer meeting at 7: p. m. Wednesday and Evening worship at 7 p. m. Sunday evenings.

More Evidence
Of the "Good Ole Indian Summer"

Miss Emma Jane Miller of the Miller Tourist Camp, South Walton, furnishes this week's evidence that it is still "The Good Ole Summer."

Miss Miller delivered in person to the Advertiser's office a beautiful bouquet of apple blossoms and a sample of peas in the pod. She also stated that she had just finished eating tomatoes, corn on the cob, and watermelon from her garden.

"This nature oddity," Miss Miller says, "is quite an attraction for the tourist here."

Noted Boone Scientist
Loses Aged Father

George Sperti, father of Dr. Geo. Sperti, director of the Institutum Divi Thomas and internationally known scientist, died Monday at Good Samaritan Hospital. Mr. Sperti lived at Fort Mitchell and Dixie Highway, Ft. Mitchell, and with his famous son at his Burlington home.

Services will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning (Thursday) at Blessed Sacrament Church, South Fort Mitchell.

A native of Pisa, Italy, Mr. Sperti came to America as a young man, settling first in Philadelphia. For the last 55 years he has resided in Northern Kentucky. Until retirement three years ago he had been engaged in the tailoring business.

FIDDLER'S CONTEST
FRIDAY EVENING

Interest is growing daily in the Old Time Fiddler's Contest, sponsored by the Richmond Presbyterian church, to be held at New Hope High School Auditorium, Friday evening, November 11, 7:30 p. m. Several registrations had been received early in the week, and more were expected as the dead line drew near.

Prizes were announced by the Committee in charge as follows: First prize, $15.00; second prize, $10.00; and Third prize, $5.00. Money for these prizes was donated by various business firms and individuals in Richmond, Beaver, Walton, and Verona, and Verona.

All amateur fiddlers are urged to be there in this contest which will decide who is the best fiddler in Northern Kentucky. Come and bring your friends.

Write-In Candidate Wins
In Walton Police Judge
Race; Others Re-elected

Senator Alben W. Barkley has gained a majority of over 114,000 at noon Wednesday, with the county at Barkley (D) 240,678, Judge Haswell's 126,773. Indications are that the final majority will be over 150,000 in Kentucky.

Democratic nominee carried every precinct in Boone county in the balloting Tuesday to give Senator Barkley 1,010 votes over his opponent, Judge John P. Haswell, republican. Barkley polled 1,446 and Haswell 436. In the race for Representative Brent Spence (D) won easily over republican nominee, J. Arnold Kreke the final count in Boone being 1,464 to 381. In the fifth district Spence carried every county by comfortable majorities.

A very light vote was cast in most precincts in the county, and there were no disturbances reported.

Walton Election Surprised

In the race for Police Judge in Walton, Rolfe Farris, the day announced candidate, was defeated by a write-in of the name of Horace Simpson, Sr. Farris getting 94 and Simpson 150. Last minute decision to run forced the friends of Simpson to write his name in on the ballots.

School Election Quiet

The five member of the Walton School Board were elected with but eight votes cast for officers. Seven votes were cast for Bob Gordon and one for W. King, both of Verona. The men re-elected were Chas. Ransler, Chas. Carlisle, Harry Chapman, John Stephenson, and Robert Porter. John L. Jones and R. L. Green received the largest votes in the county Board of Education race, defeating (Continued on page eight)

Barkley As the Presidential Possibility

Senator Alben W. Barkley's prestige in the nation was increased and emphasized by his sweeping victory in Tuesday's Democratic election. Even before he had shown his great vote-getting ability in the primary election in August he had been regarded as strong "possibility" for the Democratic nomination for President in 1940. The outcome of the recent campaign made him more than just a possibility.

Political writers who keep close check on trends and development throughout the nation are now saying that Senator Barkley is one of the few men in the United States who might be accepted as a substitute for President Roosevelt in 1940. He is recognized as a progressive, but at the same time as an experienced legislator to whom active service over a long period of time in the United States Senate and House has given a wealth of information that would safeguard him against making mistakes that otherwise he could not avoid as a newcomer in the White House.

His campaigning ability is widely recognized. Observers who watched him closely during the last election were surprised at his endurance powers. That is a feature that would not be overlooked in a presidential possibility.

If Senator Barkley had not won the August primary election by a substantial majority, his prestige would have been lowered. Now that he has been elected by such a sweeping majority on November 8, his chances of becoming the Democratic nominee for President in 1940 have been materially increased.

Kentucky certainly would like to have a native son in the White House. His best chance at the Presidency is through Senator Barkley. No other Kentuckian at the present time is a possibility.

Kentuckians assured themselves of this chance when their votes piled up such a huge majority, and was so complete and impressive that the whole nation will sit up and take notice.

Senator Barkley has not said that he will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, but his native state can boost him toward that honorable goal. The rising vote of confidence was the best way of expressing their appreciation of Senator Barkley's long record of service in our behalf.

The man with something to do can always find the time to do it.

Danger In Old Cars

Old, worn-out automobiles constitute a menace when operated on the highways, not only to the occupants but to other people as well.

It is not surprising therefore that the suggestion is being made that there should be a systematic inspection of automobiles by officials who should have the power to order out of service obsolete cars that are dangerous to other vehicles and pedestrians.

The number of accidents on our highways amount to an alarming total each year and every means should be adopted which might reduce the toll of life and accidents. To bar all rambling wrecks and worn-out cars would probably help.

The reason was don't stop is because people don't stop to reason.

Conserve Game In Boone County

The time is at hand for the bird and rabbit hunting season. Those who hunt our fastly diminishing wildlife should remember that even though it is possible to evade the law and kill more than the statutory limit, it is against the best principles of good sportsmanship to do thusly.

In days gone by, game of all kinds were abundant in this section of Kentucky. As the years passed, it was killed at all times of the year, and often needlessly. Because no care was taken in the killing of game birds and animals, there is now a scarcity of birds in this section, compared to what were once there. Likewise, the supply of rabbits, possums, coons and squirrels has been greatly diminished.

If we are to have any type of game left in years to come, steps will have to be taken now to preserve it. Everyone will not consider this viewpoint and those who don't should be convinced that this is the case. Even those of us, who were in this section ten years ago, can remember when birds were plentiful and when game was better in Boone County than any other section of Kentucky. Now, it is necessary to go to other states, and other sections of Kentucky to get a full bag limit after the first few days of the fall hunting season.

If care is taken in hunting, and only in the right season, within a few years the supply would be replenished and there would be ample sport throughout the fall hunting season. The State Fish and Game Department is doing its part by raising and distributing game birds and the sportsman must likewise do their part by adhering to the strict letter of the laws governing the killing of game. It is to their interest to do so, and a little thought over this matter will do more to stop illegal hunting than all the fines in the world could do.

It's no use trying to sell a dictionary to one who thinks he knows all the answers.

The wage-hour act does not change the relations of about 31,000,000 workers who are under State and local jurisdiction. Less than one in twenty workers are under State and local jurisdiction. Less than one in twenty workers are affected by the new labor standards act. Daily newspapers generally fall under the provisions of the act, but employees of weekly or semi-weekly newspapers having circulations under 3,000, most of which are in the county where publisher, are not within the meaning of the law.

The average hourly rate in many of the country's principal industries runs from 63 cents to more than a dollar, and the hours are adjusted amicably between the employers and the workers, which saves headaches for all concerned.

The Administrator of the Act is confident that higher wages will follow in all lines, and the mal-adjustments of the law will straighten out as experiences develop the changes needed.

Approximately 1,500,000 are on the wrong side of the law, either with regard to wages or hours, and their affairs will receive first attention.

The Mars radio broadcast marred the peace of mind of a lot of radio listeners, who ignored the statements on the broadcasts that it was "Just another program." Right now radio communications administration in Washington is concerned about any more great radio scares and set of fresh regulations will present any repetition of such thoroughly original programs, and compel the sponsors to make it plain that their interest is in soft drinks, tin cans, paper balls—or what have they?

A Live Wire Briar Hopper

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

After I had been from my village home 40 years I attended a Sunday School Convention of the Sunday School in the eastern part of Mason County, Kentucky.

The regular speaker of the afternoon failed to be on hand. They used me as a substitute. It was a real pleasure for me to talk to my relatives and friends of my boyhood days, giving them part of my experience as a church and Sunday school worker. They couldn't realize my becoming such a zealous church worker when they knew me as a boy. I was as timid as any young girl and would shrink for fear of the world and the devil. I was led upon to take any part in any public way.

In my talk to the convention, I compared the church to a wheel and I have requested several times to put this in one of my stories. I compared Christ as a great hub of a great wheel, the spokes of the wheel to the different denominations and churches; the outside rim representing God's love, binding and holding their spokes in their proper places. It is our obligation as churches, regardless of our affiliation or creed to keep the wheel of the churches going around so fast that it will look like a solid wheel, and all the world can see nothing but the hub, Christ, every spoke keeping its place and doing its part.

The forces against the church and good are united. Why cannot Christendom be united in spirit? If we have the love of God in our hearts, treat each other as brothers. When we learn and practice that we are our brother's keeper it will help the world in the League of Nations, peace conference and all other movements of that kind. In other words we will have to keep our eyes on the great hub, Christ, to bring the world to universal peace. This reminds us of a good saying by Jesus: "Jesus, who on the cross died, Jesus who liveth on high, He alone can justify, fix your eyes on Jesus."

STILL FIGHTING FOR DEMOCRACY

KENTUCKY HOMESPUN by S. F. White

MUCH TOO MUCH

Too many highways, too many cars.
Too many people behind the bars;
Too much poverty, too much wealth.
Too many people in ill-health.
Too much politics, too much booze,
Too many wearing high-heeled shoes.
Too many spending their dough on gas,
Too much taking other's sass.
Too many living beyond their means,
Too many buying corn and beans;
Too many hiring their washing done,
Too much bridge playing for fun.
Too much buying goods on time,
Too many people don't save a dime.
Too much taxes, too much spent.
Too many folks spend every cent.
Too much reform, too much law,
It's the darndest mess you ever saw.

The Pepper Pot

Many business people have had experiences similar to the newspaper publisher in Northern Kentucky as evidenced by the letter handed the writer recently: Dear Editor: In reply to your request for a check, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it well-nigh impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to federal laws, State laws, county laws, city laws, liquor laws, mother-in-laws, and outlaws. Through these laws I am compelled to pay business tax, amusement tax, school tax, gas tax, carpet tax, income tax, food tax, furniture tax, and excise tax. Even my brain is taxed. I am required to get a car license, business license, marriage license and dog license.

For my own safety's sake I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burglar insurance, accident insurance, unemployment insurance and old-age insurance.

Simply because I refuse to donate something or other, I am boycotted, talked about, lied to and lied about and lied at, held down and held up until I am almost ruined. I can tell you honestly that except for a miracle that happened, I could not enclose this small check. The world has been sleeping on my doorstep for the last few months just had pups on the kitchen floor, and I sold the pups. Here the money is.

Faithfully yours,

The religious sect using an Eastern Court House for their "convention" is not unlike others going about over the United States, who supposedly through religious "powers" are immune from the deadly poison of rattlesnakes and other reptiles. The writer attended a meeting in a Florida resort city to witness a demonstration of this power. These wandering revivalists had passed out the word they were immune from the poison of rattlesnakes and would so demonstrate. On the night in question the woman preacher at the climax of her dramatic and highly fervent effort lifted a small box from the floor to a table. Removing the covering from the box she drew a large rattlesnake from the receptacle and began to envenime it around her body. The snake evidently not under the same spell as the "woman preacher" savagely and its fangs pierced the woman's neck. The snake was dropped to the floor and the crowd stampeded. In a short while the poison began to get in its work, and within a few hours the woman died a particularly painful and horrible death. The authorities were indignant and stunned. They searched the statutes for some law to reach evangelists, but none was available. The party ended the revival and left the city, but the leader stated they were through with "snake" demonstrations.

Is there a certain class not wanting work? A friend told of an advertisement he inserted in a country paper for a woman to care for an aged lady. A good home, including bed and board was offered. All modern conveniences were available, the duties very light and the pay each week. Did he get many replies? Not a one!

Investigating the why of it he was astounded to discover that in the particular county advertised in some 400 to 500 families were getting their living from the Government, and many more wanting aid. He also contacted woman supervisors and was told that none on their lists would take a job, or couldn't do it. Farmers and other employers of labor make a similar complaint.

What is the answer to all this? Is it not fair to conclude that the reason for the attitude of those who should be privately employed is that they are living easier, if not better, at the expense of the taxpayers? This condition deserves grave consideration, and immediate action. If persisted in and further condoned the end of initiative and independence is but the matter of a few short years.

A story coming from Frankfort is that Keen Johnson, the Chandler candidate for Governor, may turn up as the white-haired boy of the National Administration, which would be almost a guarantee of Mr. Johnson's nomination. The "deal," if true, is that Chandler and National Administration forces name the delegation to the National Convention, thus giving the Washington faction the Kentucky vote—for Senator Barkley ostensibly, but presumably and reasonably for the President's choice. If this story is correct three of the Senator's primary supporters with gubernatorial aspirations will be left holding the bag.

BOILS, CARBUNCLES AND RISINGS

The summer of 1938 has seen a great outcropping of carbuncles. Many of my acquaintances who are middle-aged have suffered some severe pains from carbuncles, and, at least, has died from the effects. I have gone through the agony of having a crop of the pesky things myself and am about ready to start trying the thousand and one remedies that have been offered me. The standard one, of course, is nine buckshot, taken one day. I have not tried this remedy, probably that is the reason I am still in misery. Some would think that athlete's foot kills more than carbuncles, and pneumonia combined. The best I can figure it out, we used to have it all the time, that or hookworm. We called it toe-itch (eich) and cured it by tying a yarn string around the affected toe. Sometimes we put something on the string, I think, but the string itself did the work, I am sure. When dentists were rare, and when the forceps that extracted teeth sometimes left roots in the jawbone, gumbles were much commoner than they are now, "gumbles" for some of the old-timers. Not to have one was to be immature, just as was a sign of immaturity not to have a wisdom tooth.

Boys thrive, or thrive on, them. I suppose the mental uplift the fellows got from being so envied counteracted the poison from mth's aore; middle-aged and older people somehow cannot get the same uplift of a sore that boys felt and still feel. Probably some of you will read this and then go to the medicine shelf for some dope for better or some other doctor, already allying yourselves with Job and Lazarus.

It, just as a boy who got a licking at school piously showed the bloody stripes to the other fellows in the woods after school. A boy with a towed tie up in a dirty rag is among the most arrogant of the people whom he is usually outdistanced by the fellow who has an arm in a sling. This arrogance is nature's way of balancing things for a chap when he is hardly able to hold his own among the tough boys. Tomcats stumped off used to provide plenty of envious discussion of the pains we had endured travel, even though we knew that we cried like very small babies when it happened.

Athlete's foot and kindred ailments get a lot of attention in the newspapers and magazines now. One would think that athlete's foot kills more than tuberculosis and pneumonia combined. FARM ELECTRIC FENCE OWNERS LIABLE FOR SHOCK

Attorney General Guy H. Herdman has ruled that persons charging or using charged fences are liable for any injury to livestock or human trespassers. The Kentucky law makes no provision for "Electric fences" and added the warning as to liability.

TOBACCO EMPLOYEES MUST SECURE SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBER

Persons who plan to get jobs in tobacco warehouses or stripping plants should apply for social security account numbers at once. Many of the companies which operate warehouses and stripping establishments will not hire workers until the latter show social security numbers. Those who want jobs will save time and probably have a better chance of being hired if they get their numbers now. If you have a number and want a new one be sure to apply for a duplicate. Do not get a new number as this may delay or reduce benefits which you will receive later under the old age insurance plan.

SAFETY RECORD LIGHT CREWS SET

The line and maintenance trucks of the Community Public Service Company have set a record for safe driving for the past several years, one truck not having any accidents for nine years, two trucks having no accidents for seven years and two trucks setting the record for four years. At present the company maintains approximately nineteen employees to render efficient service to the consumers in Boone and adjoining counties. R. L. Hall, local manager, is to be complimented on the safety record of his crews.

LOCAL MAN RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

J. S. Thornton, employee of the Consolidated Telephone Company, received an appointment from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Tuesday, as tobacco grader on one of the markets in this district. Mr. Thornton has served three years on the tobacco markets, two at Covington and one at Carrollton.

FARMER AT THE HELM OR "REAL BUSINESS"

"As manager of your farm you are at the helm of a real business," says an article entitled, "How to do your work on time," put out by the farm economics department of the University of Kentucky college of Agriculture.

"It is for you to decide whether your farm business is going forward or backward. Physical effort alone will not make it move along to financial success; there must be thought and plans behind every move. Physical effort alone will not make it move along to financial success; there must be thought and plans behind every move. The timeliness of doing farm work is of such great importance that frequently it determines the degree of financial success."

The statement lists the following: Breh sons for hog sales next August or September. Repair sagging doors and gates and fix leaky roofs. Store farm machinery for winter and leave parts needing repair where they can be obtained easily during winter months. Bulk all tobacco as soon as fully cured and it is in case. Press tobacco and put it in bulk as stripped. Complete corn husking.

DRIVERS URGED TO OBSERVE SCHOOL BUS LAW

All drivers of automobiles, trucks, and school buses are requested by Supl. D. H. Norris to observe a state law requiring all traffic to stop for school buses that are receiving and discharging passengers. No accidents have been reported this year in the county. Mr. Norris said, but several instances have been reported in which the law has been violated.

It was pointed out by Mr. Norris that after traffic has stopped, the bus driver must wait until all vehicles have proceeded before the school bus can be put in motion. He said that he had heard complaints that bus drivers had not been allowing traffic to pass and that this would be called to the attention of the school drivers.

Penalties for not more than $500 or imprisonment for six months, or both, are the penalties prescribed by the law for violators of the provisions.

The law reads as follows:

"Whenever any school bus is stopped upon a public highway for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers, every operator of a vehicle approaching from any direction on the same highway shall bring said vehicle to a complete stop and shall not start up or attempt to start until the said school bus has finished receiving or discharging passengers; that the driver of said bus after having stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers shall permit all vehicles stopped as required herein to proceed before putting the school bus in motion; and anyone found guilty of violating the provisions of this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished upon conviction by a fine of not more than $500 or imprisoned in jail for not more than six months, or both fined and imprisoned."

For Easier Seeing

Young Eyes and Old Need the Even Glareless Light of an

I.E.S. Better Sight LAMP

I. E. S. lamps give an abundance of soft, pleasing light that acts as a balm to tired eyes. Glare is eliminated by a white glass diffusing bowl which provides both downward and upward light. The downward light is intensified and spread in a broad circle by a wide shade with white lining. The upward light goes to the ceiling and is reflected throughout the room, dispelling harsh shadows. The result is eye comfort such as you have never known. Try an I. E. S. lamp in your home and see for yourself how it aids your eyes.

PURGENT FLAVORS FOR RICE DISHES

Plain boiled rice served as a starchy dish for dinner needs no introduction in most America homes. But there are other ways of serving rice and by arranging occasional changes it is possible to vary the menus. It is mostly a matter of changing the flavor.

Rice needs to be cooked in a liquid to make it tender, but the liquid need not always be water. Cooking it in milk increases the food value of the dish. Cooking it in tomato juice makes a flavorful rice foundation for a gravy or a stew. Italians like their rice cooked in chicken stock; "risotto," as they call it. And with some of the bits of mixed chicken, chopped ham, poppers, onions and tomatoes added, this becomes in the South, a "jambalaya." Any meat stock may be used as the liquid in which to cook rice.

The bland rice is given more flavor in another way in rice pilau, a Turkish dish, by browning the rice in salt-pork fat before it is boiled in water. After it is cooked tender it is mixed with chopped onion, celery, parsley and seasonings, and baked. In East India, rice is served with a curry sauce, after being browned in fat and cooked in boiling water or meat stock. Onion and curry powder give it a distinctive flavor.

Canned tomatoes, grated cheese, and chopped pimientos will turn a bowl of plain cooked rice into a complete one-dish meal, which can be cooked on top of the stove or baked. Recipes for unusual rice dishes can be found in Leaflet H-12, "Cooking American Varieties of Rice," published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Disasters Strike 41 States During Year

Red Cross Aids 420,000 Persons Following Catastrophes

That the past year has not been an easy one for the American Red Cross is shown in a recent report listing disasters necessitating Red Cross relief throughout the United States during the past twelve months.

The report reveals that 129 domestic disasters called for Red Cross aid in 47 states, and that assistance was given to 420,000 persons who were disaster victims.

"That this has been a very active year is obvious when one compares this year's operations with the average of 92 disasters requiring Red Cross aid annually for the past 15 years," Chairman Norman H. Davis said in commenting on the Red Cross Disaster Relief Service report.

These catastrophes included cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, fires, floods, forest fires, hailstorms, mine explosions, a school bus accident, a shipwreck, tornadoes, typhoons, and wind storms.

"Disaster relief was the first humanitarian work of the American Red Cross after its organization in 1881," Mr. Davis said. "In the ensuing 57 years the flag of the Red Cross has flown upon every scene of major disaster in the United States. It has been carried over a period of years through actual experience of its workers in the face of suffering—not of losses. Loans, he pointed out, are never made, but relief is a gift from the Red Cross in the name of its members and contributors to its work."

"It would not be possible for the Red Cross to carry out such wide spread relief activities without the help of thousands of volunteer workers," Mr. Davis said. "Volunteers are the mainstay of the organization, and in the past year's work assistance from many cooperating agencies has made it possible for us to answer the many calls for help."

White relief was being given to victims of natural catastrophes, the Red Cross was not unmindful of the necessity for preparedness plans to meet emergencies that may arise in any American community. Red Cross chapters in hundreds of counties have organized disaster preparedness committees charged with responsibility to map relief plans in advance of need, and to organize resources of communities to prevent duplication of effort and waste of materials when calls for help are received.

These plans are proving especially advantageous in localities subject to frequent floods, tornadoes, or hurricanes, and actual tests of such planning have demonstrated the necessity for such measures.

"The administration of such relief for disaster victims is made possible through the membership of millions of Americans in all walks of life," Mr. Davis pointed out. "The extent of Red Cross aid to such sufferers is entirely dependent upon unselfish sharing on the part of all of us."

Red Cross Nurses Aid Million Sick

Red Cross public health nurses made more than one million visits to or on behalf of the sick during the fiscal year 1937-38.

The patients live in mountain communities, on islands off the coast, in isolated swamp regions, and in crowded industrial sections. During the same period the nurses inspected 559,187 school children for health defects in cooperation with local physicians, and gave instructions in home hygiene and care of the sick to 53,764 mothers and young girls.

WESTERN STOCK EWES SATISFACTORY BREEDERS

Kentucky or Tennessee brought in western ewes, his neighbors thought he simply "didn't know any better." But the Kentucky and Tennessee growers are now reporting several advantages in the western stock.
For one thing, the western ewes have been raised out on the big open ranges where they have had less chance to pick up parasites than sheep raised on the small eastern pastures. And, so, the eastern growers usually have smaller parasite losses with the western ewes than with the eastern, and has to do less drenching.
A second advantage is that the western ewes with fine wool blood in them tend to breed earlier and so give the producers chance to take advantage of the prices on the earlier lamb markets.
The western ewes also produce more wool. And they seem to have a little better herding instinct, that is an advantage even in the east.
The success with the western ewes seems to be starting the sheep population in Kentucky and Tennessee on the upward trend. For example, Tennessee had an unusually large number of rams offered for this year's ram sales and were the most successful Tennessee has ever had. Seventy-three out of the 300 rams sold went to growers who had bought western ewes.

1939 AUTO TAGS AT CLERK'S OFFICE

Once more green and white will be the color scheme of Kentucky's automobile licenses but the 1939 tags will be readily distinguishable from the 1938 ones because of a reversal in the color arrangement. This year green letters and figures appeared on a field of white; next year the background will be green and the letters and figures white.

The new plates which arrived at the office of County Clerk O. D. Benson the latter part of last week but which will not go on sale until December 1, are the same size as the 1938 tags and are free from any motto or slogan. The same numbering system is employed this year. Prices of the new tags will be the same as for this year.

COVINGTON POSTMASTER SUCCEUMBS MONDAY

Homer J. Noachtan, Covington postmaster, building contractor, and political leader, died Monday afternoon at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Covington, after an illness of several months. He was 65 years old.

THIRD INSTALLMENTS ON INCOME TAXES DUE NOV. 15

The Department of Revenue today called attention to the fact that the third and last installments on 1937 income tax returns are due on Nov. 15. A taxpayer owing $120 on his 1937 income tax return could liquidate his liability by payments of $40 on April 15, 1938; $40 on July 15, 1938; and $40 on November 15, 1938.

The law governing income tax installment payments provides that "any taxpayer who desires to do so may defer payment of one-third of the amount shown by the return to be due until the fifteenth day of the seventh month following the end of the taxable year and an additional one-third until the fifteenth day of the taxable year, and such deferred payments shall not be subject to any interest charge provide said payments are received within the times specified above."

According to the Department, there are about 3,000 taxpayers having installments due on November 15. The aggregate of these installments is approximately $350,000.

The Department also cautioned taxpayers to send in their payments on time. Although notices of payments will be mailed to each individual taxpayer, some may fail to receive the notice or neglect to make their payments when due and incur penalties which the law imposes.

Department of Revenue officials stated that it was their business to collect taxes and not penalties, but that they were forced to collect penalties if the taxpayer failed to comply with the law.

SOCIAL SECURITY APPLICANTS MUST PAY POSTAGE-DECKER

Persons who apply for social security account numbers by mail in Boone, Bracken, Pendleton, Kenton, Campbell, Gallatin, Grant, and Carroll counties must attach regular first class postage to their letters, according to Frank B. Decker, Jr., Manager of the Covington, Kentucky, social security office.

"Recently Postmasters have received numerous social security applications sent without postage," Mr. Decker stated today.
Mr. Decker emphasizes the importance of all workers obtaining social security numbers before applying for Kentucky's unemployment compensation benefits which will be payable after January 1, 1939. He also states that "any workers who have lost their account number card should obtain duplicate at once."

Dried Apricot Desserts Rate Frequent Repetition In Family Menus

By MARIE GIBSON

We sometimes forget how good the flavor of dried apricots can be. Unlike most dried fruits with their too sweet taste, apricots have a delicious tart tang. They're inexpensive, too, and they can be used in so many ways.

Pies, conserve, ice box desserts or gelatin molds made of dried apricots, with the addition of a little lemon juice—if you want to accent the tartness of the fruit—are good indeed. But be sure to soak the fruit in boiling water and simmer it a while before you attempt to use it.

APRICOT TARTS
Two cups dried apricots, two-thirds cup boiling water, one cup granulated sugar, one-fourth cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two eggs, beaten; one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon lemon extract, one and one-half cups thick sour cream, eight tart shells.

Crop apricots. Add water and let simmer for twenty minutes. Cool. Add rest of the ingredients and fill the unbaked tarts. Bake for ten minutes in a moderately hot oven. Lower heat and bake for twenty minutes in a moderately slow oven.

TART SHELLS

Two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup fat, four tablespoons ice water.

Mix together the flour and salt. Cut in the fat. Slowly add water, mixing with a knife. Take dough in hands and press together. Divide into eight pieces. Flatten out each piece and fit into deep individual baking pans or custard dishes. Add the filling and bake as suggested.

APRICOT ICE-BOX DESSERT

One loaf sponge cake, two cups dried apricots, two cups boiling water, one and one-half cups granulated sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon granulated gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one teaspoon vanilla, one-third teaspoon almond extract, one cup whipped cream, one-eighth teaspoon salt.

Cut cake into three lengthwise slices. Wash apricots well and soak them for two hours in boiling water. Cover and let simmer for thirty minutes. Add sugar and let boil for two minutes. Add lemon juice and gelatin which has soaked for five minutes in cold water. Cool and allow to thicken slightly. Add rest of ingredients and use as filling for cake layers. Replace layers to form original cake shape. Let chill one hour or longer.

JELLIED FRUIT MOLD

One package lemon-flavored gelatin, one and two-thirds cups boiling water, one cup diced pineapple, one-half cup diced dried apricots which have been soaked in boiling water for two hours, then simmer for one-half hour and drain, one-half hour and drain, one-half cup diced candied fruit.

Dissolve gelatin in water. Cool. Add rest of the ingredients and pour into a mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and top with mayonnaise. Surround with lettuce or cream.

Design Suggested For National Crochet Contest

Competition Calls for Crocheted Blouses

THIS simple crocheted blouse, in an interesting stitch, is made of mercerized crochet cotton, and will be eligible for competition in the Second National Crochet Contest. County, local, and state fairs will cooperate in the nation-wide competition, which will be open only to women whose crochet takes a first prize at a 1938 Fair. Directions for crocheting this blouse, and details of the National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify blouse No. 1141.

WHEN TURKEY "RIPE" BEST TIME TO SELL

Sell turkeys when they are "ripe." So advises Dr. J. Holmes Martin of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Pointing out that turkeys in the northern part of the United States mature early enough to sell in September, and that the finishing season moves from north to south, Dr. Martin says there should be a continuous supply of turkeys on the market from September to March.

Turkeys began to put on a finish when about 24 weeks old, and really fatten up for the market when between 24 and 28 weeks. A finished turkey has few if any pin feathers, according to Dr. Martin. By parting the feathers along the side of the breast or under a wing, it is easy to determine if there are any pin feathers in white or yellow when the turkey is "ripe." Blue skin indicates that the bird is not fat and needs further finish to sell well.

In comparing the prices of live and dressed turkeys, Dr. Martin says to keep in mind the "rule of 13." This means that 100 pounds of live birds when bled and picked will weigh 13 pounds less, and when full drawn and heads and feet removed will lose 26 per cent less than turkey on foot.

TO SHOW CONTROL OF SHEEP DISEASE

A demonstration in the control of foot-rot in sheep will be a feature of the annual meeting of Kentucky sheep raisers at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington, Nov. 15. Jack Dennis, Woodford county shepherd, will discuss the prevention and control of this disease, which has been prevalent in some parts of Kentucky this year.

The utilization of pastures in sheep raising will be one of the major subjects discussed at the meeting. Pasture and hay production are being enlarged and improved, as a result of the agricultural conservation program, and many farmers are interested in making better use of grazing in sheep raising.

In Bourbon county, which is considered one of the best counties in the state, much of the land is kept in grass, supporting large numbers of sheep. P. R. Wallington, agricultural agent, will discuss how farmers in Bourbon county handle their pasture so as to make them profitable.

Other speakers at the November 15 meeting include H. M. Roseberry, who operates a 1,500-acre farm in Bourbon county; R. H. Stephenson, master farmer in Grant county, and J. Frank Dye and Walter Souley, Fleming county sheep men. W. C. Johnstone and others at the College of Agriculture and Experiment Station will discuss pasture rotation and management.

The meeting will be held in the livestock pavilion on the Experiment Station farm beginning at 10 o'clock. Richard C. Miller will preside.

STRESS OF MONTEREY
VIRGINIA STIVERS BARTLETT

Eulalia glanced obliquely at him from where she sat. He was tugging his beard and did not see her. "Junipero Serra!" he thought bitterly. "Can he never be entirely at rest? Is his spirit to follow me always; haunt and punish me?" She shivered.

Pedro Fages delayed preparing for his trip until the last possible day, and with a deep disappointment in his heart, resolved to say nothing more to Eulalia. But he was frightened about her, as she sat hour after hour, saying nothing, doing nothing, but watching the fire and listening to the rain that lashed the little house unmercifully. The baby was no better but certainly no worse, yet he saw it was hopeless to persuade his lady to go with him.

On the morning when he had planned his departure he stood before her, stern, unhappy.

"I must tell you adios, Senora," he said formally. "I will return as quickly as possible."

She said nothing, only turned and looked at him.

"Ah, come, Eulalia!" he exclaimed suddenly, his reserve breaking. "Come with me . . ."

"No," she replied coldly. "I will not come. Are you really going . . . actually going to leave me here, sick and miserable, with an ailing child, and a couple of silly women to take care of me? Are you really going?"

"Fues, my dear, you are not ill. You are just unhappy, you should . . ."

"Not ill! How can you say that? What do you know of me? I am ill. I am dying, I tell you! Hour by hour, day by day, I am dying in this place! Yet you will leave me, to go to your fiestas, and your mission foundations, and let me die alone!"

"Eulalia, this is not true. Control yourself!"

"Control myself!" She rose to her feet. "How dare you say that to me? What have I been doing, but controlling myself, my thoughts, my unhappiness, all this time! I am sick, I tell you . . . I am dying!"

She was crying, hysterically, uncontrollably. Pedro reached to take her into his arms, but she evaded him, screaming out at him unavailingly.

"Eulalia . . . Eulalia . . ." he said.

But she was in the full sway of her emotions, a flood of feeling was carrying her along, and she did not struggle against the tide.

"Miserable, unhappy place!" she screamed. "I want to get away from this California! Never see it again! If I don't, I tell you, I shall die, or kill myself! No, don't touch me . . . keep away from me! Go to your Mission Santa Barbara, go . . . go. Ah, Dios!" She flung her hands above her head and clasped them, for the moment utterly bereft of her reason. As her husband came near to her, she leaped suddenly backward. "Beast! Devil!" she screamed, and crashed to the floor.

Her head struck a corner of the heavy table, and as she lay on the dirt floor, blood streamed from her temple.

Her screams had at last brought Angustias, frightened, into the room, and she was on her knees beside the now motionless figure before Pedro.

"She has fainted," exclaimed Angustias breathlessly, "and cut her head . . . pobrecilla!"

Pedro Fages threw his hat, gaiters and riding whip into a corner. "Oh, God!" he muttered. "Oh, my God!" Then he lifted the lady in his arms and carried her to her bed.

So the Mission of Santa Barbara was founded without the Governor of California being present.

But when the mission was already ten days old, the Governor, his son and a small party arrived at the place. Another ceremony was carried out in solemn reverence, at which the Governor attended with a stern set face. And when the rites were over, he knelt for a long time before the crucifix altar. Those who watched near him said when he arose, his face was wet with tears.

AT THE JAMES

A full week of real entertainment is in store for local movie goers at the James Theatre starting Friday evening when "Too Hot To Handle," a thrill-packed action tale of a death defying newsreel cameraman and a famous aristocrat. It reunites Clark Gable and Myrna Loy and has as a supporting cast, Walter Connolly and Leo Carrillo and dozens of other stars.

In the story you will see "Doc" Gable and Myrna Loy and has as a supporting cast, Walter Connolly and Leo Carrillo and dozens of other stars.

Your Saturday evening will be well spent in seeing Deanna Durbin and Jackie Cooper in "That Certain Age."

On Sunday, "Army Girl" with Madge Evans and Preston Foster will be a glorious spectacle. Mighty in its sweeping portrayal of the mechanical American Army of today.

That famous serial "Flash Gordon's trip to Mars" will be a part of Monday evening's attraction. The feature will be "Young Dr. Kildare" with Lew Ayres and Lionel Barrymore.

"In Old Mexico" with William Boyd on Tuesday evening, is the best of all Hopalong Cassidy pictures. To the land where death lurks in the eyes of lovely señoritas and every blade of cacti may hide an enemy gun.

On Wednesday evening the James presents a double feature: "The Divorce of Lady X" with Merle Oberon and Lawrence Olivier and "Boots and Saddles" with Gene Autry, Judith Allen and Smiley Burnette.

Divorce of Lady X" with Merle Oberon, Xlatio, Xplosive, and Xquisite.

Gloria Stuart, Mich Whalen and Chick Chandler in "Time Out For Murder" will be shown on Thursday evening.

SCHEDULED FEEDING OF COLTS IMPORTANT

Increased interest in horse and mule raising in Kentucky has brought one of the largest crops of colts in years. A statement from the College of Agriculture at Lexington stresses the importance of good feeding of growing colts. More than 90 per cent of the total increase in weight from birth to maturity occurs during the first year of a colt's life. Seventy-five per cent of the increase in depth of chest takes place during the same period. This means that adequate feeding is essential if the proper growth of the skeleton is to take place.

Colts that are being raised for sale are in greater demand if they are kept in good condition. Liberal feeding of grain and hay will secure plish this. On the other hand colts will develop into good farm work horses if they are fed limited grain rations but are allowed plenty of good hay. This system is economical and produces horses that are sound in their feet and legs. A good grain mixture for the first two years consists of two parts by weight of corn, two parts oats and one part wheat bran. Mixed hays, such as timothy, alfalfa and timothy-clover, are satisfactory. Good pasture helps reduce the amount of grain and hay needed and results in cheaper production. Provide salt as needed and have plenty of fresh water available at all times.

During the first winter the colt will eat, when fully fed, one and a half pounds of grain mixture for each 100 pounds of live weight and six to eight pounds of hay per day. If the grain is limited to one pound for each 100 pounds of live weight, the amount of hay consumed will increase to eight to 10 pounds per day. After one year of age the colt can be raised more on roughage and less on grain.

1938 TOBACCO CROP STRIPPED AND GRADED

The 1938 tobacco crop will be an easy crop to strip and grade according to H. A. Terry, federal tobacco grader who assisted in the holding of four tobacco meetings in the county the past week. The reason is the crop runs better than average in color, weight and quality.

Greater care in stripping and grading according to use was urged at the meetings. The bases for stripping should be according to three important uses: that is, granulators (tobacco granulated for sack to beco, includes flyings, etc., which cannot be stemmed cutters (for ready made cigarettes) and fillers. It will be found this year that the leaf and tips of many crops are of smoker quality and will make cigarette cutters. Careful grading according to uses and color will add many dollars to the value of the crop.

The Federal graders at the meetings discussed how the grading systems worked on the markets. Where a number of growers on the particular market get together and apply for Federal grading on the particular market a referendum will be taken by the Government. If two thirds or more of the growers selling tobacco the previous year at that market vote in favor of grading, the grading systems is established. There is no cost to either the warehouse or to the grower for this service.

Growers present at the meetings stated they were strongly in favor of grading on the markets. They requested that plans be made for a referendum on market grading for the coming year.

U. K. OFFERS COURSE FOR HOME ECONOMICS GIRLS

Is the way to a man's heart thru his stomach? A positive answer is available on that—though, offhand, it would seem to be probably. Anyway, senior women in the home economics department of the University of Kentucky who spend eight weeks in the home management house are prepared for such an emergency.

Attractive and well balanced meals—at 11 cents a meal per person? Miss Celso Lane, of Fayette county, recently turned in a report of her work as buyer and meal planner.

During the period she had time for marketing, meal planning and other details, putting into practice things she had learned during her four years of college. An analysis of the figures of Miss Lane's report show that she was allowed 35 cents a day, but spent less than that.

What kind of food did Miss Lane serve her fellow students at 11 cents per meal? A glance over a menu lists shows chuck roast, stuffed peppers, welch rabbit, fruit juices, corn, carrots, salmon casserole, eggs, egg salad sandwiches, milk, cream and butter, liver and bacon, and salads. Obviously the young women didn't lose weight during the time Miss Lane was chief cook.

The home economics seniors take turns in cooking the various kinds of work necessary to successfully running a home. This year it was necessary to open a second home management house to take care of the increased enrollment.

NEW REGULATIONS ISSUED ON RABBIT BAG LIMIT

Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, calls to the attention of all rabbit hunters the new regulation on the bag limit.

Heretofore there was no limit on the number of rabbits a hunter could have in possession at any one time, but with the passage of the new Game and Fish Laws by the last Legislature, a limit of 8 a day or 16 in possession at any time was included.

The merchant and wholesale dealer come under this restriction as well as the hunter and such persons are warned to keep within the law by not having in their place of business more than the specified bag limit. Such violation of the law carries upon conviction, a fine of not less than $15 and not more than $100.

All Conservation Officers have been instructed to rigidly enforce this law.

Attention is also called by the Division of Game and Fish to the closed season on all wildlife with exception of ducks from Nov. 1, to Nov. 24.

Squirrels, Rabbits, Quail and doves are all protected during this period. Persons training their dogs in the field during this period must do so with a small caliber pistol. Use of a shotgun or rifle during this period is unlawful and will be construed as "poison of game" and will be prosecuted as such.

Several Jessen county poultry raisers are producing fliers and broilers for the holiday season. Farmers who raised extra early pullets are now getting good prices for eggs, with prospects for a profitable season from late October.

Orie Lee Price Killed In Automobile Mishap Here Early Sunday Morning

Youth Returning Home From O'possum Hunt

Orie Lee Price, a popular young Walton man was the fatal victim of an unusual accident early Sunday morning, Nov. 13, on Church Street Road. Young Price was pinned between his car, which had slipped from Jack used in repairing a flat tire, and a tree. The car had been parked on a steep grade on Percival pike near the Walton-Nicholson pike while Price and his brother were opossum hunting.

Paul Price who had entered the car as his brother prepared to remove the jack, was thrown to the floor. His brother seeing that he was unable to apply the brakes jumped on the running board as the car backed down the grade. The vehicle then crashed into the tree, pinning the victim.

After Paul Price attempted in vain to remove his brother, he sought aid from a nearby farm house, but upon return found that the victim had died instantly of a crushed skull. Funeral services were held at the Chambers and Grubbs Funeral Home Monday afternoon, Nov. 21. Burial was in Richmond Cemetery. His leaves his widow, Mrs. Etta B. Price; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Price; his brother, and a three-year-old son.

Pillbeavers were Frank Harrington, Stanley Morrison, Deward Morrison, Gordon Moore, James Coyle Jr., and Gilbert Harrington.

BEARCATS OPEN SEASON WITH WIN OVER BURLINGTON

With claws and fangs sharpened to a razor edge, the Walton Bearcats marched into the den of the Burlington Tomcats last Friday night in the Boone County Conference opener and emerged victors by a score of 32 to 3. A bucket late in the third quarter by Huby, Burlington score merchant, and a foul shot by Benson in the first minute of play were all that kept the contest from being a "no-hitter."

Led by McClure, who was red-hot to the extent of 16 points, and Chapman who tallied 8, mostly from way back, the Bearcats were masters throughout. McClure and Darrell played bang-up ball on the floor and each scored three points. Pennington was good for two and displayed a streak of speed that left to the hopeless Wildcats bewildered.

First Tobacco Edition Published by Advertiser; To Be Annual Issue

This issue, First Tobacco Edition, containing 24 pages is the largest single newspaper ever published by a Boone county newspaper. The edition will be received by every boxholder in Boone and Gallatin counties and all boxholders in northern Grant and southern Kenton counties.

As an idea of the magnitude of the edition, it took more than a ton of newspaper, which, if laid end to end, would reach a distance of more than ten miles and required twenty-five pounds of ink to print the copies.

This week's Advertiser will reach subscribers one day late due to the additional work necessary to print the many extra pages. The publishers will appreciate your comments concerning the First Tobacco Edition. For extra copies call at the Advertiser office or phone Walton 33.

The First Tobacco Edition contains besides the regular weekly amount of news and advertising, special news stories and advertising concerning tobacco growers, warehouses, auctioneers, general business firms, organizations and professional men interested in our community.

Big Bone Creek . . .

Survey In 1773 by Captain Bullitt Is First To Be Made In Boone County, Records Reveal to Writer

The survey of Big Bone Creek in 1773, by Captain Bullitt was the first to be made in Boone county. It was then that the discovery was made of the wonderfully well preserved bones of the mammoth mastodon, the place possibly being, back in the machine and pleistocene ages a lick for the huge extinct animal. The largest licks yet to be found were unearthed, and now are in the British Museum at London.

Tanner Station, now Petersburg, was the first settlement to be made in Boone County so far as is known to history. The story such as will fill the pages of the Historical magazine section of the Walton Advertiser to be issued in December.

activity will make interesting and instructive reading for present and future generation.

No expense is being spared the publisher to make this an accessible edition that will mark a step in their progressive journalistic career. Farmers, stockmen, business men alike are making this possible by their generous use of advertising space and reservations of this should be made at once.

Helps Win Over Workers

The Happy Helpers class of the Methodist Sunday school defeated the Willing Workers of the Christian church in a double ball basketball attraction at the local high school gymnasium Wednesday evening. The men's team of the Happy Helpers defeated the Willing Workers' big five by a 24-22 score. The Methodist girls won 20 to 12.

Both contests were filled with thrills and spills. A full house attended the game and according to sponsors of the affair the undertaking was a complete success.

MORE BLOOD SPILLED IN BLOODY BREATHITT

There was further bloodshed during the celebrated feud trails growing out of Breathitt County's famous Marcum case in 1903, data gathered by research workers of the Federal Writers' Project for Kentucky, a branch of WPA reveals.

Fearing reprisal and open breaks between rival factions when the trial was called in the county seat at Jackson, the State militia was ordered out and made its encampment near the courthouse with a patrol over the immediate area. All spectators and witnesses were searched for arms before being allowed to enter the courtroom. In fact, every precaution was taken to keep down bloodshed.

The research recently completed in that county brings to light how that blood was spilled. An alert sentry on duty around one side of the courthouse heard what he took to be footfalls approaching his post and shouted the customary "Halt." When his challenge was unanswered, he fired point blank at the spot where he thought a troublemaker was advancing. Next day it was found his fire had reached its mark and with deadly effect in the head of a roving cow.

SELECTING BREEDING TURKEYS IN FALL

The selection of breeding turkeys in the fall before the best birds are sold for the holiday trade, is urged by poultry experts at the University of Kentucky. Many turkey raisers follow the plan of selecting breeding stock each fall. The following spring, after the egg-laying season, the breeding birds are sold to avoid carrying them to the next breeding season.

The following suggestions for selecting breeding stock are offered by Dr. Stanley J. Marsden, turkey specialist of the United States department of agriculture:

Choose birds with broad, well-fleshed breasts, and well-fleshed legs. There should be good breadth of back and body. The breast bone should be parallel or nearly so, to the back. The neck and legs should be reasonably short. There should be a good length of keel, and good depth to the body. Health and vigor of course, are important.

The flock owner may choose the weight of bird that he likes best, as some strains of turkey are heavy and some light. Early maturity, regardless of weight, is another important point. Where birds are all the same age, and if the selection is made between the ages of 24 and 28 weeks, it is not difficult to choose the quick maturing birds.

Breed characteristics should be observed and only birds of standard quality chosen. The laying flock should be uniform in color and free from pendulous crops, deformed legs, cross beaks, crooked backs, split wings and other deformities.

PAYS TO TOP-DRESS OLD ALFALFA STANDS

Top-dressing good stands of old alfalfa pays well, as was illustrated in a test made at the Western Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Princeton. Plots of four and five-year-old alfalfa that had received initial applications of 16 per cent superphosphate were top-dressed in the spring with an additional 500 pounds to the acre.

Average yields per acre that year were 5,084 pounds of hay from land that had not been rephosphated, and 7,377 pounds from land where the additional phosphate had been scattered. Observed effects of top-dressing with potash indicate that sometimes it too can be used profitably.

LITTER OF PURBREDS WEIGHS 2,160 POUNDS

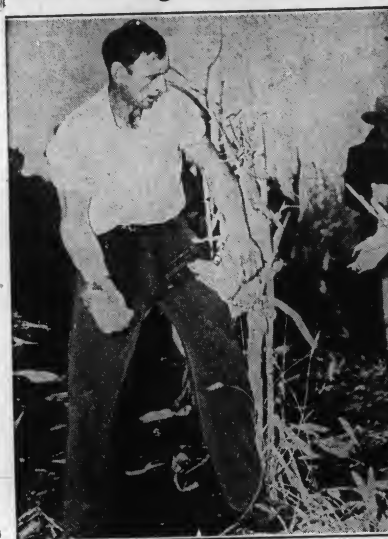

Frequently, hog producers who keep purebreds develop the false market-hog producers to seller-of-purebreds exclusively. On the other hand, many producers, like Douglas Graham, Hopkins county, Kentucky, keep purebreds because they develop into hogs economically. That this is sound thinking is borne out by the cost record on a purebred 11-pig litter, owned by Graham, and entered in the Kentucky ton-litter contest in 1938. This litter when 185 days old weighed 2,160 pounds, or 165 plus pounds per pig.

That the pigs were well finished is attested to by the fact that they sold for $9.85 per hundred-weight, which, so far is top price of the year for hogs.

Aside from the fast-gaining ability of the pigs, and their response to good feeding and care, the early-farrowing date, January 28, was a contributing factor. A later farrowed litter would not have been ready for market when the price was at peak.

The feed mixture consisted of corn a small amount each of wheat middlings and ground wheat, supplemented by skim milk and tankage. The pigs were grazed on a pasture of red clover, lespedeza and redtop. The litter sold for $208.08. The feed, pasturage, and labor were charged at $11.06. The cash return above feed, pasturage and labor was $96.36, or $8.76 per pig.

Corn-Husking Champ in Action

Although Kenton County is one of the smallest in the State it ranks second in population. While measuring only 25 miles long and 12 miles wide and having only 104,320 acres, it has well over 100,000 noses to count at the next census taking; the 1930 tab shows the population figure to be $2,534. This is another of the little known facts about Kenton County. The little known facts about Kenton County being assembled by workers of the Federal Writers Project, pasturage, and labor were charged at $11.06. The cash return

ELDER MOST ACCUSED OF KENTUCKY TREES

Of all the trees in Kentucky the elder is the most accused. The aspen tree is runner-up, say the editors of the Federal Writers' Project, W. P. A.

A superstition handed down for more than a century has it that the elder was the tree which Judas hanged himself. Another belief that persists in rural sections is that wood from an elder was used to make the cross on which Christ was crucified.

Many of these simple country folk hold to the belief that it was the aspen tree from which wood was used for the cross of the unrepentant thief put to death with the Savior. That's the reason aspen leaves always quiver, according to the superstition.

IT IS "JUICE" HARP

Is it doubtful if there is a neighborhood in Kentucky which there cannot be found a Jew's harp, that treasure dear to the heart of almost every growing boy. And yet it remained for research workers for the Federal Writers' Project, a branch of WPA, to correct the name of this mouth organ in divulging another little known item of interest about the State. From Cumberland County these workers report that the name of the instrument is not Jew's harp at all but "Juice harp."

If its local news, you will read it in the Walton Advertiser.

Endorse Sale of Christmas Seals

Endorsement by the Elks of America in the sale of Christmas Seals for the National Tuberculosis Association was announced today by Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director. Various other fraternal organizations throughout the country have expressed approval of the campaign. Dr. Emerson said:

"The Elks of America are interested in the fight against tuberculosis," said Dr. Edward J. McCormick of Toledo, Ohio, Exalted Grand Ruler. "I am very happy to express approval of your Christmas Seal endeavor and of your nationwide activities. I am sure that every Elk in America will be glad to give you whatever aid is possible. I trust that success will continue in your endeavor to the end that this dread disease will be completely conquered."

The National Grange sent an endorsement through its Master, L. J. Taber of Columbus, Ohio, Mr. Taber said:

"Each returning Christmas Season should bring to us the ceaseless challenge of trying in every way possible to help those suffering from disease or handicaps. For almost a third of a century, the Christmas Seal Campaign has been a factor in helping to stamp out the Great White Plague. Our million members hope for a great sale of Christmas Seals in 1938."

Walter P. Dexter of Chicago, speaking as president of the Lions International, said:

"The work of the National Tuberculosis Association for the eradication of tuberculosis is an exceptionally noteworthy activity. On behalf of Lions International, it is an exceptionally noteworthy activity. On behalf of Lions International, it is a pleasure to endorse this splendid movement. You may depend on the International recommending unit clubs."

WART, MOLE CURES ARE SUGGESTED

Backwoods Kentuckians had unique ways of treating warts or moles and folklore unearthed by the Federal Writers' Project, WPA, has brought this interesting fact to the outer world. One of the "cures" was to steal mother's dishrag from the kitchen, rub it gently over the surface of wart or mole and then bury the rag in an ash hopper. Another was to steal a piece of beef, apply it in the same manner and hide the meat under a flat rock. Wart or mole was then supposed to vanish.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS Hybrid corn on the farm of V. C. Razer in Fleming county yielded 93 bushels to the acre.

Unseasonable weather for stripping gave Grant county farmers time to improve their stripping rooms. Sheep raisers in Washington county have mapped an improvement program of five years, duration.

Lyon county strawberry growers are encouraged through cooperative marketing agreements with growers in Crittenden county.

So You Think!

RICHMOND, KENTUCKY

ARE YOU NEUROTIC?

Perhaps you are tempted to say, "Surely you don't mean that I am neurotic?" "Why not?" I reply, "Why shouldn't I insist that you are neurotic? Is it something that you need to be ashamed of or to hide?" You may be inclined to admit that, "The answer is a little nearer to Yes, if you mean my relatives and my friends are neurotic cases; and definitely Yes! If you mean people I do not like are neurotic."

"For the present, I am not considering the fears, compulsions, and obsessions of your acquaintances. I am insisting that, even if you do not have some of the dramatic forms of neurosis, you are a victim of some mild types. Surely, you will admit that you worry too much, that you are often uncertain of yourself, that you are provoked at times by your own timidity, that you make yourself unhappy by being oversensitive, that you are susceptible to fatigue, and that you are harassed in other ways?"

"Yes," a man may reply, "I have these common cross-grain disturbances which keep my mental machine from running free. But you do not understand my problems."

"Tom, Dick, and Harry are noisy at the table and fussy most of the time, and their mother is snappy too. She spends her time at the beauty-parlor, at the bridge-club, gossiping with neighbors, or buying things on an over-used charge account. She never takes time to sew on a button nor to sweep down a spider-web. In fact, the whole family is on the go so much of the day and night, there are no homes fires to be kept burning and the family barometer stays equally."

"Don't such conditions justify my mental squalls and storms?" you ask. "If you want advice, I must admit that you have indicated how family quarrels often start. But you have admitted that you need an ager-arster more than you do a lightning arrestor. In fact, such complaints would tell a psychiatrist that you are stewing in your own juice."

"Of course, you can improve your mind-health if you realize your symptoms and want to be cured. It must be admitted too that you neurosis is not insanity and is not likely to develop into insanity."

"Furthermore, some neurosis have advantages. For instance, many great thinkers and great leaders were neurotic. The list includes Alexander the Great, Caesar, Napoleon, Poe, Whitman, and many other outstanding personalities. They were considered peculiar by their own contemporaries."

"So you may as well admit that you are neurotic."

$5,276.910 CASH HELD BY STATE

The State ended October with a cash balance of $5,276,910.76, exclusive of $200,624.70 in Federal money for highways, and $7,159,882.50 in outstanding warrants, figures obtained from the office of Treasurer John E. Buckingham showed today.

Cash balances by funds were listed as follows: General expenditure, $621,638; check collection, $73,178.96; minor, $1,684,259.97; highway bridge bond, $768,865; highway bridge bond sinking, $971,285.25; county road trust, $218,079.18; State road, $186,428.98; old age pension, $233,573.86; unemployment compensation, $363,810.80; Welfare Department construction, $904,974.09.

HOW TO GO BROKE RAISING CHICKENS

The season is at hand when chicken raisers can check up on their success in the poultry business. Pullets that are not laying heavily now probably won't pay well. Reports received at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture indicate the following 10 ways persons lose money with chickens:

Start chicks too late; start with poor quality chicks; brood in filthy, poorly ventilated quarters; quit feeding mash after first few weeks; raise pullets on disease and parasite infested with worms; house birds in uncomfortable quarters; fail to control lice and mites; feed a ration of white corn and ice water in winter; fail to cull more than once a year.

TVA started work of transporting on barges nearly two score frame buildings to the Gilbertville, Ky., Dam site from Pickwick Landing Dam, 184 miles away, the dwellings to be used for dam workers; cost of the job is estimated at more than $200,000.

Chevrolet Takes Big Strides Ahead for 1939

New Aero-stream styled bodies combine with major mechanical improvements to provide new beauty, safety, comfort and operating ease, in the 1939 Chevrolets, presented October 22, and featured at the big auto shows this month. The new models are offered on two chassis, the Master De Luxe and the Master 85, both of which are powered with Chevrolet's famous six-cylinder valve-in-head engine.

A new vacuum gear shift mechanism with steering column control, optional on all models at small extra cost, does 80 per cent of the work of shifting gears. The Master De Luxe series features a new riding system, in which a brand new Chevrolet Knee-Action mechanism is scientifically co-ordinated with new ride stabilizer and double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers to furnish a smooth, soft ride.

Central picture is the new Master De Luxe Sport Sedan. Upper right: front end view of the 1939 car. Upper left: Master De Luxe front suspension unit, complete. Lower left: accessibility and finger-tip ease of operation are two major features of Chevrolet's vacuum gear shift with steering column control. Lower right: As the handbrake on all models is re-located under the cowl, front compartment floor is cleared in cars with vacuum gear shift.

Owensboro, Ky., reports business boom, resulting from oil activity and general upward trend in business, it being estimated that oil operations are putting into circulation there between $300,000 and $500,000 each month.

Thrills Aplenty for Women At New York Fair, 1939

NEW YORK (Special).—The thrill capital for women next year will be the New York World's Fair. Designers, merchants, manufacturers, artists, governments—all "the authorities"—have seen to that.

And yet, uniquely enough, there will be no "woman's building" at the $150,000,000 exposition. Fair officials at the outset decided against such "segregation." Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation, said that "a woman's building at a modern-day exposition would not be in tune with the progress of womanhood."

Now, in this last year of construction, it is already obvious that woman is going to have her due at the New York fair. Those fortunate enough to attend are going to know thrills that will live with them always. The following presents only a pot-shot at all there will be to interest and delight women in the 1216½ acres of fair grounds. It is one observer's idea of what to see where.

Some of the Wonders

House of Jewels.—A $5,000,000 display, by gem mining concerns and leading jewelers, showing stones in the rough, precious gems in finest settings, famous gems and perfect examples of goldsmith's and silversmith's art.

Apparel and Accessories.—In their own building along Petticoat Lane—a $750,000 exhibit of all dear to woman in her costume and in furs, hats, handbags and similar wearables or gadgets.

Cosmetics Building.—showing just about everything ever done since the history of beauty sides and preparations began a few thousand years ago—with accent on the cosmetics and perfumes of today and a look at those of tomorrow. (They put thousands of dollars' worth in the cornerstone alone.)

Hall of Textiles.—showing how they (worms to machines) make woven fabrics—hand looms, demonstrations of needle arts, discourses on home furnishing materials—silks and woolen here, rayons in one wing, cottons in another, 65,000 square feet, to be exact, of allied exhibits.

Health and Science

Home Furnishings Building.—"heart of the Community Interest Zone," with its focal display showing the meaning of "Home" in present and future phases and how to create one of your own—all in exhibits that thrill.

Medicine and Public Health and Science and Education Building.—a "famous first" exhibit showing the wonders to be accomplished by due attention to the "body beautiful"—a must attraction that'll not leave one with a dull moment.

Gas Industries Building.—everything from a laboratory to an all-gas house, a cooking school and a gas flame 50 feet high—spectacular but looking to comfort at home.

Food Buildings 1, 2 and 3.—putting romance into the age-old task of fixing a meal, by and with the world's knowledge and products.

Horticultural Exhibit.—acres of gardens, flowers and equipment (with a chance for a cup of tea).

Thrills in a Lifetime

Theme Centre.—thrill of a lifetime from a ride on the "Magic Carpet" through the 200-foot globe and the World of Tomorrow.

Contemporary Arts Building.—World's Fair Theatre (music and drama)—Consumer Building—an "Hospitality Centre," first of its kind, for feminine get-togethers—spectacles on the island stage of New York State's Amphitheatre on Mountain Lake—products and kitchens of the world in two score foreign-built pavilions—the Hall of Nations, the Court of State Buildings, the $3,000,000 Federal Exhibit—buildings of industries and the City of New York—nightly spectacles of water-fire-color-and-sound—200 acres of amusements—and, withal, a setting of courts and garden with an ample supply of shaded benches.

Refreshment to go on and on may be had in any one of some 80 restaurants, affording a total of 43,200 seats, and serving the meals of almost every known nation. And—perhaps most thoughtful provision of all—the youngsters can be parked in the Children's World where they'll be happy and well-cared for.

60,495 State CCC Youths Allot $12,996,000 To Relatives

What the Civilian Conservation Corps has done for Kentucky

Kentucky was outlined briefly but impressively in a statement issued in Washington by Robert Fechner, its Federal director.

Entitled "a brief summary of certain phases of the C. C. C. program in Kentucky from April, 1933, to June 30, 1938," the statement shows:

An aggregate of 60,495 Kentucky young men have received C. C. C. rolls and 4,540 "non-enrolled personnel" or reserve officers, work supervisors, etc.

Kentucky C. C. C. Operations have cost about $41,185,000.

Of this total cost, estimated allotments to dependents by enrollees have amounted to $12,996,000, the statement explaining that enrollees allot from $22 to $25 of their $30 monthly cash allowance to dependents.

Fechner said: "Improvement and protection against fire of forest resources and the extension of soil erosion control operations have been emphasized by the C. C. C. in Kentucky during the last five years. In addition, the corps has developed excellent park recreational facilities, improved drainage and certain agricultural areas, and helped in the establishment of a national park at Mammoth Cave. Here are some of the work accomplishments: 14,338 acres of forest on which fire hazards were reduced; 61,500 man-days of labor spent fighting forest fires; 22,767 covered on forest stand improvement work; 109,211 erosion control check dams constructed, and 440,261,174 square yards of gully construction, seeding, sodding and tree planting."

In asking the Experiment Station or a county agent about tobacco soil, tell how the land has been fertilized, limed, manured and cropped in recent years, and about how much tobacco and corn it will produce in its present condition.

L. & N. BRAKEMAN AIDS TO PREVENT WRECK AT ITON

Several persons now living owe their lives to L. & N. Railroad brake-J. N. Taylor of Louisville, according to the L. & N. Employees Magazine for November. On October 9, Brakeman Taylor's train stopped at Irvington, Ky., for a passenger train and had pulled down to the highway crossing, ready to cross over as soon as the passenger train passed. As the crossing bell began to ring and automobile driven by a woman and occupied by several people, stopped on the railroad track. Brakeman Taylor saw the auto stop and motioned the driver to move it off the track but his signalling failed to bring action.

The passenger train was coming fast and there was no time to waste so Taylor ran to the automobile, shoved it backward off the track and jumped out of the way just in time to miss being struck himself by the speeding train.

PRESIDENT HILL DESCRIBES FEDERAN AID BARGE LINES AS IMPROPER

Describing the Government's huge expenditures during the past 14 years on the Inland Waterways Corporation, or Federal Barge Line, as an unbound business enterprise at the taxpayers' expense, President James B. Hill of the L. & N. Railroad, through the L. & N. Employees Magazine for November, urges railroad men to insist upon liquidation of the corporation and its accessory facilities.

The operation of the Federal Barge Line by a government agency is improper, Mr. Hill declares, because it is in competition with other privately owned water carriers which cannot have many advantages enjoyed by the Barge Line; because it is not necessary as an experiment; because it creates transportation facilities inferior to railroads and not needed for the country's commerce, and because its port-to-port rates are not subject to the jurisdiction of the Inter-state Commerce Commission, leaving it free to divert business to itself and without meeting all the costs which a private corporation must meet. Furthermore, it takes tonnage which would go to railroads or other carriers, and puts about 1,700 railroad men out of employment annually. This figure is estimated from the 2,109,854 tons handled in 1937 and the gross freight receipts of $8,706,222 produced. Mr. Hill points out that special committee appointed under House Resolution No. 238 in 1933 to investigate government competition with private enterprise, reported in part as follows:

"The Committee recommends that the service of the Federal Barge Line, conducted by the Inland Waterways Corporation, should be discontinued and liquidated by sale to private enterprise. . . . One of the things which has been demonstrated is that transportation of materials by barges of the Inland Waterways Corporation is not cheap transportation."

L. & N. PRESIDENT ADDRESSES HAZARD CROWD

What the November L. & N. Employees Magazine believes to be an innovation in the presentation of speakers to an audience was successfully accomplished during a meeting of several hundred L. & N. employees at Hazard, Ky., on October 26. Through a microphone-telephone hook-up with an amplifier system, James B. Hill, president of the L. & N., seated at his home in Louisville, addressed the Hazard audience in 15-minute plus, the greater effort in providing more efficient and friendly service to L. & N. patrons.

It was the first time this device for bringing a busy railroad executive to employees on distant parts of the road has been tried on the L. & N. The Magazine states, and it is planned to continue it.

SUGGESTION WINS $100 PRIZE FOR L. & N. OFFICE

A suggestion as to more efficient and economical switching of cars at the L. & N. Railroad's Birmingham, Ala., freight house won a $100 cash at the L. & N. Railroad's Birmingham local freight office, the November L. & N.'s suggestion system which was started January 1937, and is described as one of the most constructive that have been proffered.

L. & N. carloadings in October were 69.1 percent of normal—a drop of 4.3 points under October 1937, and 3.7 points under September 1938, say the L. & N. Employees Magazine for November, which attributes the slight decline to somewhat less favorable business conditions and to the warm weather which has retarded the movement of domestic coal. Total L. & N. carloadings for the first ten months of 1938 were 65.5 percent of normal 144 points under the same period of 1937.

MANY KENTUCKY FARMS

TO HAVE ELECTRICITY

Lines already constructed by farmers' cooperatives or under consideration may bring electricity to a total of 36,200 Kentucky farms by the end of 1939. Last July 1, it was estimated that 10,000 Kentucky farmers were receiving electricity or cooperatively built lines, financed through the assistance of the Rural Electrification Administration.

Since July 1, allotments have been made for 4,388 miles of lines to serve 16,732 farms, and under consideration are an additional 2,417 miles of lines which would place electricity on 9,468 farms of the state. Cooperative organizations of farmers have provided electricity or are planning to build lines in 90 counties.

DISCUSSES ELECTRIC SERVICE

A circular called "Electric Service for the Farmstead," published by the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky, has been sent upon request to hundreds of Kentucky farmers in the past year. It deals with the use of electricity on the farm, wiring of buildings, location of lights and switches, electrical terms, reading of meters, equipment, fixtures, measuring consumption and the like, and gives information that every family using electricity should know. Copies may be had from county agents and home demonstration agents, or by writing to the college.

Death in His Eyes

Here is a dramatic close-up of John W. Deering as he appeared a short time before five riflemen executed him at Salt Lake City prison for the robbery-murder of Oliver R. Meredith, Jr. An electro-cardiogram was made of his heart's action and stoppage when the bullets crashed into him.

We must learn not to be yellow and quit, not to be crabbies, not to develop alibis, not to live in the past, and not to do the other things which show that we are bad actors. We must learn to forget the things which are behind and reach unto those things that are before, or, as Lincoln said, we must believe 'this too, will pass' and we can then escape being unusually queer.

ELLISON GRANT COUNTY

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Webster and daughter of Zion Station and Mr. J. W. Osborne of Williamson were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Alexander and son Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nix and son and Mr. John Chatman called on Mrs. Minnie Isaac and Mrs. Lula Sipples, Sunday night.

HOW QUEER ARE YOU?

The fact that you are queer is shown by the following per cents which tell how queer your children are. For example, 30 per cent of the students at Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College admit they are afraid of the dark, 46 per cent state they had a nickname they didn't like, 50 per cent confess they have a great dread of fire, 46 per cent admit they live a make-believe life, and 66 per cent often dream of people being dead.

Furthermore, about 20 per cent of the public school children in your county would be afraid to turn back for something forgotten, 27 per cent would not dare walk under a ladder, and 84 per cent knock on wood after telling about good luck. Others have pronounced beliefs relative to 13, Friday, black cats, and the like.

Even at the college level one finds that about half the students believe some people can tell whether others are honest by looking them in the eye, about 20 per cent believe it is best to plant crops according to phases of the moon, and 10 per cent believe some houses are haunted or some people have seen ghosts.

In fact, people are so gullible that they readily accept second-hand superstitions or what people tell them who are fishing for suckers. Even teachers, preachers, and lawyers, for instance, are often surprised to discover themselves on some clever list. If, however, you are interested in determining more directly how queer you are, see how many of the following questions you must answer yes.

1. Do you generally stick to a job until it is completed?
2. Do you often forget the feelings of others?
3. Do you keep yourself in the background?
4. Do you dislike to speak in public?
5. Do you enjoy arguing?
6. Do you talk to yourself?
7. Do you crave praise?

If most of your answers are yes to these and similar questions you are probably introverted, bookish and inclined to build castles in Spain. However, if your answers are mainly no, you are probably an extrovert. You are less likely to be disturbed by criticism, defeat, finan-

LONDON MEN ACCLAIMED CHAMPION FISHING

According to an article carried in London, Ky., paper, J. T. Jones and John Dillon are London's champion fishermen, having broken all season records, when from the waters of Rockcastle, about three miles below Somerset road bridge, they caught two pig by wall-eyes pikes, commonly called Jack salmon. Mr. Jones caught measured 31 inches long and weighed ten and a half pounds. Mr. Dillon's fish was slightly less, being 28 inches long and weighing seven and a half pounds.

LAW CONFLICTS

Although the Federal regulations state that there is an open season on Jacksnipe, the Kentucky law says that the season is closed on this particular species of birds.

There seems to be quite a bit of confusion in the ranks of hunters as to which regulation is right. Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, states where state and federal laws differ, the law with the most restriction is the one that is enforced. In other words the federal law says that there is an open season on jack-snipe in Kentucky and the state law says that there is not. The state law has the most restriction and, therefore, is the one to be obeyed.

The federal regulations state that any person under 16 years of age does not need a Federal "duck stamp" to hunt ducks, but the state law point out that any person regardless of age must have a state hunting license in order to hunt. Outside of these two differences the state and federal regulations coincide.

Here's the Way To Roast Turkey

The following suggestions for roasting turkey are offered by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture:

Spinkle inside the cavity of the cleaned bird with salt, using an eighth to a quarter of a teaspoonful per pound of weight, and fill with dressing. Fold the wings in a triangle and catch tips of wings under the back of the bird. Tie the muscles and skin of legs to the lower part of the drumsticks, press the legs against the body and tie the ends of the cord firmly around the tail piece. Lace the skin of the opening together with a cord. Brush the skin with melted fat, wrap each leg with cloth dipped in fat, bringing it well over the muscle. Lay the bird breast side down on a rack in an open pan and place in a moderate oven of 350 to 360 degrees, and cover with a cloth dipped in melted fat.

Cook breast side down about half the time, then turn the breast side up. Place a piece of body fat on the breast and legs. Baste every half-hour over cloth with melted fat. If the bird is not browned remove the cloth toward the end of the cooking.

Approximate time for roasting turkey in a moderate oven (350 to 360 degrees): 6 to 10 pound bird, 20 to 25 minutes per pound, or 3 to 3 1/2 hours; 10 to 16 pound bird, 18 to 20 minutes per pound or 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 hours; 16 to 25 pound bird, 15 to 18 minutes per pound, or 4 1/2 to 6 hours.

LANDS POSTED

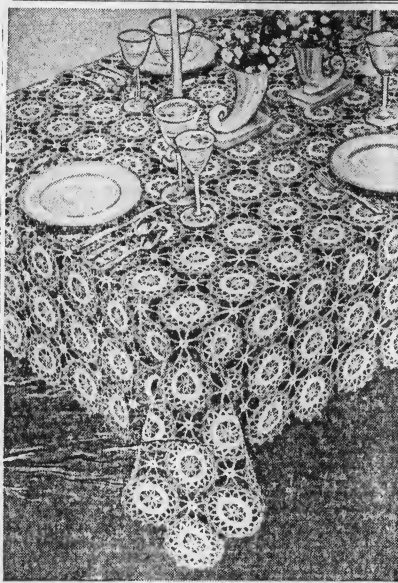

All persons are hereby warned not to hunt with gun, dog or trap of any kind on the land of the undersigned. Any person or persons caught trespassing will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. It is necessary that we take this step to protect our stock, fences and game. This also includes fox hunters, who in the past have done a great deal of damage to our fences and sheep, many of the latter being killed by their dogs.

In Fulton and Hickman counties, farmers have noted a 100 per cent increase in hay crops when phosphate was used. Demonstrations have resulted in many farmers using phosphate for the first time.

NEW CRANBERRY RECIPES ANSWERS LOCAL REQUEST

By MARIE GIBSON

Courier-Journal Food Editor

In answer to a request from a "Walton housewife" for information concerning cranberries, we wish to say that this fruit is available almost the year around. The berries are to be found in Walton stores from October through April and sometimes in May. The first of December is probably the best time to buy them for jelly making.

To make cranberry jelly, pick over and wash four cups of cranberries; add about two cups of water and boil for twenty minutes. Press through a sieve, cook the juice and pulp about five minutes and add two cups of sugar. Cook two or three minutes longer. Pour into molds.

Here are some interesting cranberry recipes.

CRANBERRY-QUINCE CONSERVE

Three cups cranberries, two cups chopped quinces, two cups chopped apples, juice and rind of one orange, four cups sugar, three-quarter cup chopped walnuts.

Combine all ingredients except walnuts and cook mixture rapidly until thick. Add walnuts, remove from heat. Pack in sterilized jars and seal with paraffin.

CRANBERRY MUFFINS

Two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, well beaten, one cup milk, four tablespoons melted shortening, one-quarter cup cranberry jelly.

Sift flour, measure and sift again with baking powder, sugar and salt. Combine the milk with the egg and shortening. Stir the milk mixture into the flour. Be very careful not to mix too much. Stir only enough to moisten the flour. The batter will have a rough appearance. Turn into well-greased muffin tins and drop a teaspoon of cranberry jelly on each muffin. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, twenty-five minutes, or until done. This makes twelve muffins.

CRANBERRY GARNISH

Remove pits from cooked dried prunes and fill cavity with prepared cranberry jelly. Serve as a garnish for meat and salads.

FROZEN CRANBERRY SALAD

One cup whipping cream, one package Philadelphia cream salad dressing, two tablespoons sugar, one cup cranberry jelly, one cup canned pineapple, diced; ten marshmallows, cherries, sliced.

Whip the cream until stiff and add the sugar. Blend the salad dressing with the cream cheese and add the whipped cream. Fold in the fruit mixture and pour into freezing trays. Freeze from four to six hours. Cut in cubes and serve on lettuce or watercress. This makes eight servings. Cream cheese may be omitted.

CRANBERRY-PINEAPPLE SALAD

Sliced canned pineapple, canned cranberry jelly, cream cheese, lettuce.

Place a slice of pineapple on lettuce. Place a slice of prepared cranberry jelly on top of the pineapple and a ball of cream cheese on top of that. Add chopped walnuts, if you have any around, add mayonnaise and enjoy it, heartily.

CRANBERRY PORK CHOPS

Season pork chops with salt and pepper. Cut slices of cranberry jelly one-quarter-inch thick and place a slice on each pork chop. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for forty-five minutes.

CRANBERRY HAM SLICES

Three cups cranberries, two slices ham (three-quarters to one inch thick), one and one-half cups stoned, whole, two tablespoons whole cloves.

Mix cranberries and honey. Cut edges of fat on ham. Place one slice ham in baking dish and cover with cranberry and honey mixture. Top with second slice and cover with remaining cranberry mixture. Stick whole cloves around edge of ham slices. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until tender—about one and one-half hours. Baste occasionally with liquid in dish.

New Model City To Be Shown at New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special)—A magic carpet ride through space two miles above "Democracy," the perfectly integrated garden city of tomorrow, will feature the central theme exhibit of the New York World's Fair which opens April 30, 1939.

The exhibit, created by Henry Dreyfuss, industrial designer, will be dramatic in form. It will reach a stirring climax when, out of the distant skies above the floating audience, will trudge marching legions of workers, symbolizing the interdependence of man in modern civilization.

Nearer and nearer they will tramp, until the whole arch of heaven is filled with towering figures, arms upraised, singing the song of tomorrow. As the final strains of this marching band die away, great streamers of colored light shoot forth from the zenith, drenching the sky from horizon to horizon in all the hues of the rainbow.

A Dramatic Show

This dramatic show will be housed in the eighteen-story Perisphere, companion structure to the 700-foot Trylon, which constitute the architectural focus of the Fair.

An entirely new method of projection, utilizing slides instead of the moving figures on the sky. New methods of fluorescent light will be used.

The garden city itself will be a model—one of the largest ever built and the first to portray a full-size metropolis catering to a million people and complete in every last detail. Slides of city of tomorrow will serve to make not only of street layouts, harbors, airports, athletic fields and civic centers but of traffic and pedestrian overpasses, theatres, hospitals, shops, bridges, dams and apartments.

The entrance to the theme exhibit will be high up on the side of the Perisphere, just above the ground. Access will be by means of the two longest moving stairways ever built in this country. Visitors will enter on two levels and step on to two magic carpets or revolving platforms placed one above the other and moving in opposite directions.

Model City Possible

City planners, engineers, architects, landscape architects, airport specialists and other experts collaborated on the design of "Democracy," and so accurate is the model that, according to Mr. Dreyfuss, it could be given concrete reality today were sufficient funds made available. Blueprint drawings have been made not only of street layouts, harbors, airports, athletic fields and civic centers but of traffic and pedestrian overpasses, theatres, hospitals, shops, bridges, dams and apartments.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

When J. A. Barber brought his 11-pig ton litter to the Washington County Stockyard recently, they weighed 22,290 pounds at 167 days. Fed corn, rye, slop, tankage and cottonseed meal as well as a home-mixed mineral, the pigs had gained 1 1/2 pounds a day, cost $4.75 per cwt. to produce, and brought a total profit of $81.

Fifty Grant county farmers made a special tour of tobacco barns in the county to see how much difference firing with coke made. Invariably farmers who had wasted off the effects of wet weather by firing had superior crops.

AAA COMMUNITIES REORGANIZED—ELECTION HELD THIS WEEK

The number of AAA communities in Boone County has been reduced from six to four to come under the new AAA ruling according to H. H. Forkner, County Agent. The new ruling required that communities be set up to include an average of at least 300 farms and not more than 500 farms per community. The farms cooperating in the AAA programs give Boone county an allotment of four communities.

The new community boundaries include the following:—

Community No. 1—Petersburg, Buellville, Hebron and Constance.
Community No. 2—Grant, Burlington and Florence.
Community No. 3—Hamilton, Carlton and that part of Beaver west of U. S. 42.

Community No. 4—Union, Walton, Verona and that part of Beaver east of U. S. 42.

Community and county elections are being held this week. Each of the above communities will elect three committeemen, composed of a chairman, vice chairman and third committeeman. The communities also elect a delegate and an alternate delegate to the county convention. The county committee will be elected by the four delegates to the county convention.

The dates of the community elections held this week were as follows:
Community No. 2—Burlington courthouse, Monday, November 14 at 1:00 p. m.

Community No. 3—Hamilton school, Monday, November 14 at 7:00 p. m.

Community No. 4—Walton school,

Tuesday, November 15 at 7:00 p. m.

Community No. 1—Hebron school, Wednesday, November 16 at 7:00 p. m. (slow time).

The county delegates will meet at Burlington, Friday, November 18, to select the county committee. The county committeemen, if they have already been elected community committeemen automatically vacate their community committee position. The county and community committeemen will be separate this year.

INDEPENDENCE FIRE DEPARTMENT SPONSORS SHOW

A benefit movie will be sponsored by the Independence and Community Fire Department Thursday night, December 1, at the Simon Kenton high school building. "Born to Fight," will be the main feature. A comedy and selected shorts will also be shown.

The department urges citizens of Independence and nearby communities to attend this benefit show. Admission will be twenty cents.

THE ADVENTURES OF OZZIE

Prospects Bright For Holiday Trade

Despite the Armistice Day holiday during the week ended Wednesday, business activity continued its advance on a broad front, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from 37 cities, just received by its Louisville District Office. Retail trade repeated its gradual improvement of the previous week and brought an increasing flow of business to wholesale markets. Only five cities reported definite decreases in retail business from the previous week and the great majority of the 37 cities registered increases over last year's comparative. Where decreases were recorded, narrowing margins of losses were indicated. In some sections, wholesale trade was reported as tapering off slightly. However, prospects are bright for a reasonably good holiday season, with retailers continuing to place fairly substantial orders.

Louisville reported that an increase of per cent over year ago was reported in dollar volume of department store sales. Wholesale trade slightly ahead of last year.

Louisville was one of three major cities to show increase in bank clearings over year ago, its increase being 18.1 per cent.

Tobacco farmers still awaiting favorable weather for bailing and stripping crops. Kentucky's total tobacco production, in 1938, estimated at 342,238,000 pounds, about 6 1/2 per cent less than the 1937 production but 12 per cent more than the State's average annual production. Assets of Bardonia plant of the Independent Distillers of Kentucky purchased for $120,500.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 acres of land in Anderson county, Ky., were leased to Stoll Oil Refining Company of Louisville.

Louisville building permits, October, $373,184; last year, $331,217.

Bid of $90,250 accepted for construction of new sewer line at Berea. Louisville contractors awarded contracts for $683,378 worth of new buildings at Fort Knox.

F.W.A. grant of $85,000 accepted for construction and improvement of schools in Clark County, Ky.

Allocation of W. P. A. funds totaling $402,783 approved for sewer projects in Louisville.

Fire at Glenmore Distillery at Owensboro, Ky., destroyed property valued at more than $250,000.

Barbourville, Ky., purchased its electric distribution system for $75,000.

Shine Oil & Gas Company sold its interest in its holdings in Illinois and Michigan counties, Ky., for $50,000.

Farm in Shelby County, Ky., containing 65 acres was sold at auction for $9,850.

Contract awarded at $28,704.94 for construction of a consolidated school building at Kinnelton, Lewis county, Ky.

F.W.A. has approved $54,400 grant for construction of streets in Glasgow, Ky.

Plans announced for erection of a $40,000 hotel building at Wilmore, Ky.

Cooking School to Be Presented At School Gym Thursday, Dec. 1

Miss Bess Harris to Demonstrate New Ideas

Homemakers attending the Modern Electric Kitchen School on Dec. 1, at the Walton-Vernon school gym under the auspices of DeMolay Electric Shop and merchants of Walton will receive expert instruction in modern cooking methods from one thoroughly skilled in the teaching of headquarter for Holopoint ranges, the sponsors have secured Miss Bess Harris, nationally prominent home economist to conduct the single day meeting.

Miss Harris knows her subject. Years of institutional training, research work in the experimental kitchens of the Edison General Electric Appliance Co., makers of the Holopoint range, with which company she is now associated, and experience in conducting schools thru the nation, have qualified her as an authority in producing cooking miracles with electricity. A graduate in Home Economics of the Georgia State College for Women, she has directed Electric Cookery classes in many leading Universities and Colleges.

"Women since time immemorial," Miss Harris says, "have accepted cooking as their lot in life—peeling into kettles and ovens, tending stoves, watching—spending hours each day in their kitchens mothering the food in preparation on their ranges."

"Electricity has removed the cloak of drudgery and the veil of uncertainty from cooking. I will show that home economists through research have pointed the way to the elimination of all such annoyances."

"Electricity can be measured so accurately that it has replaced tools in industrial laboratories for measuring machinery to infinitesimal degrees. Since electric cookery involves the use of electricity for heat, home makers now are able to regulate cooking heat on their ranges to a degree of accuracy never before known."

TO OPEN HERE SOON

A new locally-owned White Villa store will open here within the next few days in the old Dixie State bank building, under the ownership of Glenn Laws. Dan Roberts will operate the meat department. The store will feature quality merchandise, and delivery service.

FINAL APPEAL TO OUR READERS

We have been liberal with many of our subscribers and it is our desire to continue so, but many of you have let your subscription lag behind. From a financial standpoint, this has become burdensome to us and we must now insist that you make arrangements to pay at least a part of the amount you owe us on subscription within the remaining part of this year. Unless you do so, after January 1st we will drop your name from our list. We do not desire to lose a single one of our subscribers and we will not if you will do your part in making settlement. Your tobacco crop (your ready money crop) is soon on the market and you owe it to us to settle this subscription which we have been carrying for you during the depression. Can we count on YOU? If you owe us more than one year, we are talking to you, Mr. Subscriber!

Help the Mailman

Santa Claus' helpers, the mailmen, wish people mailing Christmas packages and greeting cards would observe these simple rules:

Mail parcels as early as possible.

Keep Christmas seals and stickers off the address side.

Pay full, first-class postage for sealed Christmas cards, even if they bear no writing.

Avoid sealing packages. Use durable containers and tie up tightly.

Historical Edition To Be Illustrated

Feature Is Huge Task

The work of compiling the history and life story of Boone County and its people is rapidly being completed and will appear with an issue of the Walton Advertiser in December making good to our readers and friends our slogan "Northern Kentucky's Leading Weekly Newspaper."

Boone county, the thirteenth in turn was formed from a portion of Kenton County in 1798 and Burlington, than larger than its neighbor Cincinnati, was designated as the county seat.

We unhesitatingly contend that this edition will contain information of vastness and value to both the present and future generations. It will be interesting to the readers, covering the history and growth of our churches and schools, civic, professional and social life that deserves a proper place in our history.

This work is in the hands of competent men and under the personal direction of E. D. Sargent, newspaper historian and world traveler, many have devoted many years to like country histories elsewhere. Contact with Mr. Sargent which may be had at the Advertiser's office will be of assistance to him gathering material and will greatly be appreciated by the publishers.

Cooperation of the business concerns and public spirited citizens of the county has been gratifying and early reservation of space in the advertising columns of this edition should be rapidly made.

SHEETS ARE PRICED TO HIGH IN RECENT AD

In Shor's advertisement of last week The Advertiser carried the price of Peppercorn sheets, 11.00 value at $1.00. The bargain 1.00 of the item was left out, for there should have been two 1.00 value sheets for $1.49.

Calls South's "Unbalance" a Major American Problem

Termining the South's "Unbalance" a major American problem, President Roosevelt Monday expressed approval of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in a letter read before delegates gathered to consider the region's social and economic problems.

The President said he found it "heartening to see the strength of Southern social leadership mustered to face these human problems," and added "the South will long be thankful for this day."

The letter follows: "The long struggle by liberal leaders of the South for human welfare in your region has been implemented on an unprecedented scale these past five and one-half years."

Federal help. Yet we have recognized publicly this year that what has been done is only a beginning, and that the South's unbalance is a major concern, not merely of the South, but of the whole nation. It is heartening therefore, to see the strength of Southern social leadership mustered to face these human problems not locally or individually but in a united front from Ft. Raleigh to the Alamo.

"You know from years of trying the difficulties of your task. I believe you will find it impossible in many instances to separate human from economic problems. But if you seek a true cause, and keep everlastingly at it, the South will long be thankful for this day."

Constance Man Named Chairman Of Xmas Seal Sale

Local Funds to Provide Schools With Medicines

R. V. Lents, Principal of the Constance School has been appointed by the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association as Boone County Chairman of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale.

Mr. Lents has already placed in the hands of the schools of Boone County more than 50,000 Tuberculosis Christmas Seals to carry more than 50,000 messages of health to the good people of Boone County. These seals will be placed in the hands of the school children on Thanksgiving Day.

The Christmas Seals give the public an opportunity to have a part in continuing an expanding the fight against one of the world's devastating enemies—tuberculosis.

It is through the sale of the Christmas Seals that keeps the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association active without the proceeds of the Seals, this good work would cease.

Boone County keeps approximately 50 per cent of the Christmas Seal proceeds. All the county's part except a small sum that is necessary to conduct the sale, go to the schools conducting the sale. The schools in turn use their portion of the proceeds to provide a hospital room in the school. Many times pupils get injured or sick at school and must either tough it out at home. The hospital room will be equipped with first aid materials, simple medicines, and everything the proceeds will provide.

Many individuals will receive a hundred or more seals from the county organization. Each seal sells for one cent. Send the money to R. V. Lents, Seal Sale Chairman, Ludlow Ky. R. 2, telling him which school to give credit for the sale, and the school will receive full credit for the sale. Buy as many seals that your pocket book will afford.

Coronation ceremonies were conducted to the accompaniment of cheers and applause, the demonstration reaching a climax when W. E. Wilkerson, president of the Business Men's Association, assisted the pretty blonde, Marshall College co-ed to a throne and placed a crown woven of golden burlap leaves on her head.

REA Organization Formed To Secure Farm Electricity In County

Ambassador Recalled

Thirty-five farmers met at Burlington, Friday, November 18th to discuss ways and means of securing Federal Rural Electric Association service. Rev. Will Smith was elected chairman and Edward Rogers secretary of a temporary organization to organize the preliminary steps necessary for setting up the project.

Earl Welch, Agricultural Engineer of the College of Agriculture spoke at the meeting. He outlined the purpose of the REA, how it was organized and how farmers could proceed to secure their service. Present plans indicate Boone County could connect up with the Owen county association line that crosses Gallatin county a short distance from Big Bone. A signed membership of not less than three to four users per mile must be secured before the extension of service could be granted. The only cost to users to bring the service to their farm would be a $5.00 membership fee which compares to the meter fee charged by commercial concerns. The right of way and securing of membership for the line must be done by the farmers.

All attending the meeting were enthusiastic about the plans for rural electricity. Commitment were appointed to make a membership survey of the roads that could likely be served. The membership survey committee consists of the following—Eugene Schwenke, Reuben Kirtley, Vernon Stephens, Lee McNeely, W. L. Presser, Ralph Cason, Ed Rogers, Lillard Scott, Cliff Jones, Ivan Clements, Harold Rogers, Rev. Will Smith, Aubrey Fin, Clint Riddell, Parker Hollis J. O. Hollis, Elmer Elliston and Walter King.

If farm people want REA electricity it is up to them. Everyone interested is urged to get busy and assist their commitment in the survey. Electricity is assured if sufficient number of users and right of ways are secured.

FOR THANKSGIVING

DECORATIVE FOR THANKSGIVING
With Thanksgiving just around the corner it is not too soon to be thinking of decorations for the Thanksgiving table so that each small detail may be just right.
Planning the table can be lots of fun if one takes time to shop around for unusual favors and to work out a distinctive color scheme. This year the shops are filled with all sorts of amusing and colorful favors, bonbon dishes, and items for centerpieces.
There are demure and delightful little Priscillas and John Aldens for use as bonbon holders and all sorts of brilliantly colored crepe paper vegetables and fruits that make effective decorations and also serve as popcorn holding caps to add the gaiety of the Thanksgiving party. The Thanksgiving turkey is also seen in a variety of new guises for bonbon cups, place markers and candle holders.
One of the most effective ways of arranging a Thanksgiving table that will bring "oh's" and "ah's" of admiration from your friends is to make use of the plate glass mirror mats which the shops are featuring this season. These mats may be had in a variety of shapes and colors and themes. Those in sapphire blue, emerald green and peach color plate glass are particularly lovely and blend beautifully with the rich hues of fall flowers and fruits.

A beautiful table arrangement could be worked out by using plate glass mats of blue with a central arrangement of bright hued crepe paper vegetables spilling from a horn of plenty fashioned of white cellophane. The vegetables, in reality poppers containing caps, could be awarded as favors after dinner. Candle holders of white cellophane with red tapers would be effective with a table.
Louisville reported that an increase of 25 per cent over year ago was reported in dollar volume of department store sales. Wholesale trade slightly ahead of last year.

To Set Land Values

Lawrence M. Lawson, above, member of the International Boundary Commission of United States and Mexico, has been named to represent the United States on the two-man arbitration board to determine value of American-owned lands expropriated by Mexico. Mexico has agreed to pay $1,000,000 a year until final settlement.

RABBIT HASH
BOONE COUNTY

The Rabbit Hash Homemakers Club met for an all day meeting last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Minnette Stephens. The project studied by the Homemakers was preparing old furniture for a new finish.
Those present enjoying the day were: Miss Mary Hood, Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. Myra Ryle, Ms. Adah Wilson, Mrs. Opal Kelly, Mrs. Hilda Anderson, Mrs. Mary Wilson, Mrs. Pay Stephens, Mrs. Ethel Wilson, Mrs. Ida Mae Ryle, Mrs. Pauline Louder, Mrs. Mabel Hodges, Miss Rose and Lucille Hodges, Ms. Adah Ryle and Miss Brenda Craig.
On the second Tuesday of next month the club will meet with Mrs. Pay Stephens.
One of the most beneficial improvements this community has received is the new road recently completed from East Bend to the Burlington road at O. Y. Kellys Crossroads. During the 1937 flood all the East Bend Bottoms were marooned without any way of getting out except to walk over the hills. Should their be a repetition that flood the people will have an outlet that can be used by all kinds of traffic, at all times. It also relieves two other roads by taking traffic off them by giving a shorter route and a better road to the traveling public, to and from East Bend and the sections further down the river.
The people certainly appreciate the building of this highway over that ridge where the scenery is so beautiful.

BOSTON FISH CAKES

Get a package of filleted codfish and soak for about an hour, changing the water at least once. Peel and cut up about twice as many potatoes as you have codfish, cutting each potato in eighths. Put the codfish and potatoes on together in cold water and let cook until the potatoes are thoroughly done.
Drain in collander and shake over the fire until dry. Mash with a potato masher and add butter the size of an egg and salt and pepper to taste. Beat two eggs to a froth and add to mixture. Then beat the egg mixture thoroughly with a wooden fork or spoon. Over lightly, put in ice box and let stand for three or four hours. The cakes should be fried only when they are to be eaten immediately. Have deep fat ready.
The secret of these cakes, which are famous in New England, is not to touch with the hands. Take out tablespoonsfuls and push into the fat with another spoon. Drain and dry on brown paper and serve immediately.

Evening handbags grow more and more frivolous with every passing week. Among the newest ones are those of ostrich feathers which look like a fan. They come in all evening colors but the very bright ones used with black or white evening gowns are particularly effective.
Some of the newest costume jewelry looks as if it has been picked right off of a Christmas tree. Bracelets and necklaces are made of wee bright globes like the large ones used to decorate trees. They dress up a simple black cocktail or dinner dress no end.

CHILD, 4, IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY HUNTER

Kenton County police Saturday were investigating the fatal shooting of Charles Hicks, 4, Banklick Road, Independence, Ky. The child it was reported was accidentally killed by a charge from a shotgun by Raymond Lipscomb, 21, neighbor of the victim, who had made arrangements to go hunting with the four-year-old boy's brother, Orville Hicks.

According to reports, the little Hicks boy was playing in the Lipscomb home when the older Hicks boy came to get Lipscomb and go hunting. It was said that Lipscomb went to another room to get his shotgun and when he was attempting to "break" the gun and unload it, the shotgun accidentally went off and hit young Hicks in the head. Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton County coroner, is conducting an investigation.

Thanksgiving!

IN keeping with time-honored tradition, Thursday, November 24th . . . by presidential proclamation . . . has been set aside as a day of Thanksgiving. And as the occasion draws nigh, one's thoughts can't help but drift back to the time our Puritan forbears first set foot on this beloved soil . . . of subsequent perils and privation they suffered in quest of religious Freedom . . . and of that first small Harvest for which they knelt in gratitude and gave unto God.

Even as they found it in their hearts to be grateful for their meager little, surely we . . . of the present generation . . . have ample reason to be thankful for the Plenty that is ours. So let us yield to the spirit of Thanksgiving day and bow our heads in appreciation of it all.

Accordingly, we, the undersigned business interests of WALTON . . . being fully aware of the part you people have played in contributing to our welfare in the last twelve months . . . take this means of expressing our thanks for your patronage. May yours, too, be a contented Thanksgiving

"But whether we

Honesty in All Things

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Alfred J. Buescher

So many people crowded around Jesus when He came to Jericho that Zachaeus, being short, couldn't see Him at all.

So Zachaeus, being an important person and used to getting his own way, climbed a tree so he could see Jesus.

Zachaeus: "I not only saw Jesus, but Jesus saw him and called to him, saying He was going to lodge with him."

Entering the temple, Jesus found it filled with people, whom He drove out. (GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 21:12.)

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for November 27 is Exodus 20:15; Matthew 18: 16-21; Luke 10: 1-10, 45, 46; 20: 9-16, the Golden Text being Exodus 20:15, "Thou shalt not steal.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

"THOU SHALT NOT STEAL" is the Golden Text for today, and the story of the lesson is about Jesus and the little man who wanted so much to see this great man and who he climbed into a tree so that he could see over the heads of the people. This tree is thought to be the fig-mulberry, which was a common tree in the Jordan valley. It has low spreading branches which make it easy to climb.

Now Zachaeus, the little man who was so anxious to see Jesus, was a publican—a tax collector who was rich and very much hated. Jesus, however, saw him and liked him. He called to him to come down from the tree, because He was going to stay at his (Zachaeus') home. You can imagine how proud and pleased Zachaeus was. The Great Man was to stay with him, a man whom everyone disliked. He must have known how honest and good Jesus was, for he immediately told Him that he was going to give half his goods to the poor, and that if he had been dishonest with any man he would make it up to him "fourfold." That proved to Jesus that He was right in His estimation of the man.

We all like to own things. It is a mark of man as distinguished from the animals. The latter have a family feeling of ownership so that the male beast will protect his mate and the mother her children. But aside from that they do not understand such things as yours and mine. If they are hungry they take what they need wherever they find it. We call it stealing when we find little our chickens and eat them, and other animals take things they need to satisfy their hunger. But it is not stealing from their point of view. They are obeying the only law they know—that of hunger.

Copyright, 1934, King

There is always a great deal of stealing. We think the "crime wave," as we call it, is dreadful, and stealing is a large part of the crime committed. But in the middle ages stealing—highway robbery and theft generally—was so bad that thieves, when caught, were put to death. Traveling on the highways was very unsafe.

There are many ways of stealing besides breaking into homes or holding people up on the street. One of the very worst is to steal another's good name; to tell discreditable things about persons, or insinuate that they are not good. That is the meanest kind of stealing. Can you recite the poem, which says, "Who steals my purse steals trash. . . But he who steals from me my good name robs me of that which no earthly man can make me poor indeed?"

You are stealing when you cheat in your lessons; when you do not do your work well, whether it is school work, helping mother, or a job for which you are paid. If you lost your way, whether it is in an orderly world there are some things that are owned by all of us and for which we pay by taxes—streets, street lights, public buildings, waterworks, fire departments and police departments. But each of us also has private property—homes, furniture, some money, jewelry, etc. It is a great hardship and wrong if these are taken from us. But people steal sometimes by damaging other people's property.

On Halloween's a few weeks ago many automobiles and house and shop windows were smashed with soap or tallow. Some things were broken or carried away. Was that honest? Would good citizens do such things?

Jesus was "meek and mild," according to the Bible. But He could grow angry at injustice and cruelty. When He found that the sacred temple had been turned into a trading place, where cheating was going on, He made him self a whip of small cords and drove the traders out. He told them: "that the temple was the house of prayer, 'but ye have made it a den of thieves.'"

FISH FOR YOUR HAIR

There may be just as good fish in Miami waters as ever were caught but one suspects that a number of the ornamental ones have turned up for gawgaws for the hair. The up hair do permits lots of evening chi-chi and among new and amusing ornaments are little schools of fish in brilliants that swim engagingly across the side of the coiffure.

83rd Birthday

On Sunday, November 20, a host of relatives and friends met at the pleasant home of Mrs. Mary Maddin to extend congratulations and best wishes on the occasion of her eighty-third birthday. All brought well-filled baskets, and at the noon hour a bountiful dinner was served, cafeteria style. An immense birthday cake, baked and decorated by a granddaughter, Mrs. Victor Ellis, graced the center of the table.

Among those present at this delightful gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wilson and little son of Sparta, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ellis and children of Ghent, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maylor and children and Mrs. Long of Warsaw, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Madolin of Union, Mrs. Russell Ryan, Mrs. Agnes Farrell, Mrs. Geo. Flynn and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Code and children and Mr. William Ryan, of Walton, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Dempsey and children and P. J. Dempsey of Ludlow, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Maddin and daughter of Beaver Lick, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ryan and children, Mrs. Kate Maddin and son, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ryan, of Verona, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Flynn and son of Dry Ridge, Mrs. Kate Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hebel of Kyle's Lane, Covington, Mrs. and Mrs. Hegener ann and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. George Ryan and children of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. John Cahill and son of Erlanger, Mr. Thos. Carr, Johanna, and Katherine Flynn, Mrs. Kate Farrell, and Mr. and Mrs. Code of Verona, and Mrs. Minnie Flynn and children of Sherman.

Although everyone did justice to the delicious food there was an abundance left for lunch in the evening, and dusk was falling when the last of the guests reluctantly departed for their homes, wishing Mrs. Maddin many more happy birthdays.

Twice last night presiding the coronation ceremonies the management of Vanity Fair closed the doors of the building because the crowd within had become so large that it became difficult to move about among the displays.

While the door was closed a throng estimated at 2,000 jammed the foyer and formed lines that extended to Seventh street.

Total attendance yesterday was estimated at 10,000.
J. B. McLaughlin, state commissioner of agriculture, attended the festival last night and said he was "greatly impressed" by the large attendance and the interest demonstrated in the cultivation of tobacco.

Miss Rouse is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rouse, former residents of Walton. She was presented with a gold watch as queen.

UTOPIANS HOLD ANNUAL INITIATIONS

Utopia Club members held their annual initiation exercises at Burlington Thursday evening November 17th. New members enrolled during the year were the goals for the recreational program.

Mr. Wm. Johnstone, crops specialist, spoke to the boys of the educational program. He outlined the results being secured over the state from hybrid corn. He stated differences were not so striking in a year like 1938 as would normally be received. Hybrid corn was giving increased results thru more uniform stands, more sound ears, greater weight per bushel, small cob and better quality of grains. The great danger lies in unscrupulous seed that is not properly crossed and diseased will not give the results desired. Growers should purchase hybrid corn seed only from breeders of known reputation.

Miss Mary E. Gillaspie led the girls. The group is making a special study on good manners and speech. The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday, Dec. 13th.

SPENCE WILL GIVE BILL TO END POLLUTION Federal legislation to curb pollution of the Ohio River particularly in Ohio and Kentucky industrial areas, will be sought in the coming session of Congress, Representative Spence (D. Ky.) said in Washington recently.

A survey now is under way by Army engineers, following failure of anti-pollution legislation last year through presidential veto. Explaining that President Roosevelt opposed last year's bill only because it violated budgetary procedure, Spence said that he was confident that interested groups can work out a satisfactory measure for passage in the coming session.

ANNUAL 4H CLUB SALE-MON., DEC. 12, 1938

Tobacco and Business Notes

Total imports of tobacco and tobacco products into Panama during the second quarter of 1938 registered a decrease of two per cent in volume, and 10 per cent in value, in comparison with the preceding quarter.

Imports of cigarettes, the most important tobacco item, which accounted for approximately 75 per cent of the total value of all Panamanian imports of tobacco and its products—during the second quarter of 1938 advanced 15 per cent in volume, but declined 10 per cent in value from the preceding quarter.

Mexican imports of unmanufactured tobacco from all sources during the first four months of 1938 totaled 41,096 kilograms, the United States supplying 37,494 kilograms, or 91 per cent of the volume of total imports, and 79.9 per cent of their value.

Spain's imports of cigarettes reached the record figure of 17,884 pounds, valued at 19,393, during 1937.

Income derived from the Mexican tobacco industry during 1937, which includes taxes on cigarettes, cigars, export duties, fines and other taxes, amounted to 12,237,819.26 pesos. It is believed by that Department that the total income from the tobacco industry in 1938 will be from 30 to 40 per cent greater than that of 1937.

A sum of 50,000 florins has been appropriated by the Netherlands Indian Volkraad for the Bureau of Commerce of the Department of Economic Affairs, in addition to the Bureau's regular 1938 appropriation, for expenditures in connection with the Netherlands Indian participation in the Golden Gate International Exposition at San Francisco in 1939.

Shipments of grapefruit from Cuba to the United States for the ten month period ending October 31, 1938 were considerably under those for the corresponding period of 1937, despite the fact that over 300,000 pounds of grapefruit were shipped in October 1938, and none in October 1937.

Four new short-wave stations, two directed to South America and two which are non-directional, have been opened in Finland.

Sixty-one vessels, aggregating 405,700 gross tons, are under construction or ordered at Swedish shipyards.

Canada's imports of crude petroleum in 1938 over the preceding year.

A review of the Belgium motor vehicle for the third quarter of 1938 revealed that sales stand at 60 per cent American and 40 per cent European.

Plans are under way for the formation of a feed and vegetable oil company with a central plant at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, with an investment capital of approximately $1,000,000.

The campaign inaugurated by the National Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce to encourage manufacturers to show on their specifications or formulas of their products is making gratifying progress.

4-H Club Tobacco Show and Sale Will Be Held Saturday, December 10

Large Number of Boone Co. Members Eligible to Participate

One hundred and seventy seven Boone county 4-H tobacco club members will be eligible to compete for prizes and honors in the annual 4-H tobacco show and sale to be held at the Kenton Looe Leaf Warehouse in Covington, Saturday, December 10th, according to H. H. Forkner county agent. 4-H club members of Boone, Kenton, Campbell, Bracken, Pendleton, Grant and Gallatin counties will take part.

Boone county 4-H tobacco project members this year have produced approximately 75,000 pounds of high quality tobacco. Every 4-H tobacco project member enrolled in 1938 tobacco project was eligible to compete for prizes and sell his crop through the special 4-H sale. Only 4-H tobacco will be on the floor that day of the sale.

The rules of the show and sale are as follows:

1. Tobacco will be graded by warehousemen in Boone county.
2. Complete record books are required for club members to compete in show.
3. All crops will be brought to the warehouse in time to place on the floor Saturday, December 10th.
4. Crops to compete for premiums must be over 100 pounds.
5. Baskets eligible for premiums must be 25 pounds or more in the following classes: jugs, bright leaf and red leaf and 10 pounds or more in the flyings class.
6. County entries should be grouped together for the purpose of selecting crop awards. There will be judged on quality and balance of grades. Five crops of over 150 pounds each qualify a county for county prize.

Prizes will be given December 10th.

4-H tobacco will be received after noon Saturday, December 10th.

Each county agent will check the eligibility of crops from his county for show and sale.

Only 4-H project tobacco will be exhibited and sold through the show and sale. Every 4-H club member is put on his high and unquestioned honor to strictly observe this point.

Cash awards will be made on county and district championships in basket of flyings, trash, jugs, bright leaf and red leaf and on crop awards. Twenty-five percent of the total premiums available will be distributed.

Louisville Democrat Leader Dies at Hot Springs Friday

Michael J. "Mike" Brennan, Democratic political leader of Louisville, Ky., died at Hot Springs, Ark., Friday morning at 4:40 a. m. following an operation Thursday at 7 a. m. for gall stones.

With him at the time of his death were Sen. Allen W. Barkley, Mrs. Lennie MacLaughlin, of Louisville and Shackelford Miller, Jr. Mr. Brennan has not been in the best of health for some time. It was recalled that he spent considerable time in Florida and Cuba last spring. He returned later, however, and took an active part in leadership of Democrats in Louisville and western Kentucky last summer in behalf of the re-nomination of Sen. Barkley in the Democratic primary campaign against Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler. He has been a prominent figure in politics in Louisville for many years and his death removes one of the most powerful personalities from political scenes in Kentucky.

Honors were bestowed upon Mr. Brennan by members of various political parties in the fall of 1938 when a testimonial dinner was given to him at the Kentucky Hotel. For his party services Mr. Brennan was presented with a silver set.

Mr. Brennan, a bachelor, leaves a brother, Ed A. Brennan, Louisville; and three sisters, Mrs. Frank Louis Dwyer, Louisville; Mrs. Elizabeth Brennan, whom he lived in Louisville, and Mrs. Mary McCarthey, Lexington.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday in Louisville with burial in Cave Hill cemetery. Honorary and active pallbearers included notables from every walk of life.

Early Life In Boone County Will Be Told In Forthcoming Edition

Dixie Bus Line Sold to Cincinnati Railway Co.

Sale of the Dixie Traction Company, operator of motor buses in Kenton, Cincinnati, to the Cincinnati, Newport & Covington Railways, Kenton, Campbell, and Boone Counties, operator of streetcars and local buses in Northern Kentucky and Cincinnati, will be completed as soon as the transaction is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. A hearing on the proposed purchase of the traction company by the Green Line was conducted recently by the Interstate Commerce Commission in Cincinnati. The hearing was necessary because the traction company operates a number of its 19 buses in interstate commerce.

F. W. Dempsey, Erlanger, Vice President of the traction company, and P. C. Vandenberg, General Manager of the railway company, said terms of the transaction, including price, have been agreed upon and that the purchase would be consummated before January 1, if the I. C. C. approved.

No immediate change in service given by the Dixie Traction Company is contemplated, Vandenberg said.

Editors Preparing Copy For Attractive and Valuable Tabloid

The picturesque scenery of Boone County is beautiful to the extreme. The pleasing story of the noted novelist, John Uri Lloyd, "The Warlock of the Kinkadee" was inspired by the rich landscape views in the southern part of the county, and always brooks and creeks that sing sweet notes in their ripple to the lover of nature. Florence, "Stringtown" on the "pile" with its "Old Kentucky Home" atmosphere and Walton, the county metropolis will find southern hospitality and welcome to the permanent citizen and the traveler alike.

Big Bone Springs with its old-style hotel and waters known for and wide through their great curative power is a place of great interest to the tourist. A few miles from Burlington in contact with ornate carriage, a disintegrated beautiful scenery. Here too is found sparkling springs with pure cold sparkling water. The most admired of these springs is "Split Rock" from which gushes fresh cold water clear as crystal.

But why go on with descriptive beauty of Boone county when it will be covered together with the story of our early settlement, and progress that is being made today in the historical edition of the Advertiser that will appear in December. There is just a short time to wait. It will all carry the announcement and business story of the leading business in the county and space should be reserved this as the earliest possible date. Call at the Advertiser office in Walton or phone Walton 30 and Mr. Sargent in charge of the preparation of this Progress Historical Edition will be glad to see.

INDEPENDENCE FIREHOUSE PLANS TO BE READY BY DECEMBER

Plans for the new firehouse at Independence will be completed within a week and construction should begin a week or 10 days later. Al Jaeger, town trustee, said Friday. Architect for the building is John White.

A federal grant of $13,000 has been approved for the building, according to Jack Maynard PWA areas supervisor. Cost to the town will be $5,500. But there will be no increase in taxes there, Mr. Jaeger said.

The firehouse will be constructed on a strip of ground furnished the town by Kenton Fiscal Court. In addition, the county will supply funds to $25,000 for its construction, receiving an office to the county and fire protection for county records in return.

Retrospective

ROY D. STAMLER, 1886-1937
JAMES R. WALLACE, 1889-1937

As if recalling some vague dream from the past, we turn the pages of our publication back a year ago to the ending of one of the most ideal partnerships ever entered into the newspaper business.

One year ago James R. Wallace wrote "It is with profound sorrow that we chronicle the death of our partner and loving friend, Roy Duncan Stamler, for over twenty years engaged with us in the publication of this paper. During all this time his kind and gentle disposition endeared him to us." It was to mark the passing of R. D. Stamler, who died on Friday, November 26, 1937, after a lingering illness of heart disease.

Nine days later Malcolm Simpson was called on, on. Thus we pause in our daily still to pay tribute to a friend, J. R. Wallace, who passed from this life, December 5, after filling his niche in life as printer, editor and publisher from the age of fourteen. He recalled: "R. D. Stamler and J. R. Wallace formed a partnership and began publishing the Walton Advertiser. With this a most beautiful friendship had its beginning, and increased throughout the years."

Time has mellowed the memory of these two men, until today as we scan the pages of their early editions we realize that this community reaped many rewards through their efforts. Through foresight and love of their friends and fellow citizens they carried on against odds that sometimes seemed insurmountable, but they finally laid down the burdens for other hands to carry on. This we pause in our daily still to pay tribute to a partnership founded on a high ideal, and maintained until death drew it to a close.

There is a great deal of difference between a reason and an excuse.

The Holiday Spirit Must Prevail

Recall to mind, if you will, of the days gone by when you eagerly looked forward to a trip to town to see the toys and gadgets on display at Christmas time... of hanging your stockings at the foot of your bed or on the fireplace with faith that Saint Nick would fill it bulging with candy, toys and nuts... and as you eagerly reached for your favorite items to show off the presents opened that morning. It's a pleasant trip back along memory lane... never to be forgotten.

Today, in our own community, there are children who will face the Holiday season with a knowledge in their hearts that Santa may miss them this year... unless you and I make it possible for them to be remembered. Now is the time to make plans for a Community Christmas Tree.

Do you remember when a second mortgage yielding 18 per cent was considered a safe investment?

Another Chieftain Passed

The passing of Michael J. Brennan, Democratic chieftain in Jefferson county on Friday, ends the career of the last of the old-time Irish political leaders in Kentucky. It was "Mike" who took over a hapless Democratic machine in 1929 and built it into a winner immediately. Since that time the Democrats have consistently won in Jefferson county by commanding majorities.

Mr. Brennan started his political career many years ago as a precinct captain when the old Whelan regime in Louisville. When the Democrats went out of power in 1917, his interests grew passively until 1928, when he began his ascendancy.

Since 1928 he had been the "boss" of Jefferson county, ruling in conjunction with Shakerford Miller, Jr., and Mrs. McLaughlin, his "back-door advisors."

In 1931, Mr. Brennan was one of the leading backers of Hub Laffoon for governor and during Laffoon's administration was one of the state's three revenue agents.

He threw his support to Tom Rhea in 1935, but lost the gubernatorial race in his county, although carrying the city and county elections. He backed a kee again in 1936, when he came out for J. C. W. Beckham against Sen. M. M. Logan, but Jefferson county went for Beckham.

Soon after that election, Mr. Brennan lined up with the Chandler forces and remained in the governor's camp until Chandler announced that he would oppose Senator Barkley. He switched to Barkley declaring that he previously had pledged his support to the Senate's majority leader.

In the primary election, Jefferson county gave Sen. Barkley a 30,000 majority and then in the general election, despite a strong Republican trend throughout the nation, voted two-to-one for the Democratic incumbent.

Nothing keeps us down like our own ignorance, laziness or folly.

Barnum vs. Bailey

Some 60 years ago, when Barnum's circus held undisputed sway as the biggest amusement enterprise in the world, the great showman had little cause to pay attention to several small rival circuses which sprang up for they usually kept their distance.

The time came, however, when one of them headed by a young Irish-American named James A. Bailey, threatened Barnum's prestige. For one spring day in the Bailey menagerie a baby elephant was born.

This baby elephant immediately became a greater attraction than all of Barnum's colossal aggregation, and Bailey began packing the crowds in while the big show's attendance fell off. Chagrined beyond words, Barnum wired Bailey an offer of $100,000 for the baby elephant.

Instead of selling, Bailey has prepared and displayed enormous posters bearing a facsimile of Barnum's telegram, to which he added in box car letters, "This is what Barnum thinks of Bailey's baby elephant."

In desperation Barnum then offered to take Bailey in as his partner, and Bailey accepted. Thus Barnum and Bailey's "greatest show on earth" came into being.

A Live Wire Briar Hopper

An Explanation! Why I am having my Briar Hopper stories reprinted; all but a few of my original stories were lost in the flood, having a great many requests for the stories I am having them reprinted with the intention of putting them in book form with other interesting matter—Will S. Norris.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE

By WILL S. NORRIS
552 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

This story is about a young married couple who was doing well as a merchant, miller and farmer. He was a stewart in the church. His wife was a lovely woman teaching a class in Sunday school. They had two bright-eyed little boys who went every Sunday with their mother and father to Sunday school and church.

Unfortunately the man became restless and decided to sell out and go to a larger southern city with the view of making a fortune, losing sight of the best interests of his wife and boys. He prospered in business, built an elegant home and they soon began to move in higher society, forgetting their church duties. In fact, they failed to identify themselves with any church. Their old village pastor called on them 15 years after they moved to the city. After much trouble he found their mansion and rang the door bell. A servant met him at the door, invited him into a magnificent parlor, where everything was luxury. Fine large curtains, elegant carpets, furniture of the most expensive.

The servants asked whom the visitor was. "Tell her I am her old village pastor," she will remember me." The pastor waited and waited. It seemed like hours to him. Finally the little lady came in, amid the rustling of her silks, and the dazzling diamonds almost took the pastor off his feet.

In contrast with the warm greeting that she used to give him in her village home, she poked out her little honey, scrawny hand but it was not the warm-hearted hand he had shaken years ago. She seemed so different that the pastor did not stay long. When he got ready to leave he said, "I want to ask you one question, how is it with your soul?" She dropped her eyes a moment. When she lifted them they were swimming in tears. She said, "Oh, brother pastor—if you will allow me to call you brother—I remember those happy days in our little village home when we went to Sunday school and lived for God and the church. But now we have grown rich we have no God, no Bible, no church relations. These bright-eyed boys I used to take to Sunday school are both drunkards and sometimes my husband comes home staggering with untidy steps, not the happy man he was in our village home. I want to say to you we have made an exchange that has bankrupted our happiness and ruined our home."

The pastor said, "Sister you are speaking the truth." In less than three months the youngest boy died of most debauched death. Within the next three months the other boy shot down a drunken companion and was sentenced to prison for murder. Within 12 months mention names, this is a true story, and bane came; right along by mothers and fathers and families that were God and the church respectively. Many people who leave their country home and church and move to the city. It was raised in a country village and lived in the city for years I know both life.

KENTUCKY HOMESPUN by S. F. White

Heart's Courageous
Courage is something which you may find
Wherever you go and in every place.
It is being helpful and being kind.
It is meeting the world with a smiling face;
It isn't of rank or high degree;
It isn't God's gift to a favored few;
Woman's brave as a man can be.
And a boy can shine with its glory, too.

It is playing fair when a trick would win.
It is being friendly and kind and true!
It is keeping clean when lured by sin.
It is serving the many and not the few;
It is keeping on when the goal you miss.

Exchange
The death of Mike Brennan, Louisville Democratic leader, last week removes one of the few colorful figures in Kentucky politics. Brennan, a politician of the old school, yet a kindly and generous hearted man, who since the death of Chesley Searcy, Republican leader, a few years ago, was considered the master politician in either party. During the long Republican rule in Louisville it was Mike Brennan who kept the shattered remnants of his party together, and when the opportune time arrived—the Republican factional split following the long tenure in power—Mr. Brennan stuck while the iron was hot, and in the following years built an organization which has had few equals in Kentucky history. He was of the calibre, though probably working in a different manner, as Mike Brennan, Chesley Searcy, Billy Blair and other giants of the past—all past-masters in the art of organization and strategy. Who will inherit the Brennan mantle is an open question, and whether there is another man who can fill the shoes is also open to argument. Whoever may be found to tackle the job will have a real pattern cut out for him.

The press has given acres of space to the Old Age Assistance plan, the voters have made the walk-in with their palaver and in every nook and cranny of Kentucky this question has been the subject of conversation, and today we have a pension system that is not even a distant relative of the one voted by the people a few years since. At that time the writer, with hundreds of thousands of others voted for $30 a month for these needy people. Today the mandate has so far been ignored that the pensioners draw an average of about $9 a month, less than one third of the amount they were to be paid. It is frankly admitted that a half loaf is better than none, but why were the people fooled? Was it a vote getting scheme? It is a fact that $9 will not keep a person in Kentucky for thirty days, therefore the amount handed them is a bait, and for what? We are told this is all the state can afford. People honestly differ over this statement, and it is pointed out that if a lot of the useless positions were done away with and savings made in many other places the actual dependants—cut the preferred list—could be paid a sufficient amount to at least get many of the necessities of life. The law as administered as a political machine, is another blot on Kentucky.

Meeting a Tax Commissioner a few days ago he told that there must have been a very serious epidemic among the dogs in his county, or lame livestock for animals killed or maimed by manning dogs, and should there be any left after these claims are paid it reverts to the school fund. So long as this law remains on the statute books it should be obeyed by all citizens.

Odd or unusual verdicts rendered by juries in various places were the subject of discussion in a courthouse recently, and many peculiar and interesting wordings of the juries were recited. One gentleman told of a verdict handed down in his county many years ago by a Coroner's jury which gets the brass ring so far as we are concerned. For brevity and forcefulness it is a gem and we quote it. If every equality by a jury of inquiry, in a negro settlement a fight resulted in one being killed when struck by an axe, the death dealing weapon entering the neck splitting the collar and breastbones. The inquest was started and six good men and true impaneled who returned the following verdict: "We the jury, find the deceased came to his death by being split open with an axswinded by—, and we recommend that ax be hung by the neck until dead."

Some Miscellaneous Furniture

Every house has or had the standard bits of furniture, even though the number of pieces may have been reduced to the minimum. Beds, tables, chairs, stoves, cooking utensils—these were almost as low as one could go. In more stylish old-fashioned houses there may be an unlimited number of things that clutter up space and make a big display when an auction becomes necessary. It is this assortment of extra furniture that I somehow like to contemplate. People who have lived in a home that was quite lived in for money for furniture can hardly realize the thrill of making some luxury for the home.

Settees could be bought if one had the money. Fair ones could be made from the headboard and footboard of a discarded bed. The proper place for this home-made sofa or settee is the front porch, provided there is one. I have visited in many a home that had such a piece of furniture, often a rather creditable bit of workmanship. The hammock suggests leisure, a thing that summer country life seldom had. "Boughten" hammocks cost too much. But fine results can be achieved with a few strands of wire and some barrel staves. Light-weight people can repose with impunity in these, but I have always feared them for myself.

When families were large, chairs sometimes were hardly plentiful enough for the living room and the dining-room-kitchen. Hence the head of the household made or had made a bench for the side of the table next to the wall, where the boys would sit. I have eaten many a square meal while sitting on a bench and somehow miss seeing one when I am visiting in a good-sized family.

On thing that ought to have got into poetry is the padded brick that holds back the doors. I have seen some of the best handwork done on the covers for these bricks, chain and briar stitching in bright colors, just like the silk embroidered quilt on the bed in the front room. Some one who is fond of collecting ought to collect these bricks and their coverings, as a sort of lesson in rural artistry can make a thing of beauty out of a very unpromising and prosaic brick.

The whole matter of extra furniture illustrates how necessity can turn to its own use things that otherwise would be ugly. Not nearly enough has been said of the simple but persistent artistry of the simple home people who would never have thought that they had artistic souls that expressed themselves in these little bits of extra furniture made in the home, without no thought of their being important in the history of art.

So You Think!

WHY ARE YOU QUEER?

All Greeks are not in Greece and many queer people are not in mental hospitals. Oriental people are peculiar because they have their hearts on when they mean yes and an orthodox Chinaman has the strange custom of shaking hands with himself when he meets a friend. In fact, he is so queer that he thinks our custom of transferring grime and germs when we shake hands is proof that we are not civilized.

Our neighbors and members of our social set likewise think when they are boys or girls, in evening dress catch on behind passing ice wagons or trucks, that it is not a Mrs. Post. In fact, nearly everybody is queer except you and me and you may be.

The question arises—Why are you queer? The Freudians answer that the mind is like a jug with much sediment below the thin skimmed-milk on top. This sediment they say has been forced down by a censor and is always ready, like a Jack-in-a-box, to rise and exert influence as a big or little devil. They insist that a timid, shy, and hesitant child has been overinhibited by "Thou shalt not's."

Consequently, we are advised to let the child have freedom as he can enjoy life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. We are even given advice as this: "If your boy George persists in bringing his pet tadpole to the table in a glass jar, do not punish or scold him; a much more effective and graphic method of correcting this habit would be for you to accidentally pick up the tadpole one day at luncheon, and swallow it. Certainly no whipping or scolding would so impress upon the adolescent boy the fact that the dinner table is not the place for pets. Many people believe, however, that the dangers of repression have been over-exaggerated. Hence we are told to suppress early and often to eliminate the tendencies children have to bully, to elbow their way in, to disregard for others, to sulk or to do other things that need to be checked.

Such conflicting opinions lead one student to say: "I read one book and learn that unless I cure my wants, I can't lead a decent life. I read another which says, if I suppress my emotions, I am headed for a mental hospital. I don't believe either. Which is right?" It is somewhat paradoxical, but both views are probably partially correct. To illustrate, people as children, speak and understand as children. Then they become men, they are advised to put away such childish things as rag dolls, tin soldiers, and mud pies. Adults are also expected to put away childish personality traits. This is more difficult. In fact, (Continued on page seven)

Friends here were sorry to hear of the deaths of Mrs. Robert Gillock of Long Ridge and Mr. Jess Harrison of Poplar Grove.

Miss Gene Cammack spent Sunday with Miss Dorothy Baldwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stewart and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Poe, and Mrs. Thomas Poe and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Austin Stewart and son of Long Ridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale Castleman are both very ill with Rabbits Poisoning. Their many relatives hope for them to recover soon.

Mrs. Frank Wright continues very ill with blood-poisoning.

Mrs. Allie Greene is very ill at this writing.

Clifford Snell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Snell, received a very bad fall last Thursday, from the eighth tier of his tobacco barn at his farm near Ghent. He was unconscious for some time and was bruised considerably but seems to be recovering successfully.

Mr. and Mrs. Rascal Joines entertained with dinner Sunday for a number of their friends who accompanied them on their tour around the world last year.

Mrs. Nora Stegar and son of Indianapolis came here Monday night for a visit with relatives.

Large crowds are attending the revival which is in progress at the Methodist church with Miss Franklin doing the preaching, assisted by her pianist.

Relatives and friends were greatly shocked when a telegram was received Sunday telling of the death of Walker Mason of Long Beach, Calif., who died Saturday night. The remains were brought here Tuesday night and funeral was held at the Long Ridge church, Wednesday afternoon. He leaves besides his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Charles Easterville and Mrs. S. H. Gatter, white, three sons, Charles Woodrow and Byron Mason, all of near here, a sister, Mrs. Craigmyle of Easterday; a brother, Morgan Mason of this place besides many other relatives and friends to mourn his passing.

Experiments indicate that cultivated fruit trees produce better than trees among which rye, vetch, clover, lespedeza or other crops are grown. In some tests, seedling young orchards to legumes resulted in stunted trees.

INDEPENDENCE R. 1 KENTON COUNTY
Thanksgiving morning when we awoke, we began to think it was Christmas morning instead of it being Thanksgiving as the beautiful snow flakes were falling fast.
Butcher seems to be the most interesting news in the neighborhood at present.
This entire neighborhood was shocked to learn of Mrs. Sophia Hawkins falling Friday evening as she was going down the basement steps and sustained a badly broken hip. Mrs. Hawkins is the mother of August and Robert Hawkins, all well-known in this neighborhood.
Miss Emily and Ruth Keeney returned to Lexington, Sunday afternoon, after spending the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keeney. They are both students of the University of Kentucky.
Mrs. Maud Ryan is spending several days with her cousin, Joe Sweeney and family.
Earl Hanna and son, Harley, Mr. G. H. Craigmyle and Mr. Frank Kleanse spent Thanksgiving in Harlan County, hunting. They reported game plentiful, but snowing too hard to capture much game.
Carl Palmer, who has been residing with his sister, Mrs. Will Gosborn left for Indiana, Saturday to seek employment.
Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ervin of Middlebury, Ohio, visited her sister, Mrs. Earl Hanna and family, Sunday.

We regretted very much to learn of the sudden death of Mr. Matt Mills of Latonia. Mr. Mills was a former resident of this community, until a few years past. He had been an invalid for more than a year, but his death came as a shock to his family and relatives.

HERE THEY COME

Beginning Friday night, December 2nd the same picture will be shown on Friday and Saturday, only one show each night at 7:30 p. m. The big attraction is "Touchdown Army," you see one of the biggest football games that the Army and Navy ever played featuring two of the outstanding stars of the screen, Mary Carlisle and John Howard.

On Sunday the Dionne Quintuplets in "Five of a Kind."

Monday night our big bargain night "Girls School" with Anne Shirley, Nan Grey and Ralph Bellamy will be shown. It's one of the big pictures of the year. Don't miss it.

Each year there are only a few pictures that stand above everything that is made. One of these was "Alexander's Ragtime Band" which played here only a few weeks ago. Now we are offering you something still bigger and better, the one and only picture that is the talk of the day. It is no other than "You Can't Take It With You," featuring Jean Arthur, Lionel Barrymore, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Spring Byington, H. B. Warner, Mischa Auer. If you don't see another show this season we suggest you see this one, showing Tuesday and Wednesday nights, Dec. 6 and 7th.

During these few weeks, the James has scheduled for showing some of the greatest pictures made this season, including "Stimulus," "Straight Place," "Show Shining Hour," "Sing You Sinners," "The Lady Objects," "Out West With The Hardy's," "The Law, Just around the Corner," "Boy Town," "Sue, Men with Wings," "Arkansas Traveler," "Submarine Patrol," "Fighting With Fats," "Blondie," "There's That Woman Again," "Angels With Feathers."

Many rural residents have found that extensions, new light sockets, and other improvements can be installed with expert knowledge, and with Sears supplies they can be installed easily in a few minutes time. Sears wire, conduit and other items have passed the rigid standards set up by the Underwriters' Laboratory, and you are assured of the best in this line when purchased from Sears.

Everything in the huge stock of lighting fixtures, wire, etc., at Sears can be carried on the FFA plan when purchased from Sears. Just write to Mr. Veit for further information on any items you may be interested in purchasing for improving your home. Remember, Sears stock is complete at all times.

Home

ALL things come home at eventide.

Like birds that weary of their roaming."

What a true picture these words paint! And how familiar! Perhaps this truism and familiarity explain their universal appeal, for men everywhere love the thought of home. Somewhere it is the home they have known in childhood; again it may be one they are enjoying now. Or it may be an ideal which they yearningly hope to attain.

But whatever may be the case, home symbolizes shelter, comfort, joy, contentment, rest, companionship; a place where one is understood, loved, encouraged. These things are legitimate. Yet today there are many who seem homeless or unhappily situated. . . .

"Whither shall I go from thy spirit?" and "I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever" (Psalm 133:1; 134:1), are utterances of one who had at least glimpsed the spiritual aspect of home. He had also seen something of the nature of man—the man whom the Scriptures depict as made "in the image of God" and to be conformed to (Romans 8:29; 12:2).

"Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." To the Disciples and to Paul, the Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, realized that God can only be imaged forth by man, which possesses the nature of God. Therefore, man, made in God's likeness, is not a material mortal, but a spiritual idea. In her "Miscellaneous Writings" Mrs. Eddy makes this very clear. She writes (p. 156): "We learn in the Scriptures, as in divine Science, that God made all; that He is the universal Father and Mother of man; that God is divine Love; therefore, divine Love is the divine Principle of the divine idea named man; in other words, the spiritual Principle of spiritual man. Now let us not lose this Science of man, but raise it clearly; then we shall see that man cannot be separated from his perfect Principle, God, inasmuch as an idea cannot be torn apart from its fundamental basis."

A young woman who had always loved her home found, after her childhood home no longer existed, that some of her happiest memories were those spent in the homes of her friends. The home atmosphere seemed to make her thought expand. It brought her rest and satisfaction. As she analyzed her thoughts, she began more earnestly than ever to desire a home and to appreciate all the evidences of home she had ever had.

Then suddenly she awakened to the fact that since man is always in the presence of God, his Father-Mother, man is always at home. Joyfully she began to declare this truth for herself, wherever she was—in her room, at her office, or elsewhere. She commenced to see that this same truth was true about all of God's sons and daughters; that as she consciously acknowledged this fact, everyone who came to her must feel the joy and peace of being at home. It was not long before this young woman was sharing an apartment with a friend and experiencing to a greater degree the blessing of being at home.

These comforting passages point to the fact that since God, our Father-Mother, includes all the good there is or ever can be, we need not fear that we shall lose anything precious if we acknowledge, love, and adopt the spiritual concept of home. Nor can we fear that this home will not be progressively beautiful. Indeed, we shall be opening our eyes to behold and experience more of the glories of earth and heaven.

As we discern that man can never be separated from God, we realize that man can never be separated from home. All the good which we see expressed anywhere is evidence of our consciousness of God's presence. Goodness is not personal, limited, or restricted. Real home is not liable to be broken; for man's relationship to God is God-ordained. Home cannot be lost; it is as ever present as God Himself. It cannot become drab or uninteresting; it is illumined with the radiance of love, filled with the ideas of Truth. Home cannot be lost; it is the companionship, joy, or any other good, for divine Love is always imparting its own tender, Mrs. R. N. Johnson, Mrs. Bernard Outlander and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Winchester, of Murray, Ky., were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Winchester and family, at their home on Sparta Road.

OF YOUTH TO CITIES

"Hundreds of our rural youth leave the farm every year to take up other occupations, unconscious of the opportunity which they are turning their back upon," declared Howard F. Sharp of Illinois, president of the Youth Section of the American Country Life Association, at the annual meeting of the organization at the University of Kentucky.

"The simple pleasures of farming defeat the feeble enthusiasm many capable young rural people have for that way of life. The task of building a barn into something more than a house, a barnyard and a system of crop rotations is the challenge we face. There are still unlimited possibilities for making a rural home quite as attractive, if not a great deal more so, than the average urban dwelling."

Mr. Sharp believes that there is needed in addition to a mastery of production, a genuine rural philosophy which would help free agriculture from the domination

THE ADVENTURES OF OZZIE

A Turn for the Worse

Travelers Safety Service

SHEEP PAY BETTER ON GOOD PASTURES

The importance of good pasture and the control of footrot were stressed at the fall meeting of sheep raisers at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Farmers discussed their experiences in the use of various grasses and legumes in providing better pastures. In some instances they have been able to produce high quality lambs without grain, or have materially reduced the amount of grain required.

The growing of rye, wheat, barley or other winter crops was said to be needed both as feed for sheep and to prevent erosion. A demonstration in the control of footrot was given by Jack Dennis of Woodford county. He pointed out that treatment may not be effective unless the feet are properly trimmed so as to expose the diseased parts.

A study made by the Agricultural Experiment Station, and reported in bulletin No. 985, indicates that sheep might be the means of increasing the income of many Kentucky farms. Through sheep it is possible to get an income from such non-marketable feeds as pasture, stover and straw. The fact that sheep eat mainly roughages and pastures gives them an advantage over other kinds of stock in areas where a large percentage of the land is in grass.

It also is pointed out that sheep require the most labor in winter, when other farm work is slack, and they help to increase the value of buildings such as tobacco barns, which are needed at the time when sheep require shelter.

LANDS POSTED

All persons are hereby warned not to hunt with gun, dog or trap of any kind on the land of the undersigned. Any person or persons caught trespassing will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. It is necessary that we take this step to protect our stock, fences and game. This also includes fox hunters, who in the past have done a great deal of damage to our fences and sheep, many of the latter being killed by their dogs.

Relatives and friends here deeply sympathize with Mrs. Glendora Wilson of Cincinnati (formerly Miss Glendora Snell of this place) in the death of their little son, Aubrey Eugene Wilson. He was born Feb. 2, 1932 and died Nov. 24, 1938, being six years nine months and 22 days of age. The little one's death resulted from a tooth extraction, from which infection set up and resulted in blood poisoning. Every effort was done for him that loving hands could do, but God saw best to take him to join the little angel band.

Funeral services were held at the Jonesville Methodist church, Sunday November 27 by the pastor, Rev. Shelley and burial was at the Popular Grove Cemetery by Coates and Stewart, undertakers.

He leaves to mourn his passing: his devoted mother and father, two uncles, Harold Snell of Stewartville and Johnnie Snell of Popular Grove.

Mrs. Mae Hamilton of Cincinnati and Elbridge Castleman of Anderson, Indiana were here last week to see their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gate Castleman who are both ill with Rabbits fever.

The Young married women's Sunday School class entertained the men with a soup supper at the Baptist church basement, Saturday night. Even though the weather was bad, quite a few were present.

MISTRESS of MONTEREY VIRGINIA STIVERS BARTLETT

On my way, not being on a pleasure trip, like yourself, and . . . and there is a letter in there that I have on my conscience. I should have asked you about it before I left the presidio. It does not bear your frank.

The Governor looked startled. "So? And who has sent a letter out without my frank?"

"Her Excellency, La Senora La Gobernadora, Dona Eulalia."

"Ah! Let me have it, and I will attend to it." The courier took the paper from among the rest and handed it to the Governor. It was addressed to the Viceroy of Mexico. The Governor shook his head and rubbed his eyes. The men watched him in amazement as he tore the letter open and read it.

"Al, Dios mio, I can not leave my California! I would be lost anywhere else in all the wide world, this country only is my home, the home of my heart."

"I will not leave it!" he exclaimed suddenly. "Why should I sit here envying in my heart because my woman torments me? What has come over me? Am I no longer a man, and governor of California? Ha! He smashes his chest. 'I shall go now, this very day, this very hour on a long visit. I shall go to Santa Barbara, and San Gabriel and San Diego, and have some festivities. And I shall leave Eulalia here alone. I shall be stern and hard . . . hard as my bed.' He kicked the overturned cot."

"Come to her! No! If I will go out and seek the company of worthy priests and good soldiers, pioneers all, and we will talk man talk, and drink deeply together."

He took his gun down from the wall and cuddled it in his arm. "And you shall go with me, my friend, and we will kill the biggest bear in all California!"

In her room at the palace Eulalia was writing a lengthy document. When she had finished it, she poured sand over the paper, then read the contents carefully. What she read evidently pleased her, for she smiled many times. Then she called for a servant, and the letter was delivered to a courier riding south with official dispatches.

"Where is the Governor's frank on this?" inquired the courier when he received it.

"It is in her Excellency," murmured the servant.

"Humph," grunted the courier, and tucked it carefully away in his bag.

CHAPTER XXVI

Eulalia watched the Governor preparing for his departure without a word. His impedimenta seemed to consist mainly of small casks of aguardiente, and skins of wine; of guns and ammunition. He wore his disreputable leather jerkin, and roughest boots. He packed a few other belongings haphazardly into his knapsack.

When he was ready, he bowed before his wife ironically and said with mock reverence.

"La Senora la Gobernadora! I go, and I know not when I return. Do not grieve for me, but control your impatience for my coming until I return, which will be in due time, and according to my own free will. Adios!"

Eulalia said nothing, but drew her brows together darkly.

She watched Don Pedro and his party gallop away across the parade-ground toward the great gate which was swung open and ready for them.

A few miles outside the presidio, the Governor and his gay party came upon the mail courier. Lying beneath a tree, his head pillowed on the sack of mail.

"Hot!" cried his Excellency. "What is this? Is it such a man as the King's business is carried on? But never mind," he added hastily as the fellow scrambled to his feet guiltily. "Never mind. Do not disturb yourself. I would like to lie down and rest too. Let us all rest, caballeros, and let us wash some of this dust out of our throats!"

All dismounted. The courier spoke timidly. "Excellency," he murmured deprecatingly, "unfortunately, I must be California is treason against his Most Catholic Majesty the King of Spain. Therefore I put you under arrest."

Eulalia grew white around the lips, and her voice shook.

"Treason?" she stammered. "Yes; you have said here that the Governor of California has been going slowly but surely insane for the past three years. That all his acts are the acts of a madman, a maniac. That his governance here has been a long period of misrule. That he fails to co-operate with the priests in their religious work. That everyone is afraid of him, and dare not report his madness to the Viceroy. That he has repeatedly threatened your life, and the lives of others, and that he neglects his duties to consort with Indian women. Is that true?"

"Every word of it!"

"Mean it is true that you have written this?"

"Yes, I wrote it."

"Very well, then. I arrest you in the name of the King of Spain."

"But—but you can not do that! What—what are you going to do with me?"

"You are to be incarcerated in the monjera, the quarters of the Indian women at Mission Carmelo until I return from my trip. Then I will consider your case."

"You do not hesitate to degrade and disgrace me before all California, Mexico and Spain, Senora. You shall go to the monjera, and at once. Prepare yourself!"

"No! No! I will die first . . . Angustias!"

Angustias was cowering in a corner, watching the scene in terror. At the doors and windows frightened servants listened and looked.

"There is no use calling Angustias. I am through being ruled by women. Angustias will remain here with my children, and you shall go. At once, I thundered, so madly toward the palace, and before she could control the sudden trembling that seized her, he strode into the room.

Behind him came two soldiers, who had followed from the gate. "Senora," thundered the Governor. "I have come to place you under arrest." He motioned to the two soldiers, who stepped smartly forward and took their places one at each side of Eulalia. Their eyes goggled with amazement, but they clanked the butts of their rifles smartly on the floor, and stood at attention.

"What is the meaning of this," inquired Eulalia, "is it a drunken prank? For what am I to be placed under arrest?"

"It is no drunken prank. Woman, you are under arrest for treason. I have here"—and he slapped Eulalia's letter to the Viceroy on to the table—"I have here a document written by you containing treasonable utterances against the Governor of the California. And my reason against the Governor of the

I am sorry . . . I wrote because I am so unhappy . . . it seemed the only way. Please, my darling, ordered husband. Please, oh, please do not do this to me!" Whimpering like a child she threw herself at his feet before the scandalized eyes of the watching soldiers and servants. Angustias moved toward her, but the Governor motioned her back. His face was stern and drawn.

"Get up, woman! What a scene to make before these people! A woman's tears and a dog's limping are not real. Will you go now or shall I be forced to make you?"

Stiff she knelt on the floor.

"No! No! I will not go . . . you can not make me! Oh, Pedro! Oh, Mother of God! Oh, help me!"

The Governor clutched his beard with one hand and gritted his teeth.

"Pick her up," he ordered the soldiers, "tie her hands, and put her on a horse. Take her to the fathers at Carmelo and tell them it is my orders she stay in the monjera until I return. Under no circumstances is she to leave before then. And if she misbehaves, she is to be beaten, like any recalcitrant Indian woman."

"Pedro! Eulalia shrieked. "Pedro, not that! Al, Dios mio . . . not that!"

The Governor was trembling as much as the terrified woman at his feet.

"Very well. Not beaten. But if she misbehaves, she must be put in the stocks. Take her at once."

As the frightened soldiers lifted her from the floor, she struggled like a cat, writhing and sobbing.

"Best tie her hands," ordered the Governor coldly. "Or you will be scratched." He handed one a handkerchief, and watched grimly while her struggling hands were tied at her back. She faced him with features distorted, streaked with tears, but her eyes fierce.

"Cruel, brutal, mad Pedro! Fagot!" she cried. "You will suffer for this!" She wrenched against the bonds that held her hands. "Oh, let me go! Let me go!"

LAND CHEAP IN 18TH

CENTURY, RESEARCH FINDS

Land was as cheap as life in Eighteenth Century, research workers for the Federal Writers' Project, Works Progress Administration, learned while gathering data for a comprehensive file of history that will go into series of State Guide books.

What now is the choicest part of downtown commercial Covington, seat of Kenton County and second ranking city in Kentucky, once legendary figure was between the Dutch and the Indians for Manhattan Island. Covington realtors now appraise the section in platinum numerals.

One George Muse, a soldier in the French and Indian wars, on February 14, 1780, was the recipient of Land Warrant No. 367 for 200 acres at the mouth of the Licking River. The warrant was from the hand and seal of King George III of England under proclamation of the year 1763, and for distinguished military service. But today hardly adventure it was just as much a scrap of paper as was a treaty made by former Kaiser Wilhelm before the late World War.

Muse tired of carrying around the warrant and when he deemed it nigh time to wet his whistle he bartered the deed off to a soldier comrade for a small keg of whiskey. His comrade also lightly regarded the right to be a landlord and swapped the paper for a quarter of buffalo meat to Gen. James Taylor, afterward a resident of Campbell county. Gen. Taylor transferred the deed to Col. Stephen Trigg, who was killed by Indians in the Battle of Blue Lick. Trigg, before his death, had reassigned the title to John Todd, Jr., another early settler, and Todd disposed of the parcel to one James Welch for an unrecorded figure, if any.

On May 2, 1785, a survey was made and entered into the records. Then, in 1801, Thomas Kennedy acquired the land from Welch in a transaction involving 150 pounds sterling, and along in 1814, three Cincinnati capitalists obtained title to 150 acres of it. Deed books fail to show what Gen. John S. Gano, his brother, Richard M. Gano, and Thomas Davis Carmel, who comprised the Cincinnati syndicate, paid Kennedy for possession of the land, but they laid out the infant city of Covington on their purchase.

During the following year the land was platted and charted, named for Gen. Leonard Covington, a Maryland Revolutionary War hero and became incorporated as a city by act of the Legislature on February 24, 1834.

Muse's original grant came from the State of Virginia. Aside from the foregoing period in his life, research workers were unable to find anything more about Muse in relation to Northern Kentucky history.

Full-planting of tobacco beds permits the land to mellow during the winter and be in good condition for making the bed in the spring. It is almost necessary that stiff and hard be plowed in the fall since the grass may sprout and give trouble if plowed in spring.

426 HOURS A YEAR INTO THE DISHPAN

Estimating that housewives average 426 hours a year, or an hour and 10 minutes daily, washing dishes, Miss Ida Hagman of the home demonstration section of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture comes out with suggestions which she says will make the job easier and pleasanter.

In the first place, she admits that most women consider dishwashing distasteful. Yet the job has to be done. So Miss Hagman says the first step is to "make the task pleasanter by approaching it with the right attitude of mind."

Her second suggestion is that "working conditions" be made as good as possible. Ventilation and temperature in the kitchen should be proper; the sink or table should be the right height; maybe a stool provided to sit on.

Then follows several suggestions about washing and drying dishes, including what dishes to attack first, second, third, etc.; the preparation before washing; scrubbing and stacking or arranging dishes for washing, rinsing and drying, and the like.

STOCK AND HOME FOOD SUPPLY BEST BET IN HILL LAND FARMING

Farmers in the limestone hill land in the intermediate bluegrass region of Central Kentucky get two-thirds to three-fourth of their income from livestock, according to a study of 134 farms in Anderson, Garrard, Mercer and Washington counties, made by the Agricultural Experiment station of the University of Kentucky.

The farms studied were representative of farms in 21 counties comprising a belt of 2,500 square miles surrounding the inner bluegrass region of the central part of the state.

Dairy cattle and sheep were found to be the most important livestock. Dairy cows are preferable to sheep because they return more income for the amount of feed and pasture used, and usually labor is available for the additional work that dairying requires, says the report.

In this region farmers spend considerable time producing a home food supply. John H. Bondurant, who wrote the report, says: "As a result of natural conditions that influence the farming practice in the area, the production of an ample supply of garden and truck crops to supply fresh vegetables and sufficient quantities for canning for home use is highly desirable. In addition, the production of milk and milk products, poultry and poultry products and in many cases the entire meat supply for the family is advantageous."

Farmers in this intermediate bluegrass belt also grow tobacco, which is usually profitable, especially if it does not interfere too much with raising livestock. Some farmers, especially where good crop land is limited, might even find it profitable to grow more tobacco and less corn, Mr. Bondurant believes.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Owners of dairy herds in Todd county which recently completed a year's test with a production of 300 pounds or more per cow are Hollins & Crouch, 386 pounds; Thomas Johnson, 343 pounds, and Logan & Moberly, 325 pounds. As usual, says County Agent Stuart Brabant, the highest producing herds paid best. Simpson county farmers have received $45,928.74 in government loans on 60,813 bushels of wheat, now in storage at Franklin and other towns in the county. The difference in the market price on loan value has encouraged borrowing money on wheat.

After threshing 15 bushels of re-cleaned seed to the acre from 4 acres of red clover, E. R. Berry of Bath county had the straw crushed and mixed with molasses for finishing young cattle. In addition to the seed, he harvested over five tons of straw. More than 100 draft mares have been purchased by Whitley county farmers this year, with a view to raising mules and horses. A check of 12 farms revealed that one mule under 20 years of age, 8500 and cattle raising also is being developed in the county.

The Kiwanis club sponsored a horse show as part of the fall festival in Clark county.

SWINE IMPROVEMENT SPREADS

In March 1937 six registered Jersey girls were taken into the county, to help launch a swine improvement project. This fall, when County Agent Joe Hurt made a survey of the results of the campaign he found 110 purified descendants and the six original sows.

HOG KILLING TIME HERE

The College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky is distributing plans for building home butchering equipment on the farm which will make butchering easier and more efficient. The equipment is not elaborate or expensive, and can be made by farmers from materials probably to be found right on the farm. While designed for butchering hogs, the equipment could be used in killing either cattle or sheep. The plans can be had by writing to the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Bert Watkins, Johnson county, has built a model dairy barn in which to put recently purchased purified cattle.

Farmers in Harlan county are trying to stop winter erosion by seeding rye on sloping and cultivated land. Copper sulfate treatment for parasites in sheep has been tried successfully in Anderson county.

To lower expenses during the winter months, Grant county farmers are culling their poultry flocks. Since January 1, eighteen purchased bulls have been brought into Pike county.

Twenty-five Caldwell county farmers are keeping poultry records. Carlisle county farmers sold two carloads of sweet potatoes for 8-12 cents per hamper above market price.

Best methods of stripping tobacco were demonstrated by J. Y. Steele, Adair county, before about 100 farmers.

Many Hickman county farmers are having soil tests made with a view to gradually improving their land. Seven cows belonging to Dr. C. Hays, Washington county, last month produced milk and butterfat that sold for $140 above feed costs. On Nicholas county, two farmers cooperated to buy a carload of western black-faced ewes.

Keep the pullets in good flesh by feeding liberally on grain. When not fed well, they may molt early and quit laying when eggs are high. Grain is comparatively cheap this year. A good plan is to feed grain and mash in separate hoppers.

DEPLORES MOVEMENT OF YOUTH TO CITIES

"Hundreds of our rural youth leave the farm every year to take up other occupations, unconscious of the opportunity which they are turning their back upon," so declared Howard P. Sharp of Illinois, president of the Youth Section of the American Country Life Association, at the annual meeting of that organization at the University of Kentucky.

"The simple privations of farming defeat the feeble enthusiasm many capable young rural people have for that way of life. The task of building a barn into something more than a house, a barnyard and a system of crop rotations is the challenge we face. There are still unlimited possibilities for making a rural home quite as attractive, if not a great deal more so, than the average urban dwelling."

Mr. Sharp believes that there is needed, in addition to a mastery of production, a genuine rural philosophy which would help free agriculture from the domination of the cities.

Women Invited To Attend Local Cooking School

Miss Bess Harris to Demonstrate Modern Methods of Cookery

The homemakers of Walton and surrounding area will have the opportunity of attending one of the finest and most complete cooking schools ever brought to Boone County, when Miss Bess Harris, of the Hotpoint Division of the General Electric Company opens the course at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, December 1. The school is under the auspices of the DeMoisey Electric Shop and the merchants of this city.

Miss Harris has had years of practical work in conducting cooking schools over the nation. She is a graduate in Home Economics at the Georgia State College for Women and has directed Electric Cookery classes in many leading universities and colleges.

"Electric cookery is comparatively new, yet it is already regarded as one of the most important branches in the study of Home Economics. Thousands of women in all parts of the country daily are turning to electric cookery as the answer to their cooking needs," stated Frank DeMoisey, proprietor of this popular merchandising shop. "Miss Harris is one of America's leading experts on cooking, and it is a great deal of satisfaction to myself that this firm was able to secure her for this educational food course. Miss Harris is eager to meet the women of Walton and discuss their cooking problems with them. She will try to answer every question during the entire demonstration. If you are not certain of any of the recipes she uses, feel free to ask her to repeat," added Mr. DeMoisey.

The entire afternoon's entertainment and instruction is absolutely free. You are urged to attend, and to invite several of your friends to join in a party for the affair. Remember the school starts promptly at two o'clock.

ENTERTAINMENT AWARDS NO ADMISSION CHARGE

Electric Cookery to Be Demonstrated To Public at Local Cooking School

The Hotpoint Miracle Cookery Program that will be given Thursday afternoon at the Walton-Verona Gymnasium by Miss Bess Harris will consist of:

Oven Meal—Roast chicken, baked potatoes, buttered carrots, corn flake pudding.

Surface meal: Caramel frosting and German potato salad.

In the Cooker will be Tomato steak and fruit desert, and a jam cake will be baked at the same time. In the broiler will be ham, peas and tomatoes.

The refrigerator will contain Cranberry salad, pumpkin ice cream and fudge bars in pop-ice tray. Recipes for the various dishes are given below:

Roast chicken—Prepare 4-pound chicken to roast. Place in oblong baking pan and roast on lower rack with oven dinner. Temperature 350. Time: 2 hours.

Buttered carrots.

Baked potatoes—6 medium potatoes, washed, grease and place in oblong baking pan on lower rack with oven meal.

Corn flake pudding—4 cooking apples, 3 cups corn flakes, half cup of sugar, half cup chopped nuts, fourth cup seedless raisins, one teaspoon cinnamon and two tablespoons butter. Peel, core and chop apples fine. Butter a pudding dish. Cover bottom with corn flakes, then a layer of apples, sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, dot with butter, and then sprinkle with some nuts and raisins. Repeat until all the ingredients are used, having corn flakes dotted generously with butter on top. Cover. Bake with oven meal on upper rack. Temperature: 350 degrees. Time: 2 hours.

German Potato Salad: (serves 6) 4 medium sized potatoes, sliced, 1 small onion, sliced, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 4 slices dried bacon, one-fourth cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons sugar, one-half cup of water, one-half teaspoon mustard, salt, pepper.

Combine ingredients and cook in covered saucepan on small surface unit. High until steaming approximately five minutes; low or quarter time, 20 minutes and off heat from 5 to 15 minutes. Note: Salad can be baked in the oven with an oven meal in covered oven meal pan.

In the Thrift Cooker will be: Tomato steak: (serves 6 to 8), 3 tablespoons fat, 2½ pounds round steak, 2 inches thick, 1 large onion, 5 carrots, 2 white turnips, 2 cups full canned tomatoes, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper. Heat fat in Cooker on large unit. Add meat and sear it brown on all sides. Arrange meat in bottom of Thrift Cooker kettle and cover with onion, carrots (and turnips which have been peeled and cut into cubes. Add salt and pepper. Drain tomatoes and make thin gravy from tomato liquid and drippings in frying pan. Pour this over meat and vegetables and place drained tomatoes on top of all. Cover. High heat until steam flows freely from vent. Low heat to cook. Time: 1½ hours.

Spicy Jam Cake: 4 eggs, 1 cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup butter-milk, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon spice, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup jam.

Cream butter and sugar; add eggs one at a time and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk to which soda has been added. Next add jam

Free Prizes Will Be Awarded To Guests Thursday

Local Merchants Join With Electric Shop
To Insure Success

One of the attractions, aside from the educational features of the afternoon's entertainment, will be the awarding of a door prize, and several other worthwhile gifts that have been donated by the local merchants and business men of Walton. The outstanding award of the afternoon is a lovely automatic electric waffle iron given by the sponsor of the party, The DeMoisey Electric Shop and he will also make some family a present of a nice baked ham, cooked during the school. Other items that will be given during the course include a beautiful wall lamp from the Community Public Service Co.; 24-pound bag of White Villa Flour; 24-pound sack of Lexington Cream Flour, given by Charlie Rouse of the Modern Food Store; a fine pair of kitchen scales, that will make some housewife a fine present with the compliment of the Conrad Hardware; an 8-pound bucket of Partridge Pure Lard for those delicious fluffy biscuits, like Miss Harris makes, is the gift of Bert Schneider, of Schneider's Market; and several women will feel proud of the sacks of flour donated by Leonard Cook, of the Walton Feed Mills, for he is interested in bringing the message of better baking flour to the housewives of Boone County; and last but not least is the year's subscription to the Walton Advertiser, with its interesting pages full of news and recipes each week. All these prizes will be given during, and at the end of the cooking school. There is no admission charge, and you are cordially invited to attend.

This Attractive Luncheon Set May Win Crochet Prize

Gay Peasant Colors for Your Table

STRONG bright colors of mercerized crochet cotton make this modern luncheon set a gay accessory for outdoor breakfasts or luncheons. The mats are large and sturdy, and they will also serve as hot plate mats, protecting the finish of your table. Luncheon sets like this one will be eligible for competition in the Second National Crochet Contest. Directions for crocheting it, and details of the National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Contest, 532 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify set No. 7073.

Low Cost Meat Dishes In Order During "In-Between" Hoidays

Low cost meat dishes are just the thing for "in-between the holiday season" dinners. One can save a little on the food budget by eating meat cakes with Italian sauce, beef and kidney pie or some sort of stew, to have a little extra to set the table during the Christmas holidays.

When hash is good if it is well seasoned, and if you like curry you may try a lamb curry—it requires lamb shoulder, breast or neck, cut of the less expensive variety.

ROAST MEAT HASH

Combine one-half cup cooked, diced potatoes, one-third cup cooked chopped onions, one-third cup cooked, chopped green peppers; three tablespoons diced, canned or cooked tomatoes (optional) with two cups cold cubed roast meat, beef, lamb or veal.

Glaze one cup leftover gravy with one-third cup tomato puree and season well with salt, pepper and about one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. If there is no gravy left, make gravy with one cup water, one beef cube, two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons flour.

Heat the gravy, add meat and vegetables. Pour hash in baking dish and sprinkle with bread crumbs and melted cheese. Brown in moderate oven.

With meat and fish hash particularly, tartar sauce is an ideal relish accompaniment. Make it tart with finely-chopped pickles. Cole slaw is excellent with hash or a salad bowl, individual or family size, filled with center leaves of lettuce, sliced tomatoes, apple gherkins and little green onions.

BEEF STEAK, KIDNEY PIE

Two pounds beef steak (cut three fourths inch thick), two veal kidneys, two small onions, one teaspoon salt, one fourth teaspoon pepper, one cup flour, one half cup fat, two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce.

Cut steak into one and one-half inch squares. Dredge with flour and season with salt and pepper, sauté until brown in heavy kettle. Add sufficient water to more than cover the meat. Add chopped onions, sauce and seasoning. Place on heat to simmer.

Prepare kidneys as directed. Place in a kettle, cover with cold water bring to a boil, drain and repeat a second time. Add kidneys to the meat in the kettle and simmer all together until tender, about two hours. Continue to add liquid and stir from time to time to keep meat from sticking, remove meat to a casserole, add enough liquid from the kettle to fill the casserole, and get aside to cool.

Cover with plain pastry and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) twelve to fifteen minutes until the crust is a golden brown.

MEAT CAKES

(Meat is Chopped).

One-half pound beef round, one-half pound veal steak, one-quarter pound smoked ham, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, one teaspoon minced parsley, one teaspoon minced onion, one egg, one-quarter cup cream.

Mix ingredients. Shape into cakes two-thirds of an inch thick. Place in shallow pan. Add sauce.

Four teaspoons olive oil, three tablespoons minced green peppers, one third cup diced celery, three tablespoons flour, two cups meat stock or boiling water, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika. Brown the onions, peppers and celery in oil. Add flour and cook until it has become a light brown color. Add rest of the ingredients and boil two minutes. Four over meat cakes and cook twenty minute in a covered pan over a moderate fire. Turn the cakes several times.

SPANISH MEAT BALLS

(Boiled In Stock.)

One pound chopped beef, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, one-half cup cornmeal, two eggs or four yolks, one teaspoon minced parsley, one teaspoon minced onion, two teaspoons chopped green peppers, one tablespoon catsup, one-quarter cup flour.

Add all the ingredients except the flour. Knead until well-blended. Shape into two-inch balls and roll in the flour. Add to the stock.

STOCK

One meat bone (uncooked), two celery leaves, one bay leaf, one onion slice, six cups water, one teaspoon salt, three tablespoons butter.

Mix all the ingredients except the butter. Cover and simmer twenty minutes. Strain. Pour into a deep frying pan. Boil. Add the meat balls. Cover and simmer forty minutes. Turn the balls often and be careful not to scorch. Then add the butter and serve.

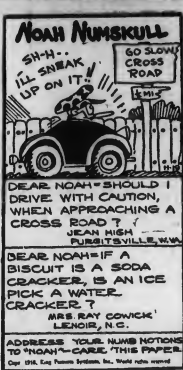

TASTY, ATTRACTIVE FOOD FOR CHILDREN

Children should have food that is appealing as well as satisfying and well-balanced, in the opinion of Mrs. Mary Munford Van Cleave, in charge of the nursery school of the University of Kentucky home economic department. A little care and thought will make it possible to have food that is tasty and appetizing.

Selecting foods chosen at random from menus used at the nursery school. Mrs. Van Cleave pointed out the following: Apple sandwich, parsley sandwich, egg in spinach nest, orange beefy with orange sauce, whole wheat sandwich, eggs ala Goldenrod, liver and vegetables en casserole, banana custard, cauliflower with egg sauce, raw tomato wedge, carrot stick, cream of potato soup, and beefs with lemon butter.

These foods are served with other things to make a well-balanced, adequate meal. MILK is served with every meal.

It should never be necessary to have to coax the normally healthy child to eat, Mrs. Van Cleave says. Inactivity, exercise may be a cause of lack of appetite, and it is an easily remedied matter. Have a rest period of a half hour or so before each meal, have poorly-served food, and then eat in the usual fashion, not paying undue attention to the child's manipulations if adults eat as though they enjoyed food, that will have the most effect anyway, as children are very suggestible, it is said.

One-Minute Test

1. Why is it harder to fly from Europe to America than it is to fly the other way?
2. What animal runs fastest?
3. Is there a test to show if milk has been underfed?

Words of Wisdom

Of all marvelous things, perhaps there is nothing that angels behold with such supreme astonishment as a good man—Colton.

Notes on Etiquette

"Moderate will happen" at the table, on a dinner, if you draw something—spoon, fork, knife, napkin—in a restaurant or in a home where there are servants, let it be until the servant or waiter picks it up. If there are no servants or waiters, pick it up yourself if you can without inconvenience to others. There is no need to be embarrassed about it.

Today's Newsnote

You who are born on this day would make good salesmen, although you should let someone else handle the financial end of your business. You are good buyers, anticipate what will sell and are successful in getting rid of what you purchase. You also make fine companions—are bright, full of fun and interesting.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. Because of the nature of the winds which are created by the motion of the earth and the heat of the sun, the passage from east to west is harder than from west to east.
2. The Indian cheetah or hunting leopard; this applies only to short distance runs.
3. The Hotpoint test to determine the amount of butter fat in milk will indicate if milk has been watered.

Prize Chili Recipe Sent In By Louisville Man: Try These Today

BY MARIE GIBSON

Courier-Journal Food Editor.

It seems that each contestant in this column's last recipe contest has a different version of the proper way to make chili as there were very few formulas requiring the same ingredients in the same proportions. The first two prize recipes call for a great deal of seasoning and suet; the third award winner is more mildly flavored.

Our contests have proven that men are really interested in cooking—again a prize goes to a man. Sam P. Phillips, 608 S. 6th St., Louisville, wins $5 for the following recipe:

CHILI NO. 1

Two pounds hamburger, one pound ground suet, four onions, one small piece garlic, two cans tomato puree, four tablespoons chili powder, one teaspoon comino powder, four cups water, one large can red chili beans and one box spaghetti.

Melt suet in kettle, add onions and garlic finely chopped; let cook about ten minutes, then add hamburger, chili powder, comino, puree, water and salt to taste. Cook over slow fire about forty-five minutes. Stir occasionally to keep from burning.

Cook Spaghetti in a separate pan in boiling salt water until tender. Heat beans and add when ready to serve.

In making chili the second prize winner cooks the meat mixture, the spaghetti and the beans in separate containers, then puts each one in the bowl as she serves—first the spaghetti, then the beans, then covers all with the meat mixture.

CHILI NO. 2

One half pound red beans (dried) soaked overnight and cooked; three-fourths pound spaghetti, one-half pound suet, one pound hamburger, one small can tomato puree, six cloves garlic, one large onion, one teaspoon chili powder, two level tablespoons each of comino and oregano, and salt to taste.

Run suet through food chopper. Cook slowly with three tablespoons water. Let cook until suet melts. Add hamburger and chili pepper and tomato puree. Add two cans water (measured in pure can). While this mixture simmers brown onions and garlic chopped fine. Add to meat.

Cook three-fourth pound spaghetti in boiling salt water, wash and drain.

Soak cooked beans and wash them until water is clear. Just before serving add comino and oregano to the meat mixture.

When serving, put spaghetti in a bowl cover with hot beans and cover all with meat mixture.

Three Mexican chili pods (dried) may be heated in a skillet, powdered and added to the meat mixture.

The third recipe is for a more mild type of chili. It contains no garlic and much less seasoning. If this is the type dish you prefer try the formula.

CHILI NO. 3

Six slices breakfast bacon, one pound hamburger, one quart tomatoes, one pound red chili beans, two large onions, one and one half tablespoons chili pepper, salt to taste and a small (5c) package of dry spaghetti.

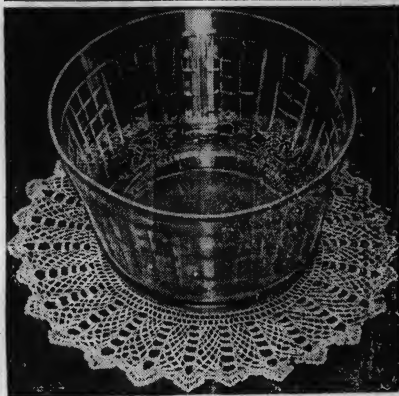

Soak beans overnight and cook until tender. Sometimes chili beans are hard to find two cans of the red chili beans may be substituted. Do not use kidney beans.

Fry bacon in skillet and break into small pieces. Add hamburger and cook slowly for ten minutes, browning slightly. Cut onions fine. Add onions, tomatoes, chili pepper and salt.

Cook slowly for another ten minutes and add beans and spaghetti.

The length of time the whole mixture is cooked depends on how thick you like the chili. Usually one-half hour of slow boiling is enough.

Crochet Contest Calls For Practical Designs

Utility Dolly

ENTRIES in the Second National Crochet Contest, to be held this fall, will emphasize practical designs for home decoration. Here is a dolly, made of mercerized crochet cotton, that will give years of good service. Incidental household accessories such as a dolly like this one, can do much to brighten up a home, and add individuality to it on many occasions. Directions for making it, and details of the National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify dolly No. 7127.

Limited use of milk, cream, butter and other dairy products is said to represent the greatest defect in the diet of the average person. Most serious of all is the comparatively low consumption of milk and butter by both adults and children.

plies, and vanilla, and bake in layers at a temperature of 375 degrees. Turn 33 or 40 minutes.

Corned beefing: 2 cups brown sugar, 2 egg whites, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 5 teaspoons water, 1 tablespoon of vanilla. Mix all ingredients in small sauce pan except vanilla. Place on small surface unit. Turn switch to "off" heat until thick enough to spread on cake. Add vanilla.

Cranberry salad: 1 package lemon jelly, 1/4 pound cranberries (ground), 1 orange, 1/4 cup chopped celery, 1/4 teaspoon lemon juice, and chopped nuts if desired. Follow directions on box for jelly. When it begins to jelly add other ingredients. Pour into ring mold on cups.

Fudge Bars in Pop-Ice Tray: 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1/4 cup melted butter, 2 squares melted chocolate (chips), 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup cake flour, 1/2 cup broken pecan meats or black walnuts. Sift flour and measure. Melt chocolate and butter. Beat eggs, add sugar, and beat again. Add the melted butter, melted chocolate, vanilla and salt and beat again. Add flour and mix until smooth. Then add nut meats. Fill one Pop-Ice tray (greased). Bake in preheated oven. Temperature: 350 degrees. Time: Forty minutes.

Pumpkin Ice Cream: 1/4 cup brown sugar, 1/4 cup pumpkin, 1 cup top milk or undiluted canned milk, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon ginger, 1/4 teaspoon allspice, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon gelatin, 1/4 cup water, 2 tablespoons white sugar, 2 tablespoons orange juice.

In a sauce pan combine brown sugar, pumpkin, egg yolks (slightly beaten) spices, and salt. Cook on "low" heat until mixture begins to thicken. Soak gelatin in 1/4 cup water. Add to hot mixture. Cool. Beat egg white, add white sugar, fold into first mixture when it is thoroughly cooled and slightly con-gealed. Pour into freezing tray and freeze with temperature control set to the lowest point. When frozen to a mush, scoop into a bowl and beat. Return to freezing tray to finish freezing.

BUTTER NECESSARY TO MAKE SANDWICH

When is a sandwich not a sandwich? When there is little or no butter in it, say nutrition experts at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Insist on the sides of the sandwich being well buttered, they urge.

Butter is one of the most necessary and economical foods, these same experts declare. Many foods cost more and yet are less nourishing. Eat plenty of good butter; insist on generous pats when eating at restaurants; help yourself liberally to it at home.

These same authorities on food and health believe more milk, cream, cheese and other dairy products should be used. In addition to good, rich cream in coffee and on cereals, there are many ways of cooking with cream—creamed onions, tomatoes, potatoes, corn and other vegetables, soup, creamed salmon, whipped cream; and baking muffins, biscuits, cookies and cakes.

The easiest way to get the daily quota of milk is to drink it. However milk may be used in the preparation of many dishes, such as soups, eggs, scalloped vegetables, scalloped meats, gravies, cocoa, cereals cooked in milk, cereals served with milk, custards, blancmange, puddings, ice cream, cottage cheese and cream cheese.

Every growing child, say health authorities, should have a quart of milk daily, every adult a pint. In addition, they should eat liberally of butter and other dairy products.

Recent purchases have brought to nine the number of registered Milking Shorthorn bulls in Perry county, in a campaign to improve cattle raising. More than 11,000 acres of hay and grass crops were sowed this year.

Personality Affected by Clothes

Dress a Child Neatly
But Not Noticeably
Different from Mates

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

THE CLOTHES a child wears affect his personality. If he supposes they are very different in style from those worn by most of his playmates, even though his clothes are much more expensive, he may feel inferior. Although he is not conscious that his dress makes him seem odd, the peculiar response to him on this account by other children may make him feel uncomfortable without his knowing why.

In a chapter on "Clothes and Personality," in one of my books, I have written:

"The child of three or ten, dressed very differently from those with whom he mingles, is told by other children that he is different. So long as clothes are neat and clean and tidy, and not noticeably different in style from those worn by the child's associates, remarks of disapproval are seldom made. The economic status of a child's parents need not affect his dress in these modern days when styles are widely standardized and when there is little financial inducement for parents, however poor, to make their children's clothes . . .

How They're Acquired

"No doubt most worries and sensitiveness of children about clothes, especially of adolescent children, are acquired by the expressed anxieties of their parents and other adults with whom they mingle. . . . Parents of average and very limited means are inclined to dress their children better than they can afford, thus laying the foundation of an unreasonable expectation in these matters. . . . Some children, before school age, are forever teasing their parents to purchase clothes like those a playmate has. Eternal strife to keep up with the Joneses brings endless grief to countless lagging far behind, and in the race the slow-runs are the keenest sufferers from humiliation that may linger longest. . . .

"The child who wears a fine quality of clothes, bought at unreasonable personal sacrifice by his parents or some other person, comes to expect continued sacrifices from them, and loses to that degree an appreciation of the cost entailed and the experience needful to self-preparation for earning his own clothes by and by. Then, with these unhealthful standards set and the low standards of self-acquirement cultivated in the child, he is doomed to suffer when left to get it alone. Then, the consciousness of clothes and the suffering incident to the inability to afford the kind he has been trained to have will be almost immeasurable.

"Therefore, the parent who trains the child to a reasonable standard in regard to the quality of clothes he wears contributes to the child's greatest personal satisfaction in respect to dress."

Household Hint

Window shades that are long enough so that when they are wet and faded the bottom can be cut off and hemmed, are an economy measure. One housewife says she always buys her window shades long for that reason.

In remodeling houses, consideration should be given to making greater use of porches. Ninety percent of Kentucky homes have or could have porches that could be used six months in the year. Many porches, however, need widening, screening and otherwise remodeling.

Key Cities Report Holiday Sales

For the past week actual business as well as sentiment, continued to improve gradually, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from 37 key cities, just received by its Louisville District Office. Industrial activity, and automobile production, felt the improvement. Practically all cities reported increases in retail trade over the previous week, and only nine registered more than a 5 per cent decrease from last year's comparative. Merchants in many cities noted new Christmas business, with the volume expected to equal or exceed that for the 1937 season.

Louisville reported that retail trade, influenced by steady seasonal increase was only 3 per cent to 12 1/2 per cent. Wholesale dry goods and notions moved at about the same rate as last year. Reduction of 10 to 15 per cent under year ago was reported on collections in all lines of business. Manufacturing volume unchanged, some plants operating 25 per cent under last year.

Controversy between Haldeman plant of Kentucky Fire Brick Co. and employees settled, with agreement whereby men will receive $22,500 in back pay and be taken back to work immediately.

Additional 40 men called to work at C & O railroad car repair shops at Raceland, Ky., with last week's payroll close to $20,000.

Kentucky Employment Services reported placements, 448; decrease of 17.6 from preceding week.

Louisville bank clearings decreased 4.7 per cent under year ago.

Kentucky's 1938 corn crop estimate, 74,704,000 bushels; last year 75,554,000; average annual production 61,768,000. 1937-38: Irish potato crop estimate, 4,224,000 bushels; 1937-38: 4,371,000. Other 1938 estimates: sweet potatoes, 2,280,000 bushels; sorghum syrup production, 693,000 gallons; buckwheat, 27,000 bushels; apples 801,000 bushels.

Construction cost of $2,500,000 forecast for Louisville's Best Road housing project, total cost to be $4,000,000.

New $500,000 Catholic orphanage in Jefferson County opened.

Distilling company in Lebanon, Ky., resumed operations after shutdown since February.

Kentucky awarded Navy contract for 230,529 worth of aviation gasoline.

SANTA COMING

Local Store Brings Santa to Walton

Word has just come of the editor that Santa Claus himself will pay a visit to Walton on Saturday, Dec. 17, and again on Saturday 24. He is to make his headquarters at Schneider's Grocery Store right on Main Street, where he will greet all his young friends. Santa Claus will also have a gift for every boy and girl that comes to visit him on those two days. Bring your parents to Walton and have a real treat by seeing and talking to Old Saint Nick. Further announcements from Santa Claus and Bert Schneider, proprietor of this modern store, will appear next week.

FINDS SON DEAD IN TRUCK NEAR HOME

Joseph Delaney, 14 years old, Yonkers, was found dead in the cab of a truck at his home Monday night by his father, John Delaney. The boy had started the truck to take his father to work.

Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton County physician, attributed death to a heart attack. He discounted carbon monoxide poisoning because the windows of the truck were open, he said.

Kenneth was a sixth-grade student at Vinton Public School. The father is employed by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

Services and burial was held in Rockcastle County, Ky., T. M. Swindler funeral home had charge of arrangements.

MAIL CHRISTMAS GIFTS EARLY SAYS POSTMASTER

Acting Postmaster Clinton Clegg announced yesterday that mail deliveries would be suspended December 25 and 26. He urged all Christmas parcels be dispatched as soon as possible so that they may reach their destinations on time.

To reach the various states parcels should be sent from Walton on the following dates:

Win First Home Game; Second String Men Win Starting Game 18 to 2

Coach Louis Shields' first string "Bearcats" forged into the lead in the Boone County Conference here by defeating the Florence High basketball team 29-10, Tuesday night, December 6. It was the first appearance of the local aggregation on the home court, and the fans were rewarded by a thrilling game.

Walton started with an early lead, and was never in danger zone. Chapman was high pointer with 10 to his credit. Only one field goal was chalked up by the visitors, most of their tallies coming from foul throws. McClure, Walton player, was injured during the game when he received a game on the forehead that required two stitches to close.

The Bearcats now have four straight victories to their credit, and lead the conference by two games.

The second string boys also tasted victory when they defeated the Florence reserves by the one-sided score of 18-2.

The local squad journeys to Newport Friday night for the toughest assignment during the pre-Christmas schedule.

The Rotary Club of Walton meets every Thursday noon at Stephens Restaurant. Visiting Rotarians are welcome. The banquet will be served by the women of the church.

BOONE HOMEMAKERS TO HAVE EXHIBIT AT LONDON, ENGLAND CONVENTION

Buttons made from fruit and nut seeds will be sent to London, England by Boone county homemakers. This exhibit will be used in the International handicraft display at the convention of Associated Country Women of the World in London, June 1939.

Boone county sent a box of buttons for the Kentucky exhibit of the National Convention of the American Country Life Association held in Lexington, Ky., in November. Walnuts, peach seeds and acorn cups had been converted into useable buttons. A committee of extension handicraft work from each of the specialists selected the outstanding ten state exhibits. The buttons from Boone county were chosen to be sent (Continued on Page Four)

WOMEN'S BODY FOUND FRIDAY NEAR VERONA

Condition of Body Makes Identification Impossible

The remains of a middle-aged woman, estimated to have been dead for several weeks, were discovered by Marvin Smith while hunting Friday afternoon on the C. C. Ferguson farm near Verona. The body was found about 75 yards from the Walton-Verona highway. Sheriff Frank Walton was called to the scene, and supervised the removal of the bones and evidence to the county seat. The dress and set of false teeth were all that were recovered to aid in identifying the body, and it was impossible to ascertain how she met her death. Several of the bones were missing, as if some animal had carried them off.

Two clues which may lead to solving the mystery are being worked on by the Sheriff's office. An automobile wreck in the vicinity of Verona last summer may have some connection with the case. According to residents of that neighborhood, the driver of the wrecked car told young men that he was having "trouble" with his "girl friend."

The car was later brought to the Walton Garage, and a check-up will be made to see if records will reveal the driver's name. The party was headed to Gallatin county to attend a dance.

The upper plate that was found with the body offers the second clue to Sheriff Walton's men. According to Dr. Robert C. Garrison, Burlington, the plate bore the markings of a Chicago dental laboratory. The plate may be sent to Chicago if authorities of that city can aid in solving the mystery.

The dress found with the remains is being investigated to learn, if possible, where it was sold and to whom.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN COVINGTON HOSPITAL

William Speagle, former resident of Walton, died Thursday at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, from pneumonia. He was 69 years old. His remains were taken to his home in Florence, where services were held Sunday at the First Baptist Church, Florence, and later at the huge box for the final big drawing. Some lucky Christmas shoppers will have $50.00 more after Saturday, December 24. Ask the merchants for your tickets and deposit them in the boxes found in each business establishment, or the large barrel at Jones' Drug Store.

Mr. Speagle moved to Florence four years ago from Walton. He leaves to mourn his passing: his wife, Mrs. Zula Speagle; two sons, Kniffin and Omar Speagle of Florence; a daughter, Miss Sallie Speagle, at home; three brothers, a sister and three grandchildren.

Tharp and Stith, Florence funeral directors, were in charge.

FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS TO MEET AT TOWN HALL DEC. 12

The Florence Homemakers will hold their regular monthly meeting at the Town Hall on Monday, December 12 at 10 a. m. Subject of the day will be "Better Speech." All members are urged to bring a ten cent gift for the Xmas party to follow the regular meeting. Visitors are cordially invited to attend.

Officials looked for a better picture of prices today as the other markets opened. Growers received $210,473.26 yesterday with the high basket selling for $33.

Selling on the Mayville burley market was suspended Tuesday when farmers staged a noisy demonstration against low bid prices and withdrew their tobacco from the market.

Sales had progressed to the fourth market, with bid prices ranging from $6 to $12, when the farmers began their demonstration.

There were many rejections. Prices bid for burley on the opening day of the Mayville market last year ranged from $1 to $42, with the average being $23.46.

Local Residents Make Plans to Enter First Annual Xmas Lighting Contest

Valuable Prizes Will Be Awarded In Advertiser Decorating Contest

George Hager, president of Rotary International, will be guest of honor at a special meeting of the Cincinnati Rotary Club at the Gibson Hotel Wednesday evening, December 14. He will also make a short talk on Rotary. Several local members have made reservations to attend, and others interested are asked to make reservations with Bob Darling, secretary of the Walton Rotary Club.

$200 WILL BE GIVEN BY LOCAL MERCHANTS

At a meeting of the Walton Business Association last Thursday night it was decided to offer $200 in cash prizes to Christmas shoppers. Everyone, except the members, can participate in the drawing and also give prizes. Capital prize was set at $50.00, with ten $10.00 prizes and ten $5.00 prizes, to be given Saturday afternoon December 24, at 3 p. m. (C.T.S.).

Members of the Association are offering a free ticket with each fifty cent purchase paid on accounts. Tickets deposited last week, this week and next week for the weekly afternoon drawings, are being saved and all will be deposited in the huge box for the final big drawing.

Some lucky Christmas shoppers will have $50.00 more after Saturday, December 24. Ask the merchants for your tickets and deposit them in the boxes found in each business establishment, or the large barrel at Jones' Drug Store.

FLORENCE CHURCH TO GIVE OYSTERS DINNER DEC. 10

An oyster dinner with items listed for 10 cents will be given Saturday, Dec. 10, at the Methodist Church, Florence, Ky. It is sponsored by the Ladies Aid Society of the Church.

Items on the menu listed for 10 cents are chicken soup, fried oysters, oyster stew, chicken salad sandwich, ham sandwiches, and home-made pie in variety. Hot tea or coffee will be served.

Any number of servings will be made for the above prices.

SIMON KENTON P-T-A TO MEET MONDAY NIGHT

MOTHER OF LOCAL MAN DIES IN AUGUSTA, KY.

Mrs. Lillian Abbott Schwab aged 54, passed away on Monday morning November 28th 1938, at Augusta, Ky., after an extended illness.

Mrs. Schwab leaves to mourn her passing, her devoted mother, Mrs. Abner Abbott, one daughter, Mrs. Paul Ranson of Charlotte, N. C., and three sons, Louis of Walton; Fenton of Covington, and William of Augusta; also several grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon, November 30, at 3 o'clock, from the Moore and Parker funeral home, Augusta, with Rev. T. Duke Williams in charge.

Interment followed in the Payne cemetery.

Growers Obtain Top Prices For Low-Grade Burley; Farmers Halt Auction Sales on Maysville Market

With approximately 140,000 pounds of tobacco on the floor ready for sale, Rome Kinman, auctioneer, opened the first sale of the season Tuesday at the Kenton-Campbell-Led Warehouse, Covington. This amount is more than was offered for sale on the first day last season.

After the sale had progressed a short time growers were remarking that the prices of low grades, such as red and tips, were higher and prices of better grades were lower than last season.

Hundreds of city speculators mingled with the tobacco growers and buyers in following Auctioneer Kinman along the line of baskets. As usual the sale by Kinman was progressing rapidly Tuesday morning and will continue through the afternoon.

Early sale prices Tuesday were ranging from $5 to $31 a hundred. Growers of low grade tobacco, Kentucky's chief cash crop, hoped for better prices as the annual sales entered their second day at Lexington and began in 22 state markets.

In the season's first sale yesterday $68,868 pounds of the leaf were sold at an average of $21.95 a hundred—weight—46 cents lower than the $22.43 average set on last year's opening day when 1,386,622 pounds were sold.

The market turned upward late in the first session after a shaky start.

Officials looked for a better picture of prices today as the other markets opened. Growers received $210,473.26 yesterday with the high basket selling for $33.

Selling on the Mayville burley market was suspended Tuesday when farmers staged a noisy demonstration against low bid prices and withdrew their tobacco from the market.

Do Your Shopping At Home

Northern Kentucky families are beginning to think about their Christmas shopping, considering the purchases that must be made for the holiday season.

We suggest to all buyers that they give local merchants an opportunity to supply their wants. The least that can be expected is that those who live here will inspect local stocks before thinking about spending their money elsewhere.

Trading at home is a form of civil loyalty that pays dividends. It is one way for every citizen to make a contribution to the business interests that support local institutions and give employment to local people. If all of us would resolve to buy at home, so far as possible, the result would be noticeable.

The lure of buying something cheap often flows like buyers but price is not the only guide to intelligent spending. Of course, given equal values the buyer is naturally going to spend his, or her, money where the price is cheaper. That is the rule followed by successful merchants in purchasing the goods they sell and there is nothing against it.

Local merchants are entitled to a chance to sell you what you want at a price that you can afford. They are not entitled to charge you more for the same goods than reliable merchants elsewhere. We feel sure that our merchants can meet competition and that their stocks are ample to offer you variety in selection.

Buyers should never forget the saying that no matter how cheap you make an article there is always somebody else who can make an inferior product and sell it for less. If fact, beware of "just as good" merchandise. It is economy to buy recognized values, that stand up under use and have behind them the service that none but local merchants and sellers can supply.

Painful news to the husband it that women are to boom the fur business this winter.

Death Strikes A School Bus

Death reaped its toll when a fast freight train, thundering through a swirling snow storm, crashed into a school bus near Midvale, Utah, last week. Sudden death was dealt to twenty-four youngsters, and three others may have fatal injuries. Most of the dead were killed outright and some of the bodies were so mangled it was impossible to establish how many were represented.

Although the bus driver stopped at the crossing as was required by law, he pulled in front of the speeding train.

Such disasters should serve as a warning to every driver to have his car under control at all times, for death lurks on every curve and at every railroad crossing.

In pruning the relief rolls an indication of a business upswing or merely the usual shortage of cash?

Average Goes Down

Tobacco market averages for the first days sales at Lexington are several dollars below opening prices of last year, with over 10,000,000 pounds of the State's 270,000,000-pound crop falling under the chant of the tobacco auctioneer. The low prices will have a tendency to lower prices on the markets throughout the State.

This year's crop is one of the best ever raised in Kentucky, but is not as heavy as other crops. Tobacco auctions will continue on the twenty-three market centers until the middle of February.

The farmers will have an opportunity of voting December 7 in a referendum to decide whether the AAA crop-control program for tobacco will be continued. The results will be watched with interest.

John L. Lewis, UMW chief, says profit-sharing by labor is a snare and delusion, meaning John wants a sure thing.

The Swing For Pensions

An old pension system looks like a political certainty. Under the present method the Federal contribution for this is $15 a month, which the states must match. This figure is on the upgrade, and the Townsendite varieties of ideas indicate the probability of a much higher "ante" to coax higher wages in aging the old folk.

Indications are that Democrats and Republicans will contest for the credit of putting such legislation across.

If Kentucky farmers were paid one and three-quarters millions of dollars to bring parity prices this year, what will they have to receive next year?

Don't Kid Yourself

In commenting on the relief of many that they "pay no taxes" the Kansas City Star says: "The complacency of millions over taxes would be sharply upset if a few facts were allowed to 'sink in'."

The Star then takes a survey of "indirect taxes" made by a large life insurance company and shows what the man who thinks he "pays no taxes" actually pays in taxes each year.

Out of the $600 annual income an $80 a month worker receives, he pays $10.29 a month, or $123.48 a year, in indirect taxes that have to be added to the cost of necessities he buys, such as food, rent, clothing, fuel, light, recreation, insurance and dozens of other things—about 13 per cent of his income in this case. And the tax increases as he earns more.

You are kidding only yourself when you laugh about taxes. The less you earn, the harder the hit you get from the indirect angle, for they increase the cost of every necessity of life you buy.

The question of what some students are at college for is answered by one school using them as guinea pigs in tests.

After several years' operation it has finally been discovered by those in high places that slum clearance does not help the ones needing aid.

The placing of John Nance Garner as leading Democratic candidate for President by the Gallup poll will be good news for business and the people generally.

A Live Wire Briar Hopper

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS, SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

A few days ago I attended the United Brethren Church and Sunday School home-coming in Mt. Airy, where I lived for a number of years. My moving into the neighborhood was my introduction to the United Brethren congregation. I felt it my duty to attach myself to the church and do what I could to help. It was from this church that I helped organize and build three United Brethren churches.

They are the Wiley Memorial Brethren Church, South Side; the Clifton, near Hughes High School; the Norris Memorial at College Hill. My first experience in church building was the North Fairmount Congregational, when but a young man in my twenties. I only speak of this giving some of my experiences in a happy, busy life in church work, serving six Sunday Schools in Cincinnati.

When I went into church work I was as timid and backward as a blushing girl and had no more idea of accomplishing what I did than becoming President of the United States.

No one ever heard me say I did it alone. I at all times gave the invisible power behind me credit for the work of accomplishment. There are hundreds of young men and women who could never thank I did it if they would let God use them. I was neither a polished singer or speaker nor highly educated for that matter, but I never let anyone beat me using what talents I had.

I began this story to tell of my experiences in a Sunday School contest in Mt. Airy. I say to you that it was a real contest. We started it as a neighborhood affair, but before it got through it reached to the greater part of Cincinnati. The novel part of it was that it was before automobiles and we used horses, buggies, hay wagons, carriages and horse drawn busses in fact anything that would carry people, as the church was two miles from the street car lines. The contestants were white and red, and I will never forget the real estate man who was a fan. He brought in a nice carriage drawn by two white horses carrying 16 girls all dressed in white and he was wearing a yellow suit, carrying on the silver slogan 18 1.

The captains of each side were at the end of the College Hill car lines receiving their people and loading them on hay wagons. Each one had to wear a red or white ribbon to be counted at the church. The white ribbons gave out. The white handkerchiefs were then torn into ribbon size. One man was so enthusiastic that he tore his shirt sleeves into ribbon. The white was in the contest to win the race as the reds had enlisted the services of several undertakers to furnish carriages in which to haul people and had boasted they would win.

The whites met the red by enlisting a Chevrolet undertaker, to haul people from Westwood and Chevrolet. It was a real contest. One of the red leaders said that the whites were really organized. They won by a margin of 25 in an attendance of more than 1,000 who filled the church and the church yard. We had speakers in the church and on the outside going thru the Sunday School lesson. We put Mt. Airy on the map. The people brought their baskets full of good edibles which were spread on neighboring lawns. Thus we also had a good social time.

That was a long time ago, but the people who attended will never forget it. When I attend the Mt. Airy home-coming I meet some old friends and make new ones. This is life. We are in a great procession from the cradle to the grave. The way to get the best speakers in the church and on the outside going thru to make the world better at we pass through it.

THE KING'S ENGLISH

We'll begin with box, the plural is boxes. But the plural of ox is oxen, not oxes. One fowl is a goose, but two are called geese.

The plural of mouse is never called mouses. You may find a lone mouse, or a whole nest of mice. But the plural of house, is houses, not hices.

If I speak of a foot and you show me two feet. And I gave you a boot, would a Pair be called bree? If the singular's this, and the plural these.

Should the plural of kiss ever be keeces? Then the masculine pronouns are he his and him. But imagine the feminine, she this, and shim.

Tradition has handed down an interesting episode on how Columbia, Ky., was saved from fire and pillage during the Civil War by the friendship of a raider for two citizens of that community, Champ Ferguson, notorious leader and known as a guerrilla in those days, had lately made much property, and had probably taken many lives in the Cumberland River section. He was headed for Columbia, and the populace awaited his coming with much anxiety and fear because of the stories of his depredations elsewhere. There were two citizens of that town who on some occasion befriended Ferguson, and for whom he held much gratitude and fondness. The story goes that these gentlemen met Ferguson and his party a few miles out of town, and engaged Champ in conversation. What was said of these gentlemen never divulged, however, the guerrilla spared the town. He rode into town and on the public square, followed by his cavalry. When near the center of the square he set fire to a large silk handkerchief and threw it in the air. The breeze promptly brought it to the earth where it soon burned out. The officer ordered his men to salute the town, and the band rode over the horizon never to return. The gentlemen credited with saving the town were two outstanding citizens—Col. Thomas Winfrey and Mr. Timoleon Cravens, the former proprietor of a hotel and the latter a lawyer.

A minister in the course of his sermon recently gave advice to the young men of his congregation concerning the picking of a wife. He said: "Young men choosing a wife should be careful not to pick a 'flapper' because she might keep on 'flapping.' Becoming warmed up to his subject he listed several 'don'ts' and 'do's' for prospective bridegrooms. His 'don'ts'—

"Don't marry a woman who tries to boss you before marriage, you'll become a henpecked rabbit without an ounce of happiness. 'Don't marry a woman who has to be remodeled to suit your ideals; you might as well try to mold the Rock of Gibraltar. 'Don't wait for the perfect woman to come along; the perfect women of the world are all dead.' His 'do's' follow:

Has commonsense; many homes are wrecked because of lack of it; 'Is morally decent, moral indecency comes to the surface in later years. 'Has the qualification of a moth; she may become on some day. And ended with the comment: 'Not a one will take this advice, but all will be wiser, it sadder, ten years afterwards.'

The "political pickers" are a brood in the land trying to name the gubernatorial candidates. On the Democratic side Keen Johnson gets the most publicity, the others trailing. When the nomination is made it will be found the winner will come pretty close to having the O. K. of Washington. Johnson may get it, and if he does plus his popularity and Chander's he is the man all the remainder will have to shoot at. Should another be the white-haired boy favored by Washington, there'll be another scrap of the intensity of the Barkley-Chandler battle. On the Republican side of the house, Judge Bryson has been mentioned and others from the mountain section. One guess is as good as another, the Republicans being a little tender-footed because of the slaughter of three of the best men in recent years the voters turned down Judge Charles I. Dawson for William Jason Fields; then Mayor William B. Harrison for Ruby Lafont, and last Judge King Swopes for B. "Happy" Chandler. All three Republicans were outstanding men of ability, integrity and courage. It has left the minority party leaders guessing and may have a deterrent effect on the sale men in that party from announcing, and again it may not, depending on conditions next

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

FLOWERS IN CANS

Flowers grow well for regular florists, who have all the knowledge and skill of their profession; they sometime grow equally well in the remotest sections of our country, where no book knowledge is available to aid the growers. Particularly have I enjoyed throughout my life the flowers in cans and buckets that grace so many humble homes. Flower pots often are quite cheap, but even the pittance to be paid for them is more than some homes have. Not daunted by poverty, however, the women and children, rarely the men, save the broken pots and pans and have containers for flowers anyway. Neighbors divide their stock of flowers, and thus in a single humble home there may be a large assortment of begonias, lantanas, geraniums, and other favorites. Garden flowers of similar tastes are everywhere, growing as luxuriantly as they could or would in a green house or an arborvitae.

Across the years come memories of the flowers in cans. How skillfully many people can raise plants from cuttings! Many small house is not too small to keep alive through the winter a few stocks that will be treasured for years. Even humble homes sometimes have a flower pit, where with a little trouble potted plants can be kept from fall until spring. I have helped dig flower pits and have my own flowers thus for year at a time.

Pits do not need to be elaborate, either, for a door made of brown domestic saturated in linseed oil will serve for a glass window quite well, as I know from experience. Some plants for a roof and an old quilt or blanket for severe weather are about all that is necessary to furnish such a pit. If the door is made to slant toward the south, winter, sunshine can do its part to help in the process of saving a bit of flower beauty and wealth from year to year.

Somehow I seldom see now the flower stands that used to be common, a sort of staid affair, where the cans and pots were arranged according to height. Some marvelous effects were secured thus, with the smallest investment.

In any evaluation of our rustic, aesthetic life this impulse to create beauty for the humble home should not be neglected. So much is made of the artistry of much of our own humdrum life, an artistry that has had to live under the buffets of mistaken zealots, many of whom regard beauty in any form as dangerous. I have heard fearful things said about people who sought to satisfy their souls' longing for beauty. One of the greatest artists I ever knew was punished as a child for drawing pictures. Worse still, he was prayed for publicly for thus giving his talents to the devil. In spite of these handicaps he is today a great man in his profession and is honored by the very people who once stood in his way. In much the same way the creators of beauty, even by planting flowers in tin cans, are slowly being recognized for what they are worth to a world that needs beauty and harmony and satisfying aesthetic life.

GATHER MEDICAL HISTORY FOR SPECIAL PUBLICATION

A comprehensive word picture of medical aid and public health service in Kentucky from 1745 to the present time is being compiled by the State-wide Medical History research, one of the many divisions of the Works Progress Administration, Sam M. Hubley, State Supervisor, reports with release of a periodical statement to all State newspapers.

Sponsored by the State Board of Health and now in its twelfth month this project is housed in the State Board of Health Building, on Third near Chestnut Street in Louisville. In addition to the office personnel there are thirty-seven research workers in the field at strategic points in 17 counties, and they have supplied data sufficient to be put into 3,000,000 words spread over more than 10,000 typed pages of bond paper.

Sources of information have been the libraries of the various colleges, universities, hospitals, newspapers, medical and dental societies and social hygiene groups, and from personal interviews with physicians and surgeons, hospital executives, supervising nurses, clinic heads and informed individuals in a carefully checked research into a profession that has played an all-important part in the molding and progress of a great state.

When completed this material will be published in book form. A complete file also will be preserved on shelves of the board's library for reference work by medical students and others interested in the subject.

BUY ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT

Extension of rural electric lines in Jessamine county has resulted in the following purchases on farms of the county this year: 20 refrigerators, 23 irons, 70 lamps, 10 washing machines, 22 radios, five toasters, eight hot plates, five ranges, 13 vacuum cleaners and seven motors for water systems.

HOW LEGUMES PRODUCE

The production of 1,207 pounds of lespedeza seed to the acre from a 10-acre field is reported by H. F. Wells of Livingston county. County Agent Robert L. Rudolph estimates that 400,000 pounds of lespedeza seed were produced in the county this year. In Todd county, H. G. Porter treated a 10-acre field with limestone and phosphate and seeded orchard grass, redtop, sweet and red clover and korean and kobe lespedeza. Eleven steers in the field gained a total of 2,095 pounds by October 1.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALES EFFORT INCREASED

New and more vigorous lines of attack against tuberculosis, with emphasis upon a decent economic status, better housing and improved nutrition as combative measures, were urged in a statement issued today to Surgeon General Thos. Parran. To achieve this objective it is essential that the present activities made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals, be continued and greatly accelerated. Dr. Parran said in endorsing the annual Seal Sale of the National Tuberculosis Association.

"Future efforts against tuberculosis must be widespread and unrelenting, if the results are to keep pace with our knowledge," Dr. Parran continued. "We need an intensive nation-wide attack against tuberculosis, using for the whole population all of the weapons which science has given us. While the leadership in the fight must continue to be supplied by national, state and local associations, there must be new and more vigorous lines of attack."

"Also, the combative measure must be increasingly linked with better housing, improved nutrition and a generally decent economic status. Such helpful auxiliary measures as adequate nourishment for school children and extra food for individuals who have been exposed to tuberculosis infection are important adjuncts to general control measures."

"Future efforts should manifestly be for-reaching in their scope and more sharply aligned with economic betterment."

PREGNANCY DISEASE CAN BE PREVENTED

Twenty percent of the sheep that are brought to the department of animal pathology at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station for examination have pregnancy disease. Parasites and footrot are the only conditions that cause a greater loss to the sheep industry.

Pregnancy disease occurs in December, January, February and March. The largest losses usually occur in January and February. The loss varies from 5 to 25 per cent of the affected flock.

Pregnancy disease (acetemelia) is not infectious or contagious, but develops as a result of poor feeding. In fact this disease can be produced experimentally by starving the animals. Many ewes are in poor physical condition at breeding time. If such ewes are fed so as to gain 20 to 30 pounds in weight, from breeding to lambing time, pregnancy disease may develop.

Prevention of pregnancy disease depends on the selection of good, vigorous ewes as breeders, good feeding and the control of stomach worms and other parasites. Prevention should thus begin with the selection of the animals that are to be used as breeders. Early ewe lambs, that are well developed, with nourished and have been kept comparatively free of parasites should be selected for replacements. Such animals have a larger reserve of nutrients in the body and are more able to withstand the drain of pregnancy and lactation.

The majority of cases of pregnancy disease occur directly following a sudden drop in the temperature, a cold rain, or a snowstorm. At such times the ewes may be temporarily cut off from free access to the water supply, green feed may become unavailable and shelter may or may not be provided. This sudden change in methods of feeding and management, together with exposure and restricted water supply, may upset poorly nourished ewes that otherwise would not have developed pregnancy disease.

Ewes in the first stages of pregnancy lag behind the rest of the flock and refuse to eat or drink. There may be a tendency to stand in a circle or to stand with the head pressed against some object.

Further development of the disease in flock can be prevented by feeding molasses at the rate of three quarts for each 10 ewes twice each day. Mix the molasses with an equal quantity of hot water, sprinkle over the feed and thoroughly mix. This mixture should not be prepared too long before feeding, since damp feed may spoil. Blackstrap molasses is much cheaper than other kinds.

Detailed information concerning the care and feeding of the ewe from breeding to lambing is given on pages 4, 5 and 6 of Kentucky Extension Circular 286, "Ewe and Lamb Project for 4-H Clubs."

OFFERS AMERICAN MADE BICYCLES FOR CHRISTMAS

Larry Blank, congenial proprietor of the Covington Cycle Company, has announced that every bicycle sold by his firm contains only American made parts and accessories. In stressing the fact that his store was an exclusive bicycle house, he stated that many times firms that carried diversified auto items also sold and offered repairs on bicycles, while his business was strictly "bicycles."

For the past few years Mr. Blank has devoted his entire time to promoting the sale and use of American made bikes for boys and girls. He cautioned that with disturbing times in European nations who export by bicycle parts, that it may become impossible to obtain repairs, and entail considerable expense to have the pieces made. By selling only American products he stands 100 per cent behind every sale. The Covington Cycle Company is located at 31 E. 5th Street, Covington. Specials are now on for the Christmas season, so drop in and see Larry Blank if in need of a bicycle for your son or daughter, or other boys or girls.

Grateful appreciation is extended to Messrs. Chambers and Grubbs, highly efficient funeral directors of Walton, and others for kindly responding for "Lambert Memorial Baptist Park," thereby helping us to redeem our precious home. As we still lack a great deal of having the desired amount, we most gratefully urge friends everywhere to come to our rescue, and not "pass by on the other side." Long have we been bedfast and in dire distress, so at once, please, please, please, let this 2000 call. Some day when you hear that blessed "In-as-much" fall from our Saviour's own lips, you will not regret having lightened the burden that so heavily crushed us. Funds sent to Dr. E. F. Wolfe, Covington, Ky., R. 3, or Wallis M. Morgan, Morning View, Ky., most thankfully received.

MRS. IRIS SINE DIES SATURDAY AT FLORENCE
Services were conducted Tuesday at the Florence Christian Church, and later at the Grove Creek Christian Church, Butler, for Mrs. Iris Sine, wife of Eugene Sine, Florence merchant, who died Saturday at her home there. She had been ill for several months. She was 65.
Mrs. Sine was born at Crittenden, Ky., June 20, 1873, and when she was three of age her parents moved to Butler, where she was reared to maturity. She was married to Eugene T. Sine December 24, 1901 at Butler, and made her home there until twenty-five years ago, when they moved to Covington and later to Boone county. To this union were born six children: Lucian, Hilda (deceased), Lella, Nellie, Lulu and Carrie.
She joined the Pleasant Hill Christian Church near Butler, at the age of fifteen and never moved from its membership from this church. In earlier life she was an active worker in the church and was at one time a Sunday school teacher. In later years she was much occupied with rearing her children and caring for her home.
After being bedfast for five months, and in declining health for over eight months, the death angel visited her home Saturday afternoon December 3, at 2:45, being 65 years, five months and thirteen days of age. Mrs. Sine was a true, beloved wife, a wonderful mother; she was devoted to all the members of her home, was an excellent neighbor and was loved and respected by all who knew her. Her noble character, natural fine qualities, and sweet Christian life gave her an excellent personality. She left behind her personal testimony that she was both ready and glad to go.
Two services were conducted by Rev. R. R. Rowe, pastor of Walton and Florence Methodist churches, at the Christian Church near Butler. Burial was in the Butler cemetery. Arrangements were made by Tharp & Stith, Florence funeral directors.
Surviving her are her husband Eugene Sine; a son Lucian Sine, a son Lucian Sine, Louisville, four daughters, Mrs. Lella Ashcraft, Mrs. Nellie Maurer, Miss Lulu Sine and Miss Carrie Sine, all of Florence, and eight grandchildren.

WALNUT LICK GALLATIN COUNTY

Mr. and Mrs. Mansford Craft and daughter and Mrs. Emma Willeford was business visitors to Warsaw, Wednesday.
Mrs. H. D. Edington spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Nina Whitson.
Sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Bill Speagle. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family.
We were glad to see Mrs. Mag Chapman back to Sunday school Sunday. She has been quite ill.
Mr. and Mrs. Ross Chapman entertained the B. Y. P. U. of Covington church with a social Saturday night.

ATTRACTIVE PRIZES OFFERED IN LIGHTING CONTEST
Toastmaster, valued at $16.00; second prize, a $12.95 Electric Roaster; third prize, a $7.95 Lamp, and fourth prize, a $5.95 Table Lamp. The prizes are on display at the Dixie State Bank. All lighting displays, to be eligible in the contest, must be installed by 6:00 p. m. December 17, and outdoor lighting is required.
Judging will be done by a committee of important judges composed of members of the Walton Rotary Club, who are Vern James, W. F. Coop, and Rev. Jack Ervin. Selection of prize winners will be based upon (1) general artistic effect, (2) originality, (3) utilization of surroundings, (4) conformity to Christmas spirit and (5) size. The amount of money spent for lighting materials will not be a deciding factor. Beauty will count most. Contestants may secure the services and advice of the Community Public Service Company and the DeMotte Electric Shop. These firms will also stock lighting systems and all types of bulbs used in outdoor displays, and their suggestions and decorative ideas should be sought to get the greatest amount of benefit from the number of lights you will use.
Entrants are urged to register at the Advertiser office, the Dixie State Bank or at either of the other mentioned concerns. Blanks will be available after Friday, and all contestants must be signed-up on or before noon of December 17, in order to be eligible for prizes.
It is expected that a large number of home-owners will participate, for nearly every lawn and yard in Walton can be adapted to some form of outdoor lighting. You can't lose for even though fail to win a prize, you will have the enjoyment and satisfaction that comes from creating beauty and adding to the gaiety of the holiday season in our city.

STAFFORDSBURG KENTON COUNTY
The Staffordsburg Homesteaders Club met for their December meeting at the home of Mrs. John Shaw. The Demonstration Agent, Miss Byerly was sick and not able to be with us in the meeting so Mrs. Denver Blinzer, who so graciously presided, opened the meeting and after the business session and roll call of fifteen members we planned the Christmas party, which will be given by Mrs. Henry Shoborg at her home the 15th of December 1:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present and have the privilege of inviting one guest. We were then invited into the dining room, where the sandwiches, cake and coffee was served.
The afternoon was well spent in preparing the mat and rug. The lesson was given by Mrs. L. J. Rapp. The meeting then adjourned with all expressing their thanks to Mrs. Shaw for the pleasant day and also wishing each one a very Happy Christmas and a glad and joyful New Year.
The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Denver Blinzer.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN IS

NATIONAL CROCHET CHAMPION

A new National Crochet Champion has emerged victorious from the first-day judging of the Second National Crochet Contest now on in New York. She is Mrs. T. L. Nightingale, of Sacramento, California, whose cotton crocheted table scarf took the honors over 1800 other crochet pieces. Each of the entries had previously won a first prize in a County or State Fair. Mrs. Nightingale's scarf having triumphed in the California State Fair.

The new champion will travel to New York to receive her title, the $250 cash prize, and a golden crochet hook. The presentations will be made at the opening of an Exhibition of the Contest entries at the American Woman's Club.

Mrs. Nightingale is 60 years old and was born in Italy. She has crocheted since she was eight. Her prize-winning table scarf is crocheted in unusually fine fillet, in a medieval pattern. It measures 39 to 16 inches. Among the other entries over which it took the national honors were many rouseau pound bedspreads and many tablecloths valued at over $1,000.00 each. One many competed, entering a crochet bedspread.

The 1937 Crochet Champion, Mrs. Frank E. Howard, Seattle, Washington, placed among the first prize winners in the ten classes of entry with a between-meal cloth valued at $100.00.

Of the thirty-five "ranking crocheters" named by the Contest, eight are from California, five from New York, States West of the Mississippi accounted for twenty-one winners, Southern States four.

Patronesses for the Contest Exhibition are Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. William K. Vandenberg, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Oliver Harrison, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Mrs. Florella LaGuardia, Mrs. Arthur Holden, Mrs. Lowell Thomas, Mrs. W. O. Hoppin, Mrs. Barness Johan Liljenstam, Mrs. Vladimir Simkhorov, Mrs. Lawrence Shepard, Miss Helen Hall, Mrs. Richard Boardman, Mrs. Chester G. March, and Miss Mary Pickford.

In view of the unusual popularity with which the competition has met it will become an annual event. The Third National Crochet Contest will be renewed by sponsoring them with of local, county and state fairs.

A new project in Mercer county will be the finishing of a carload of western calves purchased at Kansas City, for the Bourbon Stock Yards fat cattle show. Six old clubs were reorganized and several new ones formed, with a total membership of 450.

Sixty boys applied for membership in a woodwork project in a suburb of Lexington, where facilities prevented development of one of the common club activities. Fayette county has 10 clubs with a membership totaling 545.

MISTRESS of MONTEREY

VIRGINIA STIVERS BARTLETT

"Fages merely motioned to the soldiers, who dragged her out of the house. Still screaming and struggling, one of them managed to throw her before him on his horse. Angustias rushed from the house wringing her hands and weeping. All the servants crowded out-of-doors. The soldier touched his spurs to the horse. The shrieking wailing La Gobernadora and her escort started across the parade-ground toward the presidio gate. Angustias running lamenting beside.

CHAPTER XXVII

Forth on El Camino Real again rode the Governor of the California. The royal road of yellow highway, slowly but surely, through pressure of many feet and hoofbeats of many hooves, printing itself upon the pleasant soil of California connecting the Mission and Presidio of Upper California with the ancient Mission and one-time capital Loreto, in Lower California.

As he rode he remembered suddenly that 20 years had passed since he had first traveled this way. No road there; that first party of pioneers had pushed their way through virgin soil, breaking a trail through the wilderness, marking it here and there with cairns of stone, but often with crosses.

Twenty years! He started at the thought. Nearly half his life. In twenty years more he would be seventy. All those years for the state, California. As he looked at the smiling spring sky, the acres and acres of wild-flowers, the canons full of live-oaks, sycamores, water alders, willows and all manner of trees and shrubs, as he sniffed the wild roses and drank from the clear springs; as he gazed at the mighty mountains or at the rolling restless surf of the Pacific he laughed.

"My life for California!" he said. "By God, she is worth it, the jade!" Each morning that found them on the road he carefully stamped out the remains of the camp-fire, often on a spot where he had built fires many times before. And as he did this he wondered. Out of these ashes, one of these little mounds, would a city rise some day? He sighed at the thought, but indulged in prophetic retrospection.

And at the missions he visited long with the padres; ate their good food, drank their good wine, admired their fat herds and sleek horses. Then passed on to the next mission. Passed through much rich country, or wild land alive with herds of antelope and elk, bear and mountain lions. He killed the giant bear he had promised himself, and carried most of it to the Mission San Gabriel Arcangel. There he rested for many days in the shade of the carefully tended trees, with the music of a little stream in his ears. And there he visited with some old friends who had traveled with him on the first expedition.

"I am retiring," said one old comrade, Don Epifanio Sanchez, long sergeant of the guard at the Mis-

"Had you not heard? My poor wife, God rest her soul, died last year in Mexico City. She would never join me here. And I could not leave here. You understand! Life was lonely for her, I suppose. We had no children . . . and so . . . " He shrugged his shoulders. "God took her home. You are most fortunate, Don Pedro. In having Donna Eulalia with you. Most fortunate!"

"Yes," muttered Fages. "And what will you do with this great ranch and house you are going to build? Will you live alone? What will you do without wife or children?"

Don Epifanio stirred uneasily. "Pues, compadre, you know how it is. I have already chosen me a wife. Just an Indian girl. That is, part Indian. Her father was a Spanish soldier, though God only knows who he was. But she is beautiful and very young, and has been well educated here at Mission San Gabriel. She can cook, and sew. She can even play the guitar! And she is young. Oh, yes, very young. Fifteen. But look you, I am barely fifty! So I will have many years ahead of me, and God willing, many children." He laughed. "Who knows

"I Am Retiring," Said One Old Comrade.

tion San Gabriel. "I am retiring," he repeated as Don Pedro slipped absently at his wine.

"From what . . . ?" questioned the Governor.

"From the King's Army. The King has granted me many varas of land. And I am choosing it well. There are springs on it, and meadow land for grazing, and land to raise corn and grapes. And I have already chosen the knoll on which I will build my house. He stretched his legs luxuriously before him and sighed with pleasurable anticipation. "Ah, and what a life that will be!"

"But your wife?" asked Don Pedro. "Will she consent to come here and live with you?"

but we will start a new race in this new land!"

Don Pedro was very quiet as he other dreamed of his future happiness over his wine-glass.

"Yes," mused the Governor to himself. "You will have a happy life. An ideal life. Ah, yes . . . " The other broke into his musings. "Why do you not retire, Don Pedro? You have given the best years of your life to your King and this country. The King would be more than willing to award you a great slice of this land that you have governed so long. Why not do it? Let someone else be governor, and have all the worries and anxieties, while you retire and establish a grand hacienda, enjoy your wife and children, and let the Indians do the work!"

Don Pedro was quiet a long time, twirling his beaker, and watching the ruddy juice washing in little waves against the glass. All unconsciously his old friend, in relating his own hopes, had laid bare the deepest desires of the Governor's heart.

TAKING STOCK OF OUR POSSESSIONS

Toward the end of the year every well run business takes inventory of stock on hand and arrives at an estimate of net worth. The farm business is like any other in its need for such definite information. In taking its inventory, the farm must of course be counted, since the family assets include the house, its furnishings, equipment, the clothing, and personal possessions. In addition to the value of the farm-home inventory as an item of net worth, Miss Ida Hagman, home-management specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture, suggests a number of other uses for it. The total value of furnishings serves as a basis on which to insure household goods and also on which to make adjustments if there should be a loss from fire or flood. It also shows what future needs may arise as things wear out and what amounts should be set aside to replace them. It shows, too, whether there has been family progress. If the family possessions have been increased in value it becomes a part of the net worth. The inventory, Miss Hagman says, should include not only permanent furnishings and equipment but accessories in each room, silver, clothing, recreational articles, household linens, china and small equipment.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Children, too, will like dates, and they're much more healthful than ordinary rich candies. So start on your date cookery with bran date muffins:

DATE BRAN MUFFINS
Two tablespoons fat one-quarter cup sugar, one egg, one cup bran, three-quarters cup milk, one cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup chopped dates. Cream fat and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat until creamy. Stir in bran and milk; let soak until moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder, add dates; add to first mixture and stir only minutes. Flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about thirty minutes.

DATE BARS
Three eggs, three tablespoons water, one cup sugar, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one package pitted dates, one cup walnuts, one-half cup confectioners' sugar. Cream granulated sugar well with beaten eggs and water flour, baking dates and nuts with flour, baking powder and salt, sifted together. Combine with egg mixture. Spread one-half inch thick in greased pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about twenty minutes. When cool, remove side crusts and cut in bars one inch wide and four inches long. Roll in confectioners' sugar just before serving. This makes three dozen bars.

It's Date Time In Desert Land

BY MARIE GIBSON
COURIER-JOURNAL
Courier-Journal Food Editor

It's a date indeed that makes these dishes so tasty and wholesome. Cookies, salads, muffins and even tiny pies are made of dates so if you haven't started your date cookery you're missing a great deal. It's the fashion—and a good one. Dates make a good garnish, too—tiny slices of date placed on the peak of a whipped cream topping for pudding, or date petals in flower formations to decorate a dessert.

Dates provide the menu with some vitamins and loads of calories. They may be stuffed with nut meats and used for Sunday night supper, eliminating the necessity of serving a dessert.

Children, too, will like dates, and they're much more healthful than ordinary rich candies.

So start on your date cookery with bran date muffins:

DATE BRAN MUFFINS
Two tablespoons fat one-quarter cup sugar, one egg, one cup bran, three-quarters cup milk, one cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup chopped dates. Cream fat and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat until creamy. Stir in bran and milk; let soak until moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder, add dates; add to first mixture and stir only minutes. Flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about thirty minutes.

DATE BARS
Three eggs, three tablespoons water, one cup sugar, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one package pitted dates, one cup walnuts, one-half cup confectioners' sugar. Cream granulated sugar well with beaten eggs and water flour, baking dates and nuts with flour, baking powder and salt, sifted together. Combine with egg mixture. Spread one-half inch thick in greased pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about twenty minutes. When cool, remove side crusts and cut in bars one inch wide and four inches long. Roll in confectioners' sugar just before serving. This makes three dozen bars.

PEANUT BUTTER DAINTIES

One-half cup peanut butter, one cup (one-half package) dates, sliced; three-quarter cup powdered sugar, two eggs whites, unbeaten. Place all the ingredients in a mixing bowl and stir until well blended. Drop mixture by teaspoonfuls on a well-oiled baking sheet or inverted dripping pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for fifteen minutes. Garnish with sliced dates if desired. This makes eighteen cookies.

DATE FILLING

Place in a saucepan one cup dates, one half cup sugar, one-half cup water, one teaspoon lemon juice and eight marshmallows. Cook gently, stirring frequently until thick. Remove from stove and cook before using.

DATE TORTE

One-half cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder, one package dates, one cup nuts, two eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour salt and baking powder into a mixing bowl. Mix pitted and sliced pasteurized dates and coarsely-chopped nuts through the flour with the fingertips. Beat eggs; add vanilla; beat in the sugar gradually; stir in the flour, dates and nut mixture. Bake in a well-oiled shallow pan in a slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) for forty-five to sixty minutes. Remove from pan, cool, cut in squares and serve with whipped or ice cream, or cut in cubes and pile in glasses. This makes nine to twelve servings.

MOB BALLS VS. MICE

Moth balls or, better naphthalene flakes are good protection against house mice as well as clothes moths. Mice dislike the odor of naphthalene, and so flakes of it scattered over and around bags of seed, books, upholstered furniture, mattresses, blankets and clothing are good protection, especially in winter when mice are looking for good nesting places. Because food may take on an unpleasant naphthalene taste, powdered sulphur and lime are better repellents near food. Mice also

ROAD MEETING ENDORSES NEW DIXIE HIGHWAY

Plans For Military Road are Completed At Lexington Meet.

Delegates from nine states, attending the two-day meeting of the U. S. Super-Dixie Highway Association here, are urging a longer Dixie trunkline, proposing the construction of a military "super-dixie" highway from the Canadian border south to point on Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Coast.

It was outlined at the initial meeting at Lexington that construction of the road is said to be desired by the War Department as a national defense measure, with the road connecting important ports, camps, industrial centers and airports in Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Congressman A. J. May, Prestonsburg, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee of the National House of Representatives was the speaker on the Friday afternoon program.

Among the larger delegations that attended were those from Cincinnati, Detroit, Knoxville, New Orleans and Chattanooga. A delegation of Northern Kentucky, including Covington, Brainerd and Newport, arrived Friday morning.

According to the plans for the proposed Dixie trunk line the Northern-South trunk line would start at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, and would be one road unit branched in Tennessee, one of the southern branches going to New Orleans and the other to Miami, Florida. Among the other principal cities the road would be built, Michigan, Detroit, Toledo, Dayton, Cincinnati, Lexington, Knoxville, Meridian, Gulfport, Atlanta, Macon, Jacksonville and Palm Beach.

TO PRESENT PLAY AT PINER

Monday, December 19, the students of Simon Kenton School will present the play—"Good Gracious Grandma," at the Piner school auditorium. The public is cordially invited. Admission will be 20 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Mail and parcels for foreign countries should be mailed at this time, to insure delivery for Christmas. In your be late in mailing your Christmas gifts always use the Special Delivery service, as Special Delivery mail is the only class of mail that will be delivered on Christmas Day. All mail matter without sufficient postage will be returned to sender, when known, it not known will be sent to the dead letter branch. In order to insure the prompt delivery of all classes of mail consult your Postmaster for postage rates before you mail.

Fight Tuberculosis Buy Christmas Seals

Have you bought any Tuberculosis Christmas Seals? The sale is going strong over the state. Are we going let Boone County trail in the sale of seals? No, let's get busy everybody and buy some Tuberculosis Christmas Seals. With 122 more deaths from Tuberculosis in Kentucky last year than the preceding year, you can see the importance of our seal sale program.

Tuberculin for testing, and x-rays for testing indigents are paid for with seal sale funds, thousands of dollars are spent annually by the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association for the cure and prevention of the white plague. Every cent was raised through the sale of Christmas Seals. Each and every cent will help to stop this devastating disease.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and thousands of other famous men and women have endorsed the sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals. More than a score of other nations carry out the plan.

The eyes of the great army of tuberculosis sufferers are turned toward us, and their hopes for a better day depend on us. May we not disappoint them. Practically every school child in Boone County is selling the seals. Buy them, and use them on all your Christmas mail and presents.

C.C.C. Boy Loses Arm in Accident

Taken to Hospital For Blood Transfusion

Raymond Stamper, 18 Sparta, member of the CCC at Walton, Company 3441 suffered a severe injury Monday afternoon, when the truck in which he was riding side-swiped a truck of the Dearborn Flour & Feed Co.

Stamper, according to Dr. Yelton was riding in the CCC truck with his arm hooked through the stake bed when the trucks rubbed together. It was reported that his arm was caught between the other truck and one of the stakes on the CCC truck.

The bone in his right arm was broken in two places and was badly mangled. He was rushed to the office of Dr. M. A. Yelton, where a tourniquet was placed on his arm to prevent the loss of blood.

Patrolman Winterburg, escorted the car of Dr. Yelton to the Ft. Thomas Army Hospital, where the arm was amputated just below the shoulder.

A blood transfusion was given Stamper Monday night, and it was said that his condition was reported as fair.

RATES FOR MAILING CHRISTMAS CARDS

There seems to be some misunderstanding about the part of the public matter accepted for mailing by the Post office department, especially greeting cards or Christmas cards. This mail is of the third class and the postage rate is 1 1/2 cents for each provided they are mailed in unsealed two ounces or fraction thereof. This rate applies to delivery any where in the United States, or its possessions, and the mailing of this class of mail subjects it to the first class rate of postage, however, written message may be enclosed when sealed. Christmas cards are not forwardable when mailed under the third class rate. Thousands of greeting cards reach the dead letter branches each Christmas due to incomplete address, moving of the addressee, and so on. Why not send your greeting cards by first class mail with your name and address on the upper left corner of the envelope, thus insuring return to you in case they cannot be delivered.

WALTON MAN IS FINED

Shelby Hodge, 28, Walton, Ky., was fined $25 and costs Friday by Police Judge Joseph F. Goodenough after he pleaded guilty to violating a city ordinance under which coal is sold in Covington. Hodge was arrested on the complaint of J. Wayne Rusk, Covington coal dealer. Rusk said that Hodge hauls coal from the mines in a truck and sells it in Covington without proper weighing.

Under the city ordinance, a coal dealer must have a licensed and bonded weigher.

Hodge had a pedler's license in Covington and a certificate that the coal was weighed by a bonded weigher at the mines. He said he was ignorant of the requirements under the city ordinance.

Local Residents Enter Christmas Lighting Contest

Many Homes Will Be Decorated in Walton

Entries are being received daily in the Christmas Lighting Contest and indications are that many local residents will participate.

Prizes for the contest, have been donated by the Community Public Service Company, the DeMoisey Electric Shop.

With the object of making Walton one of the most colorful and attractively lighted small cities in this section during the holiday season, the Walton Advertiser is sponsoring this city-wide Christmas Lighting Contest, offering valuable merchandise prizes for the most attractive outdoor lighting installations.

Selection of prize winners will be based upon (1) general art in effect, (2) originality, (3) utilization of surroundings, (4) conformity to Christmas spirit, (5) size.

Hamilton Girl Win 4-H Prize

Alberta Seavey, of Hamilton was awarded first prize for having the best crop in the annual 4-H Tobacco Show and sale held in Covington Monday and Tuesday. Her crop averaged $27.50.

There were eight growers representing in the show, with approximately 150,000 pounds of tobacco on the floor. It was estimated that four hundred crops were shown from the eight counties.

The show and sale was scheduled to be completed Monday, but due to the large amount of tobacco on display, two days were required.

Boone County 4-H members displayed 119 crops, according to the assistant County agent.

Garvin Goodridge of the Hebron neighborhood won fifth place for record books, with Alvin Earl Whitaker of the same neighborhood, winning sixth.

Acra Heads Young Democrats

Regular Meeting Held At Burlington, Monday

The regular monthly meeting of the Boone County Young Men's Democratic Club was held at the courthouse on Monday night with about forty members present. This being the last meeting this year, the new officers for 1939 were elected, and all unfinished business was closed before the new year.

Corra Acra, of Florence, was elected to succeed J. P. Brothers as president of the club. Arthur Maurer, also of Florence was selected as vice-president and A. D. Yelton, Circuit Court Clerk, was elected secretary. Only one officer of the club of the club was re-elected, that being the office of treasurer which is held by W. B. Rogers, Jr., of Grant.

TOBACCO MARKET IS IMPROVING STEADILY

Average prices for Burley tobacco sold opening week this season were substantially lower than opening week last season on lugs and flyings and good and fine quality tan leaf. It was reported by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Tips and red leaf grades were higher than last season's opening prices. Largest quality grades of lugs and flyings.

Sales were heavy in volume. Offerings consisted principally of fair and good quality leaf and lugs and low to good quality flyings. A good volume of low and fair quality tips was included in the offerings. Some markets reported that bids on many lots were rejected.

REA COMMITTEE IN DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS

200 Are Signed Up For Rural Electric Service in Boone

The Boone REA committee the past week signed 200 members on approximately 100 miles of road, according to H. R. Porter, county agent. The committee prepared a map listing all signs and met with Owen county association Board of Directors on Tuesday night of this week. Plans are to secure the allotment to build lines at the earliest possible date.

One hundred farmers from all sections of the county met at Burlington courthouse last Friday night. Sign up committee members reported splendid progress.

The problem of whether or not farm people secure electricity at a reasonable cost rests with them. If our people are secure electricity they must act fast. There are no paid solicitors, sign up committee-men or workers. All work until the organization is completely dominated by public spirited citizens. Everyone interested in helping to secure the minimum of 3 customers per mile of line is urged to sign up with his committee man immediately. Those who do not know who their committee man are may call the county office, Burlington 412.

Other awards were given to the Kernel at the meeting were first place for sports and feature stories; second place for editorials and third place for advertising.

Boone Teams to Play Outsiders

Walton To Meet Simon-Kenton Here

Three members of the Boone County Conference will be host to outsiders Friday night, Burlington will receive a visit from Warsaw, Florence will welcome Beacawood and Walton-Vernon awaits the arrival of Simon Kenton.

One of the top battles of the night should be the clash between Simon Kenton and Walton. Both are mighty in their right. Walton is the undefeated leader of the Boone County Conference and in six games played was only defeated by Newport. Newport was also the nemesis of Simon Kenton after the latter had won five consecutive games.

Warsaw has already hammered two of the local schools into defeat with wins over Beacawood and Hamilton. The fast Hamilton boys doubled the score on Burlington several weeks ago might indicate that the lads from Burlington were in for a tough time Friday night. Coach Edwin Walton of Burlington will recruit to a former lineup when his boys face the Warsaw squad. Burton Keels ago might indicate that the lads from Burlington were in for a tough time Friday night. Hodge was arrested on the complaint of J. Wayne Rusk, Covington coal dealer. Rusk said that Hodge hauls coal from the mines in a truck and sells it in Covington without proper weighing.

Under the city ordinance, a coal dealer must have a licensed and bonded weigher.

Hodge had a pedler's license in Covington and a certificate that the coal was weighed by a bonded weigher at the mines. He said he was ignorant of the requirements under the city ordinance.

Neglect May Be Costly

The State Police recently announced a drive against drivers of cars with one headlight on the highways of Northern Kentucky. Motorists should cooperate in this safety endeavor, for a large percentage of accidents are the result of neglect to repair or replace headlights.

Automobiles with just one light present a menace to safe driving at night, and their owners should heed the warning given by these men.

Plan New Dixie Highway

A group of representatives from nine states gathered in Lexington last week to lay plans for a great U. S. Super-Dixie Highway, reaching from the Canadian border to points on the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Coast. The highway will be "super-streamlined" two lane military truckline, and will pass near Walton. We say "pass near" for plans call for the elimination of all bottle-neck points that slow down and present unnecessary driving hazards to traffic. At present, Walton enjoys the added revenue derived from the Dixie, but the railroad crossing on our Main street is in such a location to make it almost impossible to bridge or underpass the tracks. It is the desire of the highway builders to make safe all necessary crossing on U. S. 25, and unless some attempt is made locally to solve the problem, Walton faces the loss of the arterial traffic with it going to the right or left of town.

The Relief Problem

The City of Walton has been faced for many years with a relief program that has never been met by the various agencies set up under Federal relief organizations, and this problem is being met by the churches and individuals from their own efforts.

A plan has been proposed whereby the churches, Women's Club, Rotary Club and other organizations make take a united part in evening the burden of relief and stretching the benefits from one or two baskets of groceries to steady supply that will meet the needs of those seeking aid.

The citizens of Walton should back every effort to bring relief and happiness to their less fortunate neighbors, and through concerted action, re-establish many of the underprivileged children in school and make better citizens.

Bible Sunday

Governor A. B. Chandler issued a proclamation last week endorsing Universal Bible Sunday that was observed in churches of the country on December 11. The theme of this year's celebration was "And Now—in a Thousand Tongues," for recently the Scriptures appeared in the one thousandth language into which they have been translated. The American Bible Society celebrates the event by the publishing of a commemorative volume entitled "The Book of a Thousand Tongues" in which are facsimiles of pages or paragraphs from almost all the languages into which the Scriptures have been translated.

Whatever one's religion, this is a fact that should command the respect of all serious-minded people. The Bible is more than just another book. It is a world institution. Other books have had phenomenal sales for a few years—one recent volume running above a million copies in the first year and a half of publication. Some books have been translated into a score or more languages—but it is interesting to note that the leaders in this field, Charles M. Shelton's "In His Steps" and John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" are both based directly upon the Bible.

The Scriptures have passed into more than a thousand languages and the sales of Bibles, Testaments, and Portions have run into the tens of millions every year for scores of years. For the thirteenth successive year the Bible Society, the largest distributors of Scriptures in this country, last year reported a distribution of over 7,000,000 volumes. Since its organization in 1816 the Society has circulated over 283,000,000 volumes.

Long ago the entire Bible was translated into all the great languages of the world. In recent years beginnings have been made in the dialects of the countless tribes in Asia, Africa, and the Islands of the Sea. It is estimated that nine-tenths of the people of the world might now read some portion of the Bible in their own tongue. When Americans recall that they lead with its schools and colleges, the churches, its culture, its courts, its freedom and its vast and efficient humanitarian enterprises—the things that make America great—have come from the teachings of the Bible brought here by our forefathers three hundred years ago, it is a fair question to ask if Americans could anything better for the world in its present need of freedom and enlightenment than to encourage the wider circulation of the Scriptures which now have been made intelligible to most of the people of the world.

Hide and Seek

Baseball is called our national pastime but the game of hide and seek is more deserving of the title. Everyone plays—only they don't enjoy it in its modern version.

Today's "game" goes like this. Most of our taxes—now 63 per cent of them—are hiding in the price of every purchase. All of us, as consumers, do the seeking—wondering meanwhile why our dollars buy so little.

The National Consumers Tax Commission shows how desperate the "game" has become. In a survey at its Chicago headquarters, this organization, crusading against hidden taxes, revealed the average family living on $500 to $2,500 a year pays, blindly, in indirect levies an amount equal to the Federal tax on a $7,500 income.

It found that the family's hidden taxes—totaling $160.50 or 12 per cent of all expenditures—rank in size only behind food and housing costs. The food bill is $428.76, housing takes $294.65.

The figures of the commission—which has nearly 2,000 local women's groups already active in its crusade—show that the public is "in" and will stay "in" until aroused consumers not only seek but tag unfair and unnecessary taxes.

A Live Wire Briar Hopper

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE

By WILL S. NORRIS
582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

During the great political campaign of 1894 between James G. Blaine, the Plumed Knight and Grover Cleveland, Mr. Blaine visited in Cincinnati on a speaking tour, stopping at the old Burnet House of Civil War fame. General John A. Logan, a Civil War veteran and a candidate for the Vice Presidency was with Mr. Blaine. They spoke from a temporary speakers' stand built out from the Burnet House. In my great anxiety to be near the speakers, I stood on a railing extending over 3rd Street. If I had lost my balance it would have been too bad for me. As the people below, I would have fallen into the street which was packed and jammed with people to hear the speakers.

It was a hard fought campaign with plenty of mud alighting from both sides, which should not be; as I am not convincing and shows the calibre of men who stoop to these tactics. Politicians fought over the tariff which had never been settled and which I will never be settled as long as politicians can ride into office on it as they are trying to do now on other issues which should be side issues or kept in the background or ignored. How well the politicians know the side issue will never be settled satisfactorily, but they want to ride into office on them and are willing to keep the country and voters in an uproar and unsettled.

It is my aim to try to give in my stories, while I have my private convictions and am willing to allow the other fellow the same. I have watched the tariff question all my life. My conviction is, the more they fuss with it the worse they make it. I have always believed that Sam Tilden was right in "tariff for revenue only." I will never forget the night of the 1894 election about 11 p. m. John Kelly, who was democratic leader in New York wired my friends, Mr. May Feichheimer, a leading clothing merchant in Cincinnati. Mr. Feichheimer having been born and reared in my native county, Madison County, Ky., and a good friend of mine, I felt that I stood close to the political throne and was one of the first to see the message from Kelly that Cleveland had carried New York by 1,100 to 1,200 votes.

That was enough for me and the thousands of Democrats who then learned of the message, went wild for that was the first Democratic president they had elected since the Civil War, with no chance of opposing him the returns. I was not the only one who had noted that. Men hugged men; hugging the women was to tame them. Some of them tried to buy live donkeys feeling that the donkey was the greatest animal living. While there was quite a contention for some days as to who carried New York, I stood on John Kelly's telegram and told my friends not to bet against it. James G. Blaine was a great statesman, one of the greatest of his day and was beaten by a small margin.

In those days I was an ardent Democrat, believing the Republican party was all wrong and that the Democratic president would save the country from Republican wrongs. I had not learned the lesson that the President has a very little part in making and executing laws. It is in the power of the people. They should not blame the president. Up to the time Mr. Cleveland was President, he was the worst abused man since Abe Lincoln.

Electing a president reminds me of a friend of mine getting married. His brother congratulated him saying, "John you are at the end of your troubles, but at the big end." Any man elected to the Presidency of these United States is at the big end of his troubles. The man who wins often loses for good. Many have lost their health and some their lives on account of public opinion and abuse against them which should not be done. My motto is "Principle first, and second-

A CYCLE OF HOUSES—II

Probably the towns and cities illustrate changing styles in house in our time than do rural districts. The farmhouse, especially the well-built one, is likely to last through several generations. The farm cannot very well be left behind merely because styles of building are changing. Of course, the younger generations, when they inherit part of the old estate, may build as they please; still the family residence, in or out of style, will remain, to remind all corners of other days and other styles. But in the towns the population is unstable; natives and outsiders live side by side; the social standing of a house or of a neighborhood may change in a short time.

Even in our small Kentucky towns one can find evidences of how the coming of the railroad or the building of the highway or the opening of a park has drawn the fashionable people in a certain direction. Ancestral homes, beautiful in their day given up for modern bungalows in given up for modern bungalows in the last addition. There the old-timers stand, tenanted often by a population that changes almost yearly, gradually hemmed in by cheap tenement houses, the passing of certain phases of country life, we must admit that more rapid changes have been meaningful going on in the town and city. The reason why this rapid evolutionist not always evident is that intervening realtors often buy up the old places in their decay and completely obliterate what was left of other times and places. Newer houses rise unashamed where the old mansion stands until the "dimmyer's falling down and the roof is caving in," as Colonel Will S. Hay's song would have it. But in the country, building, the old lives on in the where there is less occasion for new, shaming its original use, amidst of the new, shedding its bright new paint, and preaching though without sound, of days that once seemed as everlasting as do our passing years.

One of my most tragic visits to a famous house occurred some twenty years ago, tragic that is because of what I saw. In this suburban mansion had lived a former governor of our state, from this house had gone to the Confederate Army a general who was to fall at Shiloh. To this house had come the great of the whole land and even visiting foreigners. A huge plantation surrounded the mansion. When I was there, the farm and the house had been given up by the descendants, and the owner was trying by every means to pay for the farm. The shade trees, huge pines, were being cut for saw logs, so that I could not drive my car up the driveway. The carriage shed built to house five vehicles, had most of its doors off their hinges. The flower-pot green house was wrecked and being filled up with ashes and other trash. Inside, the wallpaper was peeling off in strips; many of the big old rooms were bare and echoed in a shut-like way to my footsteps. To crown the whole feeling of tragedy, I found a T-model Ford car parked not in the carriage house, but on the hardwood floor of the back porch, with grease and dirt on its inch deep beneath it. Thus passed grandeur: "sic transit gloria mundi!"

ABS was such a little girl to be disappointed at Christmas, and there seemed no other way. Her mother called her to the bedside. "Babs, darling," she began softly, "Christmas will soon be here. The little girl's eyes shone. "It won't be the same this year, darling. There won't be any presents, or well—anything."

"No Santa Claus?" "No Santa Claus?" "But why?" "You're going on five, Babs. Try to understand. What we call Santa Claus is really just the love people have for each other at Christmas." Her voice trailed off in a fit of coughing. "That pillow—there—now I can breathe. It isn't I don't love you, darling. I just can't do things this Christmas. That lovely tree last year—you remember it, don't you, Babs?"

"Oh, yes, Mummy." "We'll try to have one like it next year, if I get well." "If I get well." "Why, Mummy, you're crying!" "No, no, I'm not. See? Why don't you run out and play a bit? Get your coat and rubbers." Babs went out into the snow very thoughtful. A group of children were playing down the block, but she didn't want company.

Of course there was a Santa Claus. Hadn't he come last year? And all her playmates—he came to see them, too. How could Mummy be so mistaken? She hadn't intended to come so far. But it was fun walking on the crisp, crunchy snow. And there, ahead, were men straggling, carrying colored lights and loops of greenery on lamp posts.

"What's she want, Bill?" "I can't just sit it. Something about Santa Claus."

"How low to get her. Just down the block. He's ringing a little bell."

The men laughed, and Babs laughed, too. Santa Claus! She would find Santa Claus. The street was alarmingly crowded, but she could hear the tiny tinkle of a bell.

Then she saw him, all dressed in red and with a long white beard. He was sitting by a big red box, and every now and then someone would drop money into it. Babs stood for a long while watching, fascinated, afraid to speak.

The tinkling stopped, and the Santa Claus came over. "What's the matter?" he asked gently. She led him back to the big red box. He took her up on his lap, and gave her the little bell to ring. Slowly, she began to sing.

He was so sick, had said there wasn't any Santa Claus this year. Babs took care of Mummy. She didn't know how to get her.

"I think I had better see if we can't find your Mummy," Santa Claus declared. "She's probably worried about you. You aren't afraid to come with me, are you?"

"Oh, no," Babs answered trustfully, and carried the bell while he put away the big red box.

They found the right neighborhood with no great difficulty. Babs showed that Santa Claus came in. "He said Mummy there really is a Santa Claus," and he agreed. Then things began happening. There was a doctor, and a nurse, and Babs must be quiet, and mustn't see Mummy—not for days. Through it all Santa Claus kept coming back, and every now and then he would say, "Merry Christmas, Babs."

But he wasn't looking at Babs. It was more as though he were talking to Mummy.

RURAL CHURCHES STILL OBSERVE "FOOT-WASHING DAY"

In isolated parts of Johnson and adjacent counties in Kentucky, some members of the Preswilt and United Baptist and Holiness churches still observe the ancient custom of foot-washing to "search workers" for the Federal Writers' Project, Works Progress Administration. This little known fact about earlier Kentucky life is among a host of items of interest this research is divulging in a State-wide survey for material that will go into a series of informative guide books now being assembled by project editors.

This long practiced custom is taken from the 13th Chapter of St. John and is an event eagerly looked forward to by these gnomes, because a hundred years and more and on up to the turn of the century this ritual was widely followed in largely populated areas as well as in rural sections.

By word of mouth date and time for this unique worship is passed around until all members of the faith are advised, and plans are made for its observance. It is as important to these people as the changing of the seasons.

Usually lasting the greater part of a whole day the ceremonies began on a Saturday morning, opening with a Lord's Supper Communion service from two to four, sometimes five, ministers conduct the rites and by afternoon they get around to the actual foot-washing. All of the men attending, line up on one side of the church auditorium and the women on the other. Each is provided with a basin of water, soap and towel and each worshiper bathes the feet of his neighbor on the right.

No frivolity attends these services. On the whole it is a sacred rite. Only members in good standing may attend or participate in the ceremonies. When over, there is a period of rejoicing for the spiritual cleansing.

Christmas A Year Late

By Edith Kirkwood

"TOMORROW'S Christmas day, tomorrow's Christmas day," little Dorothy was singing as she was prancing about the dingy apartment. She'd stop to roll up the sleeves that were constantly slipping down over her hands. No wonder they didn't stay up, for the dress was one that Helen, two years older, had outgrown. Mother had meant to make it over, but she was too tired when she got home from cleaning house for other people all day.

"Hush up, Dorothy. Mother will be coming in pretty soon, and she'll cry if we say anything about Christmas," Helen reminded her.

"I don't see why. Christmas is a time to laugh, and not to cry," Dorothy responded philosophically.

"Don't you remember last Christmas, and how daddy didn't come home with our packages?" Helen couldn't believe that even so little a sister as Dorothy should forget that. For daddy had never been heard from since that Christmas eve.

As Dorothy started to reply, Helen warned her: "Sh—, there comes mother," and the youngsters were silent when she entered. Mrs. Bond, tired and absorbed in her own anxious thoughts, did not heed their un-childlike quiet. Her apathy had developed that trait in them, and she was unaware of what her sorrow was doing to her children. She busied herself with the simple meal, and Dorothy's faint, "Mother, is Santa coming tonight?" was the cause of her only break: "My poor baby, I'm afraid Santa doesn't even know you exist," she sobbed. She was getting them into bed, and they were soon asleep, their pillows wet with their tears that Santa was not coming. Too tired to sew, and in deepest depression, Mrs. Bond was roused from her inert brooding by a rap at the door.

A caller was unheard of. No one came to see her, for she had repelled all kindly offers of assistance when her husband disappeared. She ignored the knock. When it came again it was a significant signal, two short raps, repeated three times. Her husband's knock!

Quivering with excitement, she moved toward the door. Her fingers were trembling so that she could hardly turn the key. The door opened, and she gasped, "Tom!" as the sturdy, well-dressed man exclaimed, "Barbara!" and took her in his arms. Then, after a long embrace, he led her to the big chair she had just quitted, and drew her on his lap while they talked.

"I left you Christmas eve to do the last-minute shopping. But an icicle struck my head, and knocked me unconscious. I couldn't remember who I was or where I lived. I went to a hotel and after a few days got work as a salesman. I told my boss my predicament, and he has been very kind. Today, Christmas shopping somehow brought back to me who and what I was. And I couldn't wait to find you!"

"But how did you ever trace us?" Barbara asked. "I thought I left no clues. I thought you had deserted me, when we found you weren't an accident case."

"Deserted you? You? My poor child," and he drew her close again. "I did have a heck of a time, but old Jack, the baggage man, finally told me where you had moved to. But now we must get ready for last year's Christmas. And next week we'll get out of this hotel." Tom's assurance was apparent.

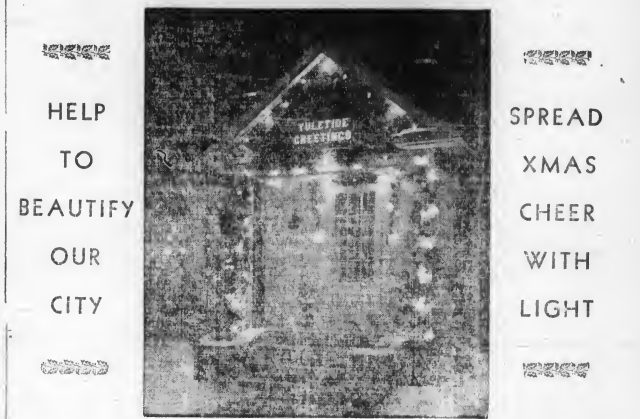

"My dear, my dear. I don't mind the hotel, now that you are safely home," Barbara whispered.

"All right, Baby, old girl. But stop crying down my neck if you are really glad to have me back," but his tender kiss belied his joking words.

Popular Christmas Carols
Probably the best known Christmas carol is "Adeste Fideles," composed in 1700 and sung in Roman Catholic churches ever since. It was adopted in England in 1841 and sung in Protestant churches as "Come All Ye Faithful." Among the more popular Christmas carols are "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," "Christians Awake," and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." St. Ambrose is said to have written one of the first Christmas hymns in 340 A. D.

4-H CLUB BOYS TO EXHIBIT TOBACCO

A million pounds or more of tobacco will be exhibited by 4-H club members at eight district shows to be held in Kentucky in December. Several county shows also have been planned for 4-H club boys.

Approximately 7,000 boys grew tobacco in 4-H club work in Kentucky this year. The purpose of the shows is to teach the growing and marketing of high-quality tobacco.

Shows for 4-H club tobacco will be held at Shelbyville and Covington, Dec. 10, at Bowling Green and Lexington, Dec. 17, and at Owensboro, December 30. Dates have not been set for shows at Carrollton, Danville and Harrodsburg.

At each of the district shows there will be classes for individual crops, for county exhibits of five to 10 crops, and for record books.

Because of the size of the Lexington show, only 10 crops will be exhibited from one county at this particular show, it is announced from the 4-H club department of the College of Agriculture. Crops to be exhibited will be selected in county shows, in most cases.

All of the 4-H club tobacco shows are being sponsored by the local tobacco boards of trade.

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

The Fidells Class of Walton Baptist church was graciously entertained last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. R. E. Brugh with Mrs. C. J. Alford as co-hostess.

The business session was led by the retiring president, Mrs. Matthew Flynn, after which a Christmas program under the direction of Mrs. Bryan Rector was given. A beautiful table lamp was presented to the teacher, Mrs. Tom Percival, by the class and gifts were exchanged among all present. Dainty refreshments were enjoyed by the following:

Members: Mrs. Tom Percival, Miss Grace Weller, Miss Anna M. Frakes, Mrs. Bryan Rector, Mrs. Earl Frakes, Mrs. Wm. Deuchemin, Miss Helen, Graff, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Joe Code, Mrs. Ben Elliott, Mrs. McAttee, Mrs. Joe Neumeister, Mrs. Dan

Roberts, Mrs. Matthew Flynn, Mrs. Wm. Bredon, Mrs. Ernest Webster, Mrs. Glenn Laws, Mrs. Elmer Bredon, Mrs. C. Y. Goodpasture, Mrs. Kenneth Johnson and the hostess: Mrs. C. J. Alford and Mrs. R. E. Brugh.

Guest: Mrs. Elsie McAney, Miss Nevi Cross, Miss Mollie Stephens, Miss Yvonne Flynn, Miss Ernestine Webster, Miss Lydia F. Forsee, Mr. Jack Forsee, Rev. C. J. Alford and Mr. R. E. Brugh.

The members of the Happy Helpers' Class of the Methodist church held a bazaar in the basement of the church Wednesday, Dec. 14. In addition to a country store, Christmas gifts and home-made candy, sandwiches, chili, oyster stew, cake, sand and hot chocolate will be on sale. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Sallie Hughes of Indiana, Pa., arrived on Sunday for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Alan H. Gaines, and Mr. Gaines, of North Main Street.

Mrs. William Lancaster will entertain on Saturday for an all-day meeting of the Methodist Ladies Aid Society.

Mrs. Maxie Arnold has returned from a visit with her relatives; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Mills of Covington. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finhoff and Miss Margaret Ellis of Covington were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Dudley of North Walton.

The regular meeting of the Walton Parent Teachers Association will be held in the auditorium on Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Lulu Huey, in the chair.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Powers have moved to their new home in South Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Johnson of Walton have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Matilda Johnson, to Mr. Kenneth Huddleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Huddleston of Wallace avenue. The wedding will take place at 2 o'clock on Christmas eve, in the rectory of the Madison Avenue Christian Church. Miss Johnson is residing with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Loomis of Newport. Huddleston is editor of the Campbell County News.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shearer of Georgetown were recent guests of Mr. Shearer's aunt, Mrs. J. M. Arnold of the Dixie Highway.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. DeMolsey and their daughter, Diane, of Lexington are visiting with Mr. DeMolsey's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. R. F. DeMolsey, who has been ill for several weeks, is recovering.

Dr. W. K. Chambers left on Wednesday for his home in Los Angeles, Calif., after a visit with his brother, Mr. C. Scott Chambers, and Mrs. Chambers of North Walton.

Mrs. Arnold Landvoigt, of Philadelphia, Pa., was a guest at dinner on Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gaines of North Main Street. The Women's Missionary Society of the Walton Baptist Church will meet with Mrs. R. E. Ryle Tuesday, December 13, for an all-day meeting. A business session will be held at 11 a. m. After a luncheon is served, the following program will be presented: topic, "All Nations;" song; watchwords in union; Bible study, Mrs. C. J. Alford; duet, Mrs. Bryan Rector and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson; "The Unfinished Task;" Mrs. Edward Hankinson; "Go Ye," Mrs. D. K. Johnson; Christmas carols; prayer, Mrs. Susie Norman; playlet, "To All People," by 19 W. M. U. members; song, "Joy to the World," benediction.

Mrs. Pearl W. Johnson of Lexington is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. James R. Wallace. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeMolsey of North Walton regret to hear that Mrs. DeMolsey is ill with pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Noel Lea of Morgan have moved to the McElroy home in South Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Alphin of Pa. Thomas are end of the week guests of Mrs. Alphin's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. R. F. DeMolsey. William Brittenhelm is ill at his home here, much to the regret of his many friends.

Referndum Vote

through one of the new farm act.
The result will be no over-supply and a fair price for all. If you favor the road, vote "Yes" in the referndum Saturday.

Growers are urged above all else to vote. The referndum is a means of submitting to growers to decide what they want. It is the inherent right of every tobacco grower to vote. A large vote will express a fair representation of what the people want.

COLORED GLASS IS GLAMOROUS

With a number of new colors in plate glass now being introduced by a leading manufacturer, it is possible to carry out the color theme of one's dressing table even to the glass top.

Among new and exquisite colors in which polished plate glass is now available are peach, sapphire blue, grape green and gold. The gold and peach shades lend themselves to particularly glamorous effects.

A dressing table draped in peach and blue become even more charming if the glass top repeats one of these colors. A dressing table displayed by a well known New York decorator was draped in gold-colored taffeta with ruffles bound in pale green and a mirror top of gold with dresser set of green enamel completed an unusually lovely ensemble. The mirror above it was of antique gold with narrow striping of green.

ZIPPER GLOVES

An excellent Christmas gift for a man are the new gloves which dispense with buttons and clasps and close with a zipper. The gloves are to be had in an excellent quality leather dress head to match.

BATHING SUITS ARE FRILLY, FLIRTATIOUS, AND UTTERLY BEGUILING

The modern girl who keeps up to the minute on southern resort styles will dispose of Miami sands this season in suits and ensembles that hark back to the Victorian era.

Beachwear, like everything else in the current fashion panorama has gone frilly, feminine and decidedly reminiscent of the days when England's diminutive and beloved queen set the style pace.

Alms without exception the bathing suits and beach ensembles which are being featured in the Miami Bill more fashion show, sponsored annually by Colonel Henry L. Doherty for a leading New York charity, are bedecked with feminine frills and furbelows.

There are one piece suits of stocking knit wool and rayon, flirtatiously touched off with ruffles around modest bra cups and shorts. There are crêpe and taffeta ensembles with corset tops and brief girdle skirts from beneath which peep ruffled panties. There are even rubber mullite with rubber lace patterned frills and rubber flower rasegays for decoration.

Stock ensembles, unable to follow along the Victorian swim, are made up for it by setting the piece in color. Even the vivid hues of last season seem almost somber by comparison to the hues which are featured in this year. Pompadour red and kum yellow are a featured combination. Blue and blue jeans with Gulf-stream green in an ensemble of slacks shirt and bolero jacket. A third fetching alliance of formed by hibiscus pink and violet.

And, as the new styles now being introduced will show, be shown in stores throughout the country, you undoubtedly will find them available in your own city when planning a southern resort wardrobe.

From Miami, Florida, comes a recipe for a Christmas treat that is both delectable and delicious.

1 bunch of seedless grapes; 1 large Avocado pear; 1 package cream cheese; 1/2 pint whipping cream; 1 medium bottle marshmallow cherries.

Wash the grapes carefully and after separating them from the stems cut each in half. Cut the Avocado pear in half, remove seed and peel carefully so as not to disturb the flesh. Mash the cream cheese with a little of the cream, season well with salt, pepper and paprika, and cover the outside halves of the Avocado with it. Cut the cherries in halves and save the juice. Place the cherries on the pear (the cream cheese will hold them in place) to form a small red Christmas bell. Cover the rest of the pear with the halved grapes. Thrust sprigs of holly tied with red ribbon in the end of the pear. Whip the cream and color red with the cherry juice. Place the cream on a flat platter, surround with leaves and serve with the whipped cream.

SMART HO SPITALITY

If you want to increase your popularity with masculine guests have the tops of the tables in your living room thoroughly waxed so that wet glasses will not leave rings. The hostess who can say to her guests, "Oh, never mind wet glasses, the tables are waxed," immediately stamps herself as one who has thought of those small things which put a guest at ease.

SMART BRIDGE COVERS

Bridge table covers are always acceptable Christmas gifts and among the smartest of the new designs are those of rayon satin quilted in a diamond shaped pattern. To be had in gold, blue, green and brown, the covers are luxurious looking, yet modestly priced.

... and a gift to be cherished and carefully preserved. Have your eyes examined and the necessary corrections made now and avoid serious trouble later.

Stranger In Town

By Sarah Jane Clark

Jim saw Joan first as she stepped in at Du Vall's grocery.

"Mother wants a T-bone steak, the kind she always gets, and a pound of bacon." Her voice was that delightfully husky kind.

Jim, having finished his purchase, got up the money she counted out the amount of his purchases and looked over his change carefully before he pocketed it.

She looked like a grand girl. He wished he knew her. But he was a stranger in the big city, and he'd have to wait. Couldn't rush things with a girl like that. And perhaps she had a boy friend already. Unconsciously he slowed down at the corner of his apartment building. Stupid, to have to eat all alone, the night before Christmas.

Jim turned to look back at the store he had just left, and found that the girl had overtaken him.

"Hello, there, you going my way?" he asked. "I'm a stranger here, and it's mighty lonesome at Christmas."

But the girl, with a cool, "Excuse me, please," hurried on.

Jim's cheeks burned. He hadn't meant to be fresh, really. He hurried the corner and entered the doorway of his apartment. There he saw the girl the third time. She was just opening the door and going up the stairs. She lived in the same building with him!

He ate his solitary supper in his one-room kitchenette apartment. Then, what was there to do? His first Christmas away from home. His job here was so new that he hadn't dared to ask for time off to go home. Well, he supposed he could go to a show.

But when Jim got out into Duval Place he almost changed his mind. A snow had begun to fall, a heavy leisurely snow with big flakes

There was a bump and a crash as an armful of packages landed on the sidewalk.

That made a tight carpet on the streets and sidewalks, already icy from the drizzle of the afternoon. He hesitated a minute about starting out on such a night, then thinking of the lonely room he had just quitted, he shrugged his shoulders and started up the stairs.

With his head down he trudged through the snow, plowing his way with difficulty against the strong wind. Too late he saw a dark figure directly in front of him. There was a bump, and a crash as an armful of packages landed on the sidewalk. Startled, Jim looked into the face of the girl he was thinking about. His face red with embarrassment, Jim picked up her bundles.

Strange to say, the girl laughed amusedly. "Why go around barging into people this way? It's just my luck, Christmas eve, to have my bundles all scattered, and," a little ruefully, "some of them broken."

"Say, that's a shame. You must let me replace anything that's broken," Jim insisted. "Really I'm awfully sorry about this. I was facing the snow and had my head down. I'll never forgive myself if you don't let me do this last minute shopping with you. I am Jim Sheridan, from Dubuque, working for the Times."

"Well, I'm Joan Siegfred. I've been feeling sorry for the way I squeaked you a while ago. So I'm glad of a chance to say so." Her eyes were bright and sparkling and her cheeks glowing from the cold.

Walking down the busy streets with a pretty girl, replacing Christmas decorations that had been smashed in the fall, and being allowed to help put them on the tree later, was a lot better than going to a picture show alone. And when Joan's cheerful, friendly mother asked the homesick lad to have dinner with them next day, Jim felt that he was no longer a friendless stranger in a big city, and that Christmas was a time of peace and good will, after all.

Christmas on the highway CHICAGO—With traffic increased by the Christmas rush, more American lives were lost in automobile accidents during the month of December, 1938, than in the Revolutionary war. But last December, in a campaign led by the National Safety council, the toll was reduced by 400 lives. But still 3,800 people were killed that month. Pedestrians and motorists alike are responsible for this "field day" of the Grim Reaper. People are often less cautious during the holiday season.

INCOME TAX FORMS WILL BE READY SOON

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy Helvering announced today that the principal income tax return forms for the taxable year 1938 (Forms 1040, 1040-A, 1065, 1120 and 1120-A) will be available in the offices of the various collectors of internal revenue on or about January 5, 1939. The exact release date will be announced later.

Form 1120-A is a new 4-page form to be used generally by corporations having total receipts during the taxable period of not more than $500,000 and net incomes of not more than $25,000. However, the following classes of corporations will continue to use Form 1120: (a) Banks as defined in section 104, Revenue Act of 1938; (b) Corporations organized under China Trade Act, 1922; (c) Corporations entitled to benefits of section 251, Revenue Act of 1938; (d) Foreign corporations engaged in trade or business within the United States or having an office or place of business therein; (e) Insurance companies (life insurance companies must use Form 1120-L); and (f) Mutual investment companies.

As customary, the forms will be distributed to the public by collectors of internal revenue and not by the Bureau in Washington.

The Commissioner stated that his office has been informally advised that the Superintendent of Documents of the Government Printing Office will not offer 1938 income tax return forms for sale, as in the case of the 1937 forms, and the Bureau of Internal Revenue is without authority to sell any of its forms.

Service That Satisfies

All collectors have been advised by the Commissioner of his desire to have tax practitioners, banks, trust companies, etc., furnished with forms actually needed for tax purposes is construed to include forms reasonably required for use as work sheets and permanent file copies.

The Commissioner stated that funds allotted to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for obtaining printed matter are extremely limited and stressed the necessity for taxpayers to utilize the forms mailed to them. In this connection, he requests taxpayers who engage accountants or others to prepare their returns to turn over to the persons so engaged the forms which will be received through the mails.

The Bureau is unable to furnish forms for other than tax purposes, but it has no objection to their reproduction, provided there is no deviation from the size and subject matter of such forms, by persons desiring to use them for non-tax purposes or to augment the supply received for tax purposes from collectors of internal revenue. All collectors have been authorized to furnish specimen copies of the forms in such cases.

4-H DELEGATES

David, the Shepherd

By Molly Chittick

"YOU can't go out to tend the sheep tonight, Judah," David heard the voice in the darkness. "The lion's claws have wounded you sore. I will find someone to send out with them."
 "He is hot, so hot," she whispered to David after his father had Rebecca bade him good-bye tenderly. "Had I a son older, I should send him. But you are all I have. Take care. The lion may return."

 So David drove his father's flock out onto the plain where the sheep herds watched their flocks by night. The cool breeze from off the mountains made him draw his cloak close. Suddenly over the hill before him he saw a group of men approaching. That was a surprising thing, he saw men wandering about at night. But there was nothing alarming in their action. They seemed filled with excitement and joy.

 Now one of them called: "Who is this, guarding his sheep here? Is it you, David, son of Judah? Come with us. We have seen you star, brighter than any star of the morning. It is moving, and we are following it."
 David was on his feet, listening with boyish excitement to their tale of the words they had heard from the heavens, as an angel had praised Jehovah. His heart burned within him, and he was eager to accompany the band of shepherds.
 Then he heard one of the young lambs: "Ma-a-a-a." The answering bleat came from a distance. The mother had wandered off in search of tender morsels. David heard again his mother's warning.
 "I have come to guard my father's flock. I cannot go with you."
 "We left our sheep, David. This is the king we are about to see. We must go. You are a fool to stay here with these few sheep, when the king is to be seen."
 "I came here to tend this flock. It is not mine, but it is my task," was his only reply.
 When they saw that he would not accompany them, they made haste to be on their way.
 At first his excitement over the tale the shepherds had told him kept him awake. But gradually his eyes grew heavy. He was almost asleep when he heard the "Ma-a-a-a" of a young lamb again. He jumped to his feet, conscious that he had forgotten to hunt up that wandering mother. With staff in hand, and his sling ready to use, he listened intently for a moment. Then he saw the sheep, standing some distance from the others, its head raised listening to something he could not hear. But David knew what there was to be found there. With the starlight shining full upon it, crouched a lion ready to spring.
 Swift as the David of old, the lion swung his sling, and the stone went straight into the head of the crouching animal. With a slow yielding of its body the lion fell in death.
 "I am glad, my son, that you were so faithful," his mother praised him in the morning. "Your father was beside himself, wild with his illness, and had I not been able to tell him you were with the flock he would have gone out, sick as he was. And now you have slain a lion. Your fame will go before you."
 "But mother, I did not see the king," and David's voice trembled. "Do you not think the king would have scorned a lad who would desert his post of duty from idle curiosity? Nay, my son, you have done your task faithfully and well, and proved yourself a man. Later you may see the king."

HOMEMAKERS LEARN TO CANE CHAIRS

The third of the fall series of Home Improvement Training classes was held last week for homemakers. Each two leaders brought a chair to cane. Miss Ida C. Hangman, home improvement specialist, University of Kentucky, explained the six essential steps in caning—she directed the women how to cane eight chairs at the class.
 The caning lesson will be given in local clubs during January, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home demonstration agent. The cost of cane for an average sized chair was 40 cents at the training class. The

of Christmas

BETTY PRICE dabbed a spot of rouge on each cheek, touched the places lightly for a natural effect, then dipped in the perfume bottle and rubbed the back of her small ears.

Tilting back the blurred mirror, she surveyed herself critically. The effect seemed entirely satisfactory. Betty sighed ecstatically. "I look sible. What would the unromantic Mr. and Mrs. James Barstow say if they saw the Cinderella of their kitchen arrayed in garments like these? Betty chuckled at the thought. They would think she had gone crazy if they found out that she had spent a whole month's salary to rent the things she was wearing, and to buy a ticket for the opera. "But they never will find out," she told herself, as she carefully closed the back door behind her.

Her prince was standing in the doorway, his evening clothes replaced by clean blue overalls.

strung across the streets. She told herself it must be the Christmas feeling in the air that made her do this daring thing. It was utterly ridiculous to dress up like a great lady, but one had to be different at Christmas. And life had been pretty dull for Betty since she had to accept the work she was doing.

The story of the opera took her back to a medieval world. In a few moments she was completely lost in its atmosphere, so much so that she failed to notice that the man seated at her right was sending admiring glances in her direction. When the curtain went up, he leaned over and spoke.

"I love this," he said simply. "I do, too," Betty answered, with a little catch in her voice. It seemed incredible that he was speaking to her. He was really acting as if she belonged. By the time the curtain went up again they were calling each other Prince and Princess; taking the names of the two leading characters on the stage.

As the great drama moved to its close Betty tried to hurry away. She didn't want her Prince to find out what an impostor she was. But he had taken hold of her arm. "Couldn't we go and have some coffee?" he suggested. "I know I'm a stranger to you, but-but, it's Christmas—and—"

"I should say so," Betty told herself. "I should even tell him the truth about myself." Instead, she accompanied him to the coffee shop across the street. She couldn't deny herself this one hour of happiness. After it was over, well—Betty would not let her thoughts go further.

She almost forgot that she was playing a part as they sat together. They seemed to have so much in common. He had read widely—the type of books she liked; he took an interest in so many things she liked; seemed to be so romantic and visionary as herself. But he spoke no word to indicate that he wanted to see her again.

Gloom enveloped the world for Betty next morning. As if to add to her humiliation and misery, a clogged-up drain was sending oozy brown water back into the sink. Her feet dragged across the floor as she answered the plumber's knock.

Then the world spun dizzily around her for a moment. A rush of joy, of wonder, lifted her heart. Her Prince was standing in the doorway, his evening clothes replaced by clean blue overalls, his good-looking face wrinkled in bewilderment.

"I—I thought you were—" he stammered.

"And I—I thought you were—" Betty gasped in answer.

When explanations were over, a make-believe Prince and Princess were wondering if Christmas wasn't the very nicest time for a wedding ceremony.

CHRISTMAS MORNING ECSTASY

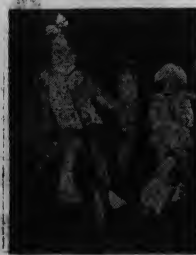

"Glad, Santa! Sorry I'm so late but Christmas is just around the corner and I'd like to place my order. Bring me a doll, a teddy bear, a bicycle, a toy plane, a bag of candy, a new dress and a... What's that, Santa? Have I been a good girl? Of course I have! Er... that is, I hope I have."

"Look at that doll! Santa WAS here last night, wasn't he, mummy? Guess I must have been an awfully good girl to deserve a doll like that! Brown eyes, real hair, a pretty dress... in everything!"

"What's this? Another doll? Kind of hard to get it out. Wonder what she is in this big stocking... maybe it's the candy I ordered from Santa Claus."

"What's that? Some tricycle Santa left me. There's so much to play with that I hardly know where to start. Wouldn't it be nice if Christmas came every day? But maybe that would be too much work for Santa Claus, and, after all, maybe I'd get kind of tired, too."

"Here it is bedtime already. I've had a busy day but I'm really not tired. Better go to bed, though, 'cause mummy says I should... and I really ought to be a good girl after this wonderful Christmas. Thanks a lot, Santa Claus!"

REA COMMITTEE TO FILE APPLICATION SOON

211 Members Join Move to Electrify Boone County

The Boone county rural electric association sign up committee expects to present their application for allotment to construct lines in about two weeks, according to H. R. Finkner, county agent. Membership applications for 211 members have been received by the county office and approximately fifty more are in the hands of committeemen or have been turned in direct to Edward Rogers of Bellevue, the secretary of the sign-up campaign. Rev. Will Smith, Burlington, R. P. D. No. 2, chairman of the sign up campaign committee, reports the committee have done a great deal of a splendid job in securing memberships and right of way easements. The committee met with the Owen County Board of Directors last Friday night and received the promise of that association that they would be glad to extend the lines through Boone County as soon as an average of three customers or more per mile can be secured. This number has already been signed up on the Hamilton school in the south to Princeton by the north section of the association. The application for allotment to construct the lines will be submitted as soon as the line from Verona to Hamilton school can be signed at the minimum number of customers. A meeting was held at Verona last Friday night and those attending the meeting promised the Verona-Hamilton line section would be completed immediately.

Those who want electric service are urged to sign up without delay. There are no paid solicitors. Those who are helping are donating their time and expenses. If you want electricity for the farms of Boone county, contact your nearest committeemen immediately—Do your part.

Boone Farmers Favor AAA Quota; Entire Vote Turns Down Proposition

Eighty-Two Percent In County Wants Quotas Nation Average 61.8

Eighty-two per cent of Boone county growers or 899 of 1097 votes cast on Saturday, December 11, AAA tobacco referendum favored quotas for the 1939 crop, according to H. R. Foraker, county agent. Kentucky growers as a whole favored quotas with a 74 per cent majority but growers of the entire belt voted only 61.8 per cent in the early unofficial reports, thus falling short of the 66 2-3 per cent required.

The result is no quotas will be set on the 1939 crop going to market under the new farm act are offered marketing quotas on certain specified crops only in years when a certain per cent of surplus above normal supplies exists. Marketing quotas are then available to growers under the new farm act are offered marketing quotas on certain specified crops only in years when a certain per cent of surplus above normal supplies exists. Cats Beat Simon Kenton; Newport Wins

Starting the pre-Holiday basketball season with a victory over the strong Simon-Kenton aggregation, the Walton-Verona boys bumped into a brick wall Monday night when they dropped their second defeat to Newport.

The Simon Kenton squad were on the short end of the score all the way through the game, while Coach Lewis Shields men dropped in goals at leisure. The Bearcats led a 13-5 lead at the half, and finished up with 26 to 21.

Pennington and Chapman led the attack with 12 and eight points respectively, while Williams scored eight points for the losers.

In the preliminary skirmish the Simon Kenton seconds defeated the Bearkittens by a 23-16 score.

However, Walton Bearcats went down in a wave of defeat Monday evening, when the strong Newport squad used steam-roller formations to score 32 points to the locals 17.

Following play after play until the starting of a fast lead the visitors Waltons were trailing far behind. Coach Shields boys apparently were at sea perils the perfect defense game played by Newport.

Chapman of Walton was high point man for the Bearcats with five points, while Sander and Huxinson held high honors between themselves with 13 points each.

The second team also took the rap, being on the small end of a 38-20 score.

The loss of this game does not affect the standing of Walton in the Boone County Conference, which they lead by a comfortable margin.

The two local teams met Hebron on the local hardwood tonight (Wednesday).

This is the second defeat handed Walton this year by the metropolitan squad.

ZONE MANAGER MOVES TO CINCINNATI OFFICE

Frank A. Hoel, manager of Chevrolet's Wichita zone since October 16, 1935, has been promoted to manager of the Norwood zone, succeeding F. E. Zorniger, who was recently named to the new post of assistant regional manager in charge of new cars in the Flint region. The announcement was received today from W. E. Hoel, general sales manager. Hoel came here after nearly 13 years' experience with Chevrolet. He joined the organization as a sales representative in St. Louis January 1, 1927, became recruiting representative in the same territory three and a half years later, and accounting manager at Knoxville in August, 1929. In March, 1931, he was promoted to accounting manager at Baltimore, and he came to Norwood for the first time in September of that year, taking the post of regional accounting manager.

On April 11, 1932, he was named assistant zone manager here, leaving that post in 1933 to become city sales manager at Detroit. He went to Wichita as zone manager October 16, 1935, serving there until his present promotion, which was effective Dec. 1.

Tobacco prices no doubt seem a little higher to each grower the day he does not sell.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

SPANISH VILLA DIXIE HIGHWAY

"Peace on Earth Good Will Men to Men" may the radiance of the Christmas star shed its brightness on the dark places of the world.

Under the guiding hands of Mrs. F. L. Frakes, beloved mother of Mr. Ellis Lee Frakes, of radio fame, who has gained popularity as a vocalist and whose singing has won wide acclaim, his voice being frequently heard over WLW and these two youthful leaders, Rev. T. C. Crumes, Jr., the pastor, son of Dr. T. C. Crumes, widely-known evangelist, and Supt. Edwin G. Damon, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Cummins, prominent leading member of many noteworthy accomplishments have been achieved at the Hickory Grove Baptist Church. Full-time preaching is now maintained, these desecrated, original, B. T. P. U. organized and a record attendance at Sunday School, striving to reach the standard of excellence, fitting indeed that Mrs. Damon, the former Miss Laura Nell Cummins should serve as matron of honor at the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Peden, recently beautifully celebrated since the bride, the former Miss Flo Elliot with whom she had spent many happy childhood hours was almost like her sisters, for whom her own dear mother left the earth for eternal hills she was reared to Christian womanhood by her devoted grandparents, Mrs. Damon was strikingly lovely in a delicate tulle gown, and her darling little daughter, daintily clad in white, followed rose petals in the bridal path, the nuptial vows a delightful reception was held at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Cummins.

IN MEMORIAM

OF KATIE POWERS, Verona, Ky. Departed this life December 22nd, 1937. Just one year ago since you left us, dear Sis, we miss thee from your home, Katie. We miss thee from your place, a shadow o'er our life is cast. We miss your sweet smiling face. We miss your kind and willing hand, your fond and earnest care; our home is dark without you. Katie, we miss you every where.

A POEM

The autumn, and down in the valley
The bay of a hound tells the tale
That somewhere across yonder ridges
Soft footprints are marking the trail.
Last night when I felt the great longing
To join the vast seasonal throng
I started (my old dog alone)
Down through the cornfield, when,
"Oh!"

The pain of old age struck my back.
I sat on a stump with my lantern
And reasoned things out with old Jack.
"When young o'er the hills we'd go hunting
The bobcat, opossum and 'coon, We'd stay in pursuit 'till the morning,
But now it is over too soon.
Your voice, Jack, is too gruff and husky
You can't sing the old baying song,
And the old muzzle loads is rusty
Which on all our trips went along.
Together we've felt the great yearning
That comes to the cabin each fall.
Tonight finds our footsteps returning.
In memory to answer the call."

OUT OF THE PAST

The Christmas and New Year Season brings to mind the gratitude that is in our hearts for all the blessings that have come our way. In the past the friends of this organization have made possible progress and a certain amount of prosperity. Through these friendships life has been an enjoyable experience, one in which we have the confidence and esteem of the people whom we serve. All we ask is the pleasure of a continuance of these fine relationships—so that we may look with a genuine enthusiasm toward the future.

THE PROGRESS OF ROTARY SPREADS 'ROUND THE WORLD

It was just thirty-three years ago—February 23, 1905, that the first Rotary club in the world was formed by Paul P. Harris, a lawyer of Chicago, Illinois, who suggested the form of organization to three friends and with them instituted the first Rotary club. Based on the "Ideal of Service," Rotary has, in this brief period, endeavored the globe. Today there are more than 4,813 Rotary clubs in 81 countries or geographical regions throughout the world, with an approximate membership of 201,476 Rotarians (as of 22 November, 1938).

In encouraging and fostering the "Ideal of Service" each Rotary club throughout the world has stressed the development of acquaintance, fellowship, and friendship among Rotarians everywhere.

In relation to business and their respective vocations, Rotarians stress high ethical standards; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations, and the opportunity of each Rotarian through his occupation to service society.

The service motive is stressed as well in relation to the community life of each Rotarian and it is thru the practical application of this object that Rotary clubs engage in the various community activities for which they are known.

Like most organizations the growth of Rotary has been an evolution of thoughts, ideas, and purposes within the minds of men. The first Rotary club, the Rotary Club of Chicago, was formed as a club for business and professional men, the purpose of which would be mutual helpfulness.

Inspired by the enthusiasm generated in the first club, efforts were begun to organize Rotary clubs in other cities. The second club was organized in San Francisco, three years after the Chicago club was launched; and within five years, sixteen of the largest cities in the United States had Rotary clubs.

Within the Chicago Rotary Club in those days of Rotary, there were developing some of the ideas and principles which are today familiar to Rotary clubs everywhere. Jaul Harris gave to the club the name

The Little Fir Tree

By Henry Harding

THERE was very little sunlight in the forest. The trees were so big, all the grown up trees. The little fir tree stretched himself, and tried to imagine himself as full grown. Looking up at the sky and the stars and the moon, he listened to the big trees talk. "Isn't the moon bright tonight?" one would say; and there would be a gentle rustling of their leaves as the trees would shake their heads in agreement.

"I'm afraid you're going to be stunted, because there is so much shade here," a little squirrel said to the fir one day as he jumped into his branches and brushed the top limbs with his bushy tail. "It takes sunlight to make anything grow strong and tall."

So the little fir tree stretched himself up, and kept his head pointed up toward the spot of sunlight he saw clear up through the maze of heavy tree growth. He could be straight and upstanding, even if he hadn't grown tall.

Today the ground was all covered with the snow which stayed white in the forest. All but a few birds had gone south. Every once in a while there was the sound of a bird striking against a wood, and infrequently a crashing sound of falling trees.

The tall trees began to tremble. The woodcutters are out. But this is a funny time of year," one murmured to the others. Then one of the little snow birds spoke. "Have you forgotten that every year they come to cut Christmas trees?"

"What are Christmas trees?" the little fir asked.

"Oh, they cut down the trees and take them in the house, and put candles on them so they look like stars, and spangles that look like snow shining in the moonlight. And the people sing songs and give one another gifts, and it is a time of being glad," the little snow bird twittered.

"Oh, I wish they would take me," the little tree cried in excitement. "I'd love to see it all. I'd love to make people happy. But I'm too little," and he sighed unhappily.

"Sh! Let's all be quiet," one of the tall trees exclaimed. "The woodmen are coming near us. We must be quiet so they won't notice us. Then we won't be cut down and left to die."

But in spite of their silence, the men drew near. They led at the trees, and one of them said: "Oh, these are all too tall. No house or church could hold them. Let's get on."

Just then a little lad who was riding in the sled, called to his father: "Dad, can we find a little tree for sister? Couldn't we find a cute little tree to put in her very own room?"

"Hol Hol!" laughed a big rough man. "In her own room? No little girl will stay in her room on Christmas day!"

The lad's father answered, sadly: "Yes, my little girl will. She has infantile paralysis last summer, and hasn't been able to walk since. Surely, son, we'll find a little tree for her."

"Here I am, here I am! come and get me," the little fir tree called out lustily. And the little boy turned and saw the branches trembling, and the little snow bird flying away.

"Why, dad, there is a cute little tree over there. Such a beautiful straight tree. Wouldn't that do?" he called.

The man got out from the sled. He walked to the tree and fondled it gently. "I never saw a more beautiful tree. It seems to glow. Molly will love it," he said with a smile.

The little tree was so happy that he didn't feel the blow from the ax that cut him to the ground. And when they put him into the sled, he was still happy. The little boy called to his father: "It sounds as if the little tree was singing when he was blown through its branches." And the little tree laughed delightedly.

SPECIAL

Colonel Frank Miller of Scott's Station who was made a Kentucky Colonel under the late governorship of Edwin P. Morrow and prominently mentioned in the last primary election as a probable candidate for U. S. Senator by his many friends, makes statement that he has a rabbit harboring in his turnip patch just a few steps from his home. Being mindful of the fact that it is unsportsmanlike to shoot game while in bedded in the stars and the moon, he listened to the big trees talk. "Isn't the moon bright tonight?" one would say; and there would be a gentle rustling of their leaves as the trees would shake their heads in agreement.

Mr. Miller blames his inaccuracy on missing his aim on the fact that he had noticed the game warden had issued instructions not to shoot in the direction of the C. O. C. boys as they were game but also stated he felt no hesitancy in shooting in any other direction as the other Governmental workers employed numerously about were not apt to move suddenly and get in the range of his shots.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

MID-VICTORIAN INFLUENCE FOR FLORIDA SANDS

With Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as an honorary patroness and sixty of the season's most glamorous debutantes serving as models, resort styles for wear beneath Florida's sun and stars were established at the Miami Biltmore Fashion Show and Ball, most important of New York's December gales.

Shocking pink with angel white was featured as one of the most important color combinations of the new resort season. The ball, sponsored annually by Colonel Henry L. Doherty for one Manhattan's foremost charities, also pointed to Mid-Victorian styles for suntan sophistries.

Bathing and beach ensembles were coquettish, demure and definitely in a Gay Nineties mood as far as trimmings were concerned. However, the Twentieth Century brevity remained an integral part of swim and play suits.

One amusing beach ensemble of marine blue tulle which had been treated with the new waterproof process to make it waterproof, consisted of a brief little swim suit and a detachable skirt trimmed with rows of red hearts. A white sharkskin swim suit was trimmed with love knots of shimmer pink crepe. A bathing suit of red and white polka dotted cotton had wide ruffles around it panties and bra.

Ball shaped trousers and wide wrap around sashes forecast a trend toward the Spanish for beach pajamas.
Evening fashions reached new heights of glamour, with skirts swirling to almost immeasurable widths and lace, net, mousseline, and chiffon in the ascendency. Butterflies of matelasse net and sequins applied on the wide skirt of a peal pink net evening gown introduced a new treatment in trimming. A gown of white mousseline printed in stars was trimmed with cut out stars that formed a ruffling around the décolletage.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT BASED ON WAGES EARNED

Money payments which are now due under the old-age insurance part of the social Security Act are based on wages which workers have earned uncovered employment since January 1, 1937, according to Frank B. Decker, Jr., Manager of the Social Security field office in Covington, Kentucky.

"Some workers have the wrong idea that the money payments they get are based on the contributions which these workers have made under the old-age insurance plan," Mr. Decker said.

"While there is a direct relation between contributions and money payments the latter are equal to 3 1/2 per cent of the covered wages of workers from the date men joined until the claim becomes payable. This means that a man who earned $3,000 would be entitled to 3 1/2 per cent of that sum or $105 provided the work done was covered by the Social Act," Mr. Decker added.

He pointed out that the payment would be three and a half times the amount the worker had paid under the old-age insurance plan. Claims are now being filed by covered workers who reach age 65, also by the estates or heirs of similar workers, regardless of age, who have died since January 1, 1937.

The Covington, Kentucky field office has had more than 375 such claims certified for payment since it opened 10 months ago, Mr. Decker declared. This office serves the counties of Boone, Bracken, Pendleton, Kenton, Campbell, Grant, Gallatin and Carroll.

Shipments of Greek leaf tobacco recorded substantial gains both in August and the first 8 months of 1938, in comparison with a year earlier.
